City delays action on offer on property

by Fred Gray

The Board of Aldermen, in a regularly scheduled session July 10, decided not to make a subsequent offer on a tax delinquent property, after the initial offer was rejected by Donley County.

The city's offer to purchase the tax delinquent property was rejected on a basis other than price. According to the Board of Aldermen, a problem exists between the city and county. Therefore, no additional offer will be made at this time, in order to "let the smoke clear." Should the land be needed in the future, another offer can be made, or the property can be acquired through the process of Imminent Domain.

Firemen contain house fire

Quick action by the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department saved a local residence from destruction Monday night.

Officials say an electrical extension cord is the cause of the blaze at the Jim Thornton residence located at 518 W. Third.

The house was reported to be on fire about 8:17 p.m., and firemen were on the scene within about five minutes and could see fire through a window on the northeast corner of the home

Firemen attacked the blaze through the window and through the front door. A ventilation team accessed the roof and removed three small windows. A two-man team entered the home and directly attacked and quickly suppressed the fire in a bedroom located just north of the living room area in the northeast part of the house. The fire was exteriand to that recover.

tained to that room.

Clarendon Fire Chief Jeremy

Powell said the moderate to heavy smoke and heat damage was suffered throughout the home and said fire crews remained on the scene until 10:45 p.m. continuing ventilation and mop-up.

The investigation of the bedroom showed the fire to have been caused by an electrical short, Powell said. A power strip being supplied power by a 12-gauge orange extension cord was in the corner of the room and plugged into this were a cell phone charger, an alarm clock, and another extension cord running to a small evaporative air conditioner. The extension cord to the air conditioner was shorted about four inches from the plug into the power strip.

"The baseboard is burned and n obvious V pattern is present," Powell said.

Eighteen firemen and seven CVFD trucks responded to the fire, and the home was insured.

City sales tax figure up in June

Clarendon's sales tax revenue for June was up from last year when Texas Comptroller Susan Combs made her monthly sales tax allocations last week.

The city's revenue for the month was $26,853.96, which is up 11.25 percent from the same period last year. Clarendon remains 3.11 percent behind for its year to date collections with a total of $183,534.33

Howardwick, which raised its sales tax rate last fall, continued to post gains this month. That city's revenue was up 21.11 percent for the month with total of $1,358.13 and is 24.47 percent up for the year at $50.03.20.

Hedley's monthly revenue dropped 46.51 percent to $2,835.87, and that city is down 25.48 percent for the year at $2,835.87.

Statewide, the comptroller said

Statewide, the comptroller said that state sales tax revenue in June was $1.98 billion, up 15.2 percent compared to June 2011.

"Sales tax revenue has increased for 27 consecutive months in Texas," Combs said. "Strong business spending in industries such as manufacturing and oil and natural gas boosted the latest sales tax collections."

The sales tax figures represent monthly sales made in May.

Quanah Trail will point to Clarendon

Donley County is on track to receive a 23-foot arrow sculpture to mark its location on the Quanah Parker Trail, but the site where that arrow will go has not been finalized, trail officials say.

The Quanah Parker Trail is a road trip guide compiled for the 52-county Texas Plains Trail heritage tourism region covering the Panhandle and South Plains, and each of those counties, if it meets certain criteria, is eligible to have a 23-foot arrow sculpture at no cost to the community. Thirty-nine arrows have already been installed around the region.

"We're trying to bring something positive to the communities, and we want everyone to work together on this throughout the 52-county area," said Holly Humphries, who is a member of the trail's steering committee. "This whole area was part of the Comancheria – the traditional territory of the Comanche Indians, and most of us are not aware of that."

Humphries said counties who are interested in having an arrow are asked to submit research about what Comanche history might have occurred in the county – either through artifacts in a museum, a historic site, local stories, or waterways that were used by Native Americans. The research is then reviewed by the Southwest Collection at Texas Tech University.

"The research is really a checkpoint," Humphries said. "We already know these counties are eligible, but we want to get people involved."

The Obama Nullification Doctrine

In December 1828, South Carolina had 5,000 copies of John C. Calhoun's "Exposition and Protest" printed and distributed throughout the state. A defiant document, Calhoun's "Exposition" outlined a theory of constitutional interpretation first adumbrated in the infamous Kentucky and Virginia Resolutions, which asseverated the right of states to declare "null which asseverated the right of states to declare "hull and void" acts of the federal government within their respective jurisdictions. These instances of the nullification doctrine were based on the view that certain acts of the federal government could be deemed unconstitutional by state authorities and reserved to states the option of interposing their sovereign will between their citizens and officials attempting to enforce national law. enforce national law.

