Kidd said his granddaughter ran up to Johnson and he also started in Johnson's direction when the dog owned by a second neighbor, Steven Bento, hit him from behind.

"I had seen that dog earlier tugging on his chain," Kidd said. "He was probably loose for a little while because I hadn't heard him, and he would always go crazy when someone was outside."

City to create new tourism/development position

The City of Clarendon will create a new position to guide tourism and economic development issues following a called meeting of the Board of Aldermen last Tuesday.

City Administrator Lambert Little proposed the idea of a paid position that would work with city and the Clarendon Economic Development Corporation and give guidance to the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce. Little said the city has $20,000 budgeted for tourism promotion to help fund the position this fiscal year and said he expects the Clarendon EDC to help fund the position in the future.

The funds are the same money that the city has historically given to the Chamber of Commerce for tourism promotion, but the city cut funds to the Chamber last May. As envisioned, the new position would help get the Chamber better organized, and Little says he expects the Chamber would eventually contribute to the cost of the position.

2012: Citizens discuss water and gained valuable experience this season when they earned a trip to the Regional Tournament held last weekend in Levelland at South Plains College.

The final score of 28-52 was not indicative of the Lady Broncos' season and despite the loss to the Sudan Nettes, the ladies have a lot to be proud of and will be strong again next season.

The Lady Broncos got off to a great start with Sudan (who eventually won the Regional tournament over Pan-handle) in the game Friday night with an impressive intensity in the first half of the game. Just before the buzzer to end the first half, the Nettes went on a scoring run that gave them the 16-7 lead at the break. They played hard against Sudan and stayed determined throughout, but their shooting went cold in the second half allowing Sudan to grab the momentum and the win.

Storm batters county
Howardwick was also hard hit by hail with some vehicles there sustaining major damage, and Hedley received large hail also.

As the storm moved across the county, farm equipment was beaten by the hail, and Lelia Lake was hit heavily with vehicles taking heavy damage. Sheriff Blackburn said sirens were blown because of intense rotation seen in the storm near the city and that he did see one funnel form north of Hedley but it did not reach the ground. Clarendon officially received 1.32 of moisture from the storm, according to National Weather Service Cooperative Observer Tommie Saye; but unofficial reports of one inch to 2.5 inches were received. A Hedley resident reported 3.5 inches.

Senior Wes Williams' suitcase was a little heavier when he came home from Austin last weekend where he participated in the State Track Meet. For his efforts in the long jump, Williams brought home the bronze medal for third place in that event. His jump of 22' just missed the second place silver medal by one-half of an inch.

Jurors meeting in the Hall County Courthouse in Memphis spent the morning and part of the afternoon hearing the testimony of Donley County Sheriff Butch Blackburn as he recalled going to Babcock's residence on the morning of January 4, 2011, after the defendant called 911 and reported his four-year-old son was non-responsive.

Blackburn testified that the boy had been severely beaten, and jurors listened to more than two hours of a recording of the sheriff and Chief Deputy Randy Bond interrogating Babcock, who admitted to them that he had struck the boy in the head and stomach to discipline him but maintained that the boy's most severe injuries were self-inflicted.

Landrooff, King in runoff

The hotly contested race to represent Donley County and the rest of District 88 in the State House will go to a runoff after none of the four Republican candidates secured a majority of votes in last Tuesday's primary.

Incumbent Jim Landrooff was the top vote-getter district-wide with 34.44 percent, but he fell short of the 50 percent plus one needed to avoid a July 31 runoff. Now he will face Canadian school board president Ken King later this summer. King received 30.17 percent of the district vote, followed by Mac Smith with 18.24 percent and former representative Gary Walker with 17.13 percent.

Donley County Republicans saw the race a bit differently. Locally, King led with 189 votes, Smith had 116, Walker was third here with 106, and Landrooff was last with 90 votes.