In his "Disquisition on Government," which appeared two decades later, Calhoun explained, "It is this negative power – the power of preventing or arresting the action of the government – be it called by what term it may – veto, interposition, nullification, check, or balance of power – which, in fact, forms the

In short, a valid Constitution should allow any of its constituent parts to interpret its terms any way it likes, regardless of the Supremacy Clause, or those pesky introductory words to the acclaimed document, which state, "We the People" – or the first Article of the Constitution, which assigns to Congress the authority to make national law. More remarkably, Calhoun admitted in a letter written to a colleague in 1832 that the real inspiration for his nullification doctrine was safeguarding the power of the South to preserve its peculiar institution: slavery. Clearly, depraved entions spawned this nefarious constitutional construction by Southern elites: preserve your political power by any means possible.

Interpretations like this lurk beneath the Obama administration's recent non-enforcement of federal law. For instance, President Obama's Department of Justice declared in 2011 that it regarded The Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA) - duly enacted by a majorof Marriage Act (DOMA) – unly enacted by a major-ity in Congress, to use the president's sophomoric constitutional reminder – to be unconstitutional and would no longer defend it in court. Oh, really? What happened to Article Two, Section Three of the U.S. Constitution, the part that enjoins the president to "take Care that the Laws be faithfully executed?" DOJ insisted it would continue to "enforce" the law, but still has managed to ignore it in several cases involv-ing immigration and gay marriages, as pointed out by Representative Vern Buchanan (R-Fla.), one of which involved the department "vacating" a decision made by the Board of Immigration Appeals involving a gay man. And "not defending" a law in court on constitu-tional grounds is tantamount to lack of enforcement, because the bottom line is: if you don't like federal law, simply don't enforce it. Which is the federal ver-

Nowhere has this nullification doctrine been more apparent or more maddening than the federal government's refusal to enforce national immigration laws. Further, the Obama administration has announced that it no longer will abide by the so-called 287(g) agreements with the state of Arizona. These agreements permitted state and local authorities to assist in the enforcement of federal laws on immigration. Of course, if you have no intention of enforcing the law anyway, federal authorities certainly don't want states to do it in their absence. Also, since national policy in this area has been significantly determined by executive order – since the president's de facto amnesty announcement for children of illegal immigrations – neither Congress nor the American states seem to have any role to play.

And the nullifications keep on coming. On July 12 the Health and Human Services Department announced that it was granting waivers to certain states from the work requirements of the 1996 Welfare Reform Act, perhaps the signature achievement of the Clinton administration. Republicans reacted with predictable outrage, but also with a constitutional case to make, centering on HHS' lack of legal authority to administer by regulation what it is denied to do by law, one that has been regarded by most observers as a huge success. As far as HHS is concerned, none of that matters, which is another egregious case of what critics have termed "executive overreach."

But the HHS decree represents much more than that. In fact, there has been considerable commentary on Obama administration policies under the rubric of the "imperial presidency," a term that dates back to the 1960s. However, the real doctrine is more threatening and the dangers are far deeper; the Obama-ites are not just doing their "imperial presidency" thing; they're practicing nullification, with designs on power as suspect as those that inspired that interpretation's notorious roots. Indeed, if the dark visage of John C. Calhoun were somehow to encounter the administration of Barack Obama, one can easily imagine a thin smile of approval cracking his stony expression. Nul-lification remains alive and well, though this time in federal clothing.

American capitalism under attack

Democracy and Capitalism, working together, have made this country great, truly great.

Alexis de Tocqueville, in his book,

Democracy in America said it best when he wrote: "The position of the Ameri-cans is therefore quite exceptional...his (American) passions, his wants, his education, and everything about him seem to unite in drawing the native of the United States earthward; his religion alone bids him turn, from time to time, a transient and distracted glance to heaven..." De Tocqueville's view was that America's exceptionalism stems from its emergence from a revolution, becoming "the first new nation," and developing a uniquely American ideology, based on liberty, egalitarianism, individualism, populism, and laissez-faire capitalism.

Historian Gordon Wood concurred, arguing, "Our beliefs in liberty, equality, constitutionalism, and the well-being of ordinary people came out of the Revolutionary era." So too did our idea that we Americans are a special people with a special destiny to lead the world toward liberty, democracy, and economic

Today, the attributes put forth by de Tocqueville and Wood are best rep-resented by the folks who settled and continue to live in the Texas Panhandle. They are the reason that I choose to be an optimist. Americans, and particularly Texans, can overcome just about anything if we choose to do so. If we decide to work together we can overcome the current economic and political threats to this great Republic.

Its part of a comprehensive attack on the economic system that has made this country great, the economic system that Mitt Romney personifies.

This is what the Obama campaign appears to have done in recent months. Instead of defending the failed policies of the last four years, the campaign has begun a series of attacks on the things that people don't like about capitalism.

The accuracy of the ads has been questioned by the various fact-checking websites. That need no detain us. It's safest to assume that all the ads you see this year will be mostly inaccurate because the ad-makers now take dishonesty as a mark of their professional Politically, this aggressive tactic has race from being about big government, which Obama represents, to being about capitalism, which Romney represents.

The Romney campaign doesn't know how to respond. For centuries, business leaders have been inept when intellectuals and politicians attacked capitalism, and, so far, the Romney campaign is continuing the streak.

Taxing American small businesses

Last week, I set out on my annual bus tour in Texas. I have taken a tour of Texas every year since I entered the Senate, taking me thousands of miles across this glorious state and every one of our 254 counties. This is my last year as a US Senator, and nothing highlights the reasons I chose to represent my great state better than spending time with our people. Texans are strong, resourceful, innovative, self-reliant, kind, open and world-famous for friendliness. Texas is a destination for everything from barbecue to cutting-edge science and technology, and that is a reflection of the people - richly diverse in so many ways. but sharing an inimitable and unique Texas spirit.

But this is not an easy time in Texas, which, though not as bad as many other states, still has a sluggish economy with high unemployment.

I went to Washington to ensure that the American Dream would stay alive for every Texan. But we find ourselves in a new era, where the promise that hard work and dedication will translate into success is in jeopardy. The economy is sluggish, recovery is stagnant and unemployment numbers won't budge they haven't been below 8 percent in three years. And now the Administration is proposing a tax increase that would slam small businesses when they can least afford it - and when we need them

On my tour, I met with members of the community in a number of small businesses: in Marble Falls at the Blue Bonnet Café, in Fredricksburg at the Clear River Soda Fountain and in Uvalde at the famous Vasquez Restaurant, where I had a wonderful afternoon with my hosts. Enrique Vasquez and Donald McLaughlin of DKM Enter-prises, a local steel salvage and distribu tion company.

Vasquez Restaurant is the perfect example of a great American small business. It was founded in 1935 by Enrique's parents, Mr and Mrs Jesus Vasquez. Enrique took over and has kept it a Uvalde institution. Sergeant Major Enrique Vasquez served in the US Army and fought in the Korean Conflict – pictures of his time in Korea and Japan adorn one of the restaurant walls. He is one of Uvalde's most recognizable locals and can be found in his restaurant every day working the lunch shift.

The tax increases proposed by the Administration will hit businesses like Vasquez Restaurant. Why? Because 75 percent of small businesses pay taxes at an individual rate, as they are organized as "flow-through" businesses, such as partnerships, S Corporations, LLCs and sole proprietorships. The Joint Committee on Taxation estimates that 53 percent of all flow-through business income will be subject to the top two individual income tax rate increases scheduled to take effect in 2013.

This increase is an unfair burden on hard-working Americans. Sergeant Major Vasquez's parents started a business, worked hard and made it a success. Sergeant Major Vasquez served his country, took over his parents' business and made it an even bigger success that provides jobs to locals and is a fixture in the community. It survived the Great Depression and 11 recessions and is working its way through a 12th. These tax hikes punish businesses like Vasquez Restaurant in already tough times, starve the American economy of revenue and deprive job-seekers of opportunities. I hope that the Administration will heed calls from both parties to re-think this tax on our job-creators.