A Lubbock woman broke down on the stand Tuesday, June 5, during Robert Babcock's capital murder trial as she remembered the four-year-old boy whom she had considered her son.

Heather Hill was a friend of Chance Mark Jones' family who had known him his whole life. But circumstances caused Jones to come to live with Hill when he was two years old, and her house was his home until Child Protective Services facilitated placing Jones with his biological father, Babcock, in Clarendon.

Through tears during part of her testimony, she asked the court to take down a larger than life-sized photo of Jones, which had been situated in front of the witness stand.

Aspirin May Reduce Liver Cancer Risk

A recent study reported in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute indicates that aspirin alone or when used with other non-aspirin drugs, called NSAIDs (nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs), resulted in a greater than 40 percent reduction in the risk of persons in the study developing liver cancer and an even greater reduction in the risk of death from liver cancer. Aspirin appeared to lower the risk of liver cancer to a greater degree than did the other NSAIDs that were evaluated. Cancer of the liver is often linked to viral hepatitis B and C infections.

It is thought by some cancer experts that NSAIDs such as aspirin and ibuprofen provide an anti-inflammatory and possibly a cancer protective action for liver cells in the body. While it may be too early to say, further research may later show that aspirin and these related medicines may indeed have a broader cancer preventative effect in the body. Aspirin has been studied extensively in persons who are carriers of hereditary colorectal cancer for its protective role. A dose of 600 mg per day has been associated with a significant reduction in such individuals.

Local kids meet new standards

Clarendon ISD students exceeded the new testing targets required by the federal government, but local school trustees are still calling for the Texas Legislature to revamp the accountability system.

Only 44 percent of school campuses and 28 percent of districts in Texas met the standard, but Clarendon and Hedley both did. Scores were based on student performance on the TAKS exam, which has now been replaced by the STAAR test.

"Our kids and teachers worked extra hard and meeting the standard makes us feel good," CISD Superintendent Monty Hysinger said. "But the stats ratchet up every year."

Local man seeks to bring people to Christ

Making Clarendon a lighthouse for the Lord is the mission of one local man as he erects white crosses and signs with inspired messages for all to see.

Jim Griffin says all his efforts are to be a witness for Jesus Christ and to plant seeds that people need in order to find their way to the Lord because the time is short.

"It's not for anyone's glory but God's," Griffin said, "and seeds are all the Holy Spirit needs to work with."

Divided city board okays $700k tax notes

The Clarendon Board of Aldermen voted 3-2 to authorize issuing $700,000 in tax revenue notes for water and sewer improvements during a called meeting Monday night.

The funds will be used to replace utility lines under several blocks of city streets that are scheduled to be repaved following a May bond election in which voters authorized borrowing a separate $700,000. The total project is now expected to cost about $1.4 million.

The streets were to have been paved this summer, but aldermen expressed concerns about the utility lines, causing City Administrator Lambert Little to come up with a plan to replace the lines. Little presented the project and the idea of using tax notes (a form of bonds that does not require voter approval) to pay for the extra work last Tuesday during the regular city meeting, but board members objected to issuing that much debt with citizen input.

State approves site for Ten Commandments marker

State officials notified Donley County Judge Jack Hall last week that they have approved a site location for the proposed Ten Commandments marker on the Courthouse Square.

The Texas Historical Commission approved locating the marker east of the Courthouse Annex in the second tree line from the street, placing it on the opposite side of the sidewalk from a 1976 Liberty Tree out of the main view of the 1890 Courthouse.

Backers of the marker had asked for it to be placed in front of the east face of the Courthouse in the same tree line, but the state preferred the Annex location that was proposed by Commissioner Donnie Hall and agreed to as an alternate site by the project's supporters.

Clarendon firemen save house

Quick action by the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department saved a house on West Third Street from being a total loss Tuesday morning.

Dispatchers paged out firemen at 8:26 a.m., and they were on the scene five minutes later. A total of five trucks and 11 firemen responded.