Spinal Cord Injury Pain Therapy Approved

Lyrica (pregabalin) was recently approved by the Food and Dr ministration (FDA) to manage neuropathic pain related to spina cord injuries. This is the first approved medication in the United States for this indication. Over 350 individuals with spinal cord injuries participated in two clinical studies to access pain reduction in individuals with traumatic and non-traumatic spinal cord injuries. Some individuals reported a reduction in pain as early as one week after beginning the medication during the clinical trials. Lyrica is already approved for treatment of pain associated with diabetes, shingles, and fibromyalgia.

the nerves of persons affected by neuropathic pain may be injured, damaged or not functioning properly. Therefore, affected persons may report sensations of burning, feeling cold, numbness, itching, or a "pins and needles" sensation. Tissue injury usually precedes neuropathic pain. There are approximately 200,000 people in the United States currently affected by spinal cord injuries. It is also estimated that approximately 40% of people with spinal cord njuries will develop neuropathic pain.

Clarendon Church of Christ BLAMELESS AND HARMLESS

(Philippians 2:14-15) "Do all things without complaining and disputing, that you may become blameless and harmless, children of God without fault in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation, disputing, that you may become blameless and harmless, children of God without fault in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation, among whom you shine as lights in the world."

Chapter 2 of Philippians, Paul exhorts and encourages these Christians to be unified and look out for one another above their own interests. He tells them to have the mind of Christ (vs. 5). Christ is the epitome of selflessness and humility. He was and is the standard for being a servant.

In verse 12, Paul encourages them to continue their Godly walk and to work out their salvation with "fear and trembling." He wanted them to continue to respect God and His Son and remain faithful.

Now to our featured passage (vs. 15). He told these Christians to be blameless and harmless. What does that mean? Be blameless in that you stand accused of nothing sinful or wrong. Of course they and we would sin but that can be taken care of by confession of sin to God and repentance. He tells them to remain in a state whereby God is not holding you accountable for something evil. He told them to be harmless in that they were to do nothing that would hurt another person in his or her spiritual walk. They were not to be stumbling blocks to others. Remember what Paul said earlier in verses 3-4? (Philippians 2:3-4) "Let nothing be done through selfish ambition or conceit, but in lowliness of mind let each esteem others better than himself. Let each of you look out not only for his own interests, but also for the interests of others." That is the definition of blameless and harmless.

Those words crush my toes at times as I have gone awry of those harmless.

Those words crush my toes at times as I have gone awry of those commands. But, thankfully like a race, it's not how you start but how you finish. God's forgiveness is how any of us can remain blameless and harmless. It requires the mind of Christ, but when we do falter (unlike Jesus), the blood of Christ will cleanse a Christian (1John 1:7-

Do you stand before God at this time, blameless and harmless? Are you a blessing or a hindrance to others? We must all get right with God for ourselves and then so we can minister and help others to spiritual safety. Where do you stand?

Local 4-H'ers earn scholarships at state event

Donley County 4-H members Jacob Pigg and Jayson Pigg received 2012 Texas 4-H Opportunity Scholarships worth a combined $26,0000 last month in Lubbock at the Texas 4H State Roundup held at Texas Tech University.

The scholarships were two of 251 totaling more than $2 million awarded by the Texas 4-H Youth Development Foundation during the 2012 Opportunity Awards Ceremony time 11 in United Spirit Arena on the campus of Texas Tech University.

The scholarship recipients were selected from 361 who applied, said Jim Reeves, Executive Director for the Foundation which is the organi-zation responsible for coordinating the program and for resource develent for the Texas 4-H program He said the scholarship application process began last January.

The Foundation's scholarship gram has 50 donors including Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, San Antonio Livestock Show and Rodeo, Fort Worth Stock Show Syndicate, Southwestern Exposition & Livestock Show, Star of Texas Fair and Rodeo, and the Rio Grande Valley Livestock Show along with the Richard Wallrath Educational Foundation, individuals, corporations, foundations, producer associations, Texas AgriLife Extension Service professional associations, individual honorary funds and individual bequests.

The scholarships range from

"Scholarships are provided to assist 4-H members who will attend universities and colleges throughout the state," Reeves said. "The scholarship program is a celebration of achievement for 4-H members across Texas. It recognizes the development of qualities inherent to the Texas 4-H program
-- personal responsibility, civic responsibility and leadership. The program rewards hard work and dedication of young people involved in 4-H."

The Texas 4-H Youth Development Foundation Opportunity Scholarship Program is the nation's largest 4-H scholarship program. It began as a single $1,000 scholarship given by the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo

The Opportunity Scholarship Program was a highlight of the 2012