Clarendon Fire Chief Jeremy Powell said fire fighters noticed smoke coming from the attic vents and then saw flames coming from the kitchen window at the back of the house. The blaze was under control in about an hour.

The Josh Allred family was moving into the home this week and had part of their belongings there. Powell said boxes were on top of the kitchen stove when the electric company turned power onto the home Tuesday morning. No one was home at the time of the blaze.

CC Regents adopt $9.2 million budget

The Clarendon College Board of Regents adopted a $9.2 million budget for fiscal year 2013 during a called meeting last Thursday, August 30.

The new budget is an increase over last year's approved budget of $8.9 million. CC Dean of Administrative Services Annette Ferguson said the college adjusted some of its fees to make the budget work and said it deals with a loss of about $200,000 in state appropriations.

Board members said forward thinking helped make this year's budget easier to prepare.

"We started in better shape this year because we were planning a year ago," Regent Jerry Woodard said.

In 1970, 6.7 percent of those over 25 years of age had college degrees in Donley County. By 2010, 16.6 percent of adults here had completed college.

The percentage of adults with college degrees in Donley County was less than the national average of 27.9 percent in 2010. The college-educated rate here was less than the Texas average of 25.8 percent.

CC plans regional rodeo competition

One of the new faces at Clarendon College plans to make a big impact on the community this fall with a rodeo that is sure to be full of entertainment.

Cody Heck is no stranger to rodeos. Growing up in Perryton he started riding cutting horses when he was ten years old at the urging of a neighbor. His love of the competition would stay with him right up through the collegiate level.

Now in his first year as the rodeo coach at CC, Heck is busy preparing to host the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association (NIRA) competition here this October 25-27, and he says he is up to the task.

"This event will really boost our community and bring money to our town," Heck said. "It will also provide our students an opportunity to interact with the community."

City aldermen divide over taxes, spending

Members of a divided Clarendon Board of Aldermen aired their differences as the struggled with taxing and spending issues at their regular meeting last Tuesday, August 28.

A project to lay new water and sewer lines under streets that have been targeted for paving was the first issue to cause rifts at the meeting. In May, city voters approved issuing $700,000 in bonds to pave the streets, but city aldermen later decided to replace the utilities first.

City Administrator Lambert Little presented the board with a professional agreement with KSA Engineers for design work on the utilities and said he hopes to have pipes in the ground by the end of next June. Aldermen accepted the agreement with one may vote, that of Alderman Tommy Hill.

Little also asked the board to rescind a resolution that was passed earlier last month that authorized both the voter approved $700,000 street bonds and an additional $700,000 in tax notes for the utility replacements. The board had amended that resolution to require that any revenue the city gets from the sale of groundwater to Greenbelt Water Authority be applied to the debt. But Little said City Hall had discovered that it is improper to bind future councils in that way, and that such a requirement would be a budget decision from year to year. Aldermen Will Thompson, Terry Noble, and Abby Patten agreed to rescind the resolution, and Aldermen Hill and Jesus Hernandez voted against the measure.

County tax increase called for

If you're an average home owner in Donley County you will likely be paying almost a dollar a month more in taxes to support the county's budget for fiscal year 2013.

That tax increase will help support a $2 million budget that is $61,879 less than the one approved by Donley County Commissioners last year.

The new budget will require a total property tax rate of $0.598656 per $100 valuation, which is up from $0.573253 last year. The proposed rate would levy taxes of $299.33 on a $50,000 home. The Donley Appraisal District reports the average county homestead is valued at $32,717 this year.

The budget does not include any raises for county employees but does anticipate a 3.7 percent increase in health insurance premiums for employees.

Edes pleads guilty to Injury to a Child

A Clarendon woman pled guilty today to a felony charge related to the 2011 death of her grandson, Chance Mark Jones.

Gayle Edes will serve 90 days in the Donley County Jail, and a ten-year state jail sentence was probated as a condition of her plea agreement. If she had been found guilty by a jury, Edes could have faced up to 99 years or life in prison.

In January, Donley County Grand Jury indicted Edes for the first degree felony of Injury to a Child by Omission, and court records alleged that on January 3, 2011, the accused intentionally or knowingly, by omission, caused serious bodily injury to four-year-old Chance Mark Jones by her failure to get medical attention for the boy and that she had assumed care, custody, or control of the child at that time.

Edes son, Robert Babcock, had custody of Jones for just a few weeks before, according to local authorities, he began abusing the boy on December 24, 2010, and continued abusing him until January 4, 2011. On that date, Babcock called emergency personnel to his residence near Clarendon where they found Jones unresponsive.

CC enrollment slips but growth projected

Enrollment is down for the fall semester at Clarendon College, but CC officials say they are already making plans to address changing student demographics for the spring semester.

Following the 12th day of class last Thursday, CC's enrollment was at 1,253, down 6.4 percent or 95 students compared to the fall 2011 semester.

The semester credit hours, or the total number of hours students enroll in, however, are up from 13,107 to 13,118. This increase in credit hours shows while the college may have fewer students those who are taking courses are enrolled in a greater number of hours.

The college is also down by 3.6 percent in the number of contact hours this semester – a figure that determines CC's state funding.

Accident claims life of local woman

A Donley County woman lost her life in a tragic ranch accident last Tuesday, September 11.

Trista Shipp, age 63, was unloading cattle panels from a stock trailer after 11 a.m. near County Road I off State Hwy. 70 when the load shifted and pinned her against the trailer, Sheriff Butch Blackburn said.

The sheriff said there were nine panels in the 16-foot stock trailer, leaned against the left side.

"It appears that she got in to start unloading and they shifted, pinning her to the right side of the trailer," Blackburn said. She was found by her son later that afternoon. Emergency personnel were called to the scene about 3 p.m., and she was pronounced dead at the scene.

Three businesses robbed

The Donley County Sheriff's Department is investigating three breaks that occurred at local businesses early Tuesday morning, September 25.

Sheriff Butch Blackburn says West Texas Gas was broken into about midnight and WootWick's PitStop and Country Bloomers Flower Shop were also hit.

At West Texas Gas and the flower shop, the crooks broke out a glass door and took the cash registers from the businesses. At WootWicks, a glass door was shattered, but nothing was found to be missing.

The sheriff said the crimes took place before 3 a.m. and were discovered when Amarillo Globe-News carrier Ruby Calloway saw one of the broken doors.

Blackburn urged all local businesses to leave their cash drawers open to show crooks that there is no money inside, and he asked anyone with information about these crimes to call his office at 874-3531.

Cookoff draws big crowd

A new bar has been set after the 18th annual CC. Charles Goodnight Chuckwagon Cookoff attracted a huge crowd of participants and attendees last Saturday, and last year's winning cookoff team left again with the bean pot.

Officials with the Saints' Roost Museum, which sponsors the event, said Monday they fed more than 700 people, which is among the highest – if not the highest – in the cookoff's history. By comparison, the museum fed 550 last year. The number of wagons was also up with 18 registered and 17 showing up to compete at the event.

"As far as I recall this is the best we've ever done," said Museum Board Member Lindy Craft. "We had a lot of people from out of town, particularly Amarillo and Pampa, and we had a bigger trade show."

City holds line on taxes in proposed budget

A divided Clarendon Board of Aldermen threw the brakes on a proposed tax increase for city property owners and eliminated an expansion of health benefits for city employees last week following two contentious public hearings held earlier.

City officials were meeting again as the Enterprise went to press Tuesday night where they were expected to formally adopt the budget for fiscal year 2013 and maintain the current ad valorem tax rate of 65 cents per $100 valuation. Visit www.ClarendonLive.com for the latest information.

In a budget workshop on September 20, Mayor Larry Hicks told the board it was time to make their final decisions about the tax rate and the budget so city officials could draft the final document that was to be considered this week.

City puts Little on probation

The Clarendon Board of Aldermen placed City Administrator Lambert Little on probation for three months following an evaluation of his performance last Tuesday, September 25.

The board met behind closed doors for more than an hour and a half to conduct the administrator's annual evaluation before calling Little into their meeting on the second floor of City Hall. Citizens left downstairs could hear yelling from Alderman Tommy Hill and later from Mr. Little before the board reconvened in open session after another hour and 15 minutes.

When the board reconvened, Mayor Larry Hicks asked if the aldermen wanted to take action following the closed session discussion. Alderman Abby Patten said she expected to see the city be run more effectively in terms of finances, employees, and resources.

Clarendon woman gets five years for theft

A Clarendon woman will spend five years in the state prison after she stole tens of thousands of dollars from her employer over one and a half years.

Laura Hommel King pled guilty to the third degree felony of Aggravated Theft and agreed to let District Judge Stuart Messer determine her punishment. She faced jail time from two to ten years and a possible fine of up to $10,000.

District Attorney Luke Inman's first witness during the punishment hearing was Johnny Floyd, owner of Floyd's Automotive Supply and 287 Tire & Tube, who had employed King as a bookkeeper beginning in August 2010.

Floyd said he slowly noticed cash missing and then noticed more money missing as time went on. He eventually got a new bookkeeper and his former bookkeeper and they spent 30 days unraveling a pattern of theft that they believed totaled nearly $75,000. Of that amount, $51,902.81 was verified beyond a doubt.

Sheriff investigates report of vandalism

Vandalism to a Clarendon residence on Carhart Street continues to be investigated by the Donley County Sheriff's Office this week after it was first discovered last Monday, October 1.

Sheriff Butch Blackburn said the residents of the home called his office about 7:30 that morning to report a derogatory and threatening message was on their porch. The sheriff said the message appeared to have been hand painted.

Blackburn said his office has not received any other reports of similar vandalism, which is being investigated as a hate crime due to the sexual orientation of the victims.

"There have been no other reports of anything along these lines in several years," Blackburn said.

Aldermen set performance goals for administrator

The Clarendon Board of Aldermen gave City Administrator Lambert Little several goals to work towards if he is to get back in their good graces last week.

Following a closed session that lasted more than an hour, aldermen gave the administrator suggestions about his job during last week's regular city meeting on Tuesday, October 9.

Little had asked for "measurable goals," but aldermen led by Abby Patten and Tommy Hill mostly discussed subjective areas for improvement, such as wanting the city to be "run more effectively and efficiently" and asking for better "day to day operations."

Officials warn about cases of distemper

Local veterinarian Dr. Guy Ellis reports that there have been several cases of neurologic disease in raccoons recently in and around the Clarendon vicinity that has been diagnosed as canine distemper.

Dr. Ellis urges everyone to reduce exposure to wild animals and vaccinate pets to prevent this deadly disease.

Canine distemper is a highly contagious and sometimes fatal disease that is seen in dogs worldwide. Though its incidence has diminished greatly due to vaccination, distemper cases and outbreaks are still seen sporadically.

Canine distemper is caused by the canine distemper virus. This virus can also infect several other species including ferrets and wild animals such as coyotes, foxes, wolves, skunks, and raccoons. Animals usually become infected by direct contact with virus particles from the secretions of other infected animals (generally via inhalation). Indirect transmission (i.e., carried on dishes or other objects) is not common because the virus does not survive for long in the environment. The virus can be shed by dogs for several weeks after recovery.

Howardwick, which increased its sales tax rate last fall, posted an increase of 26.28 percent for the month with an allocation of $1,555.09; and that city is running 25.22 percent for the year-to-date at $14,134.31.

City Aldermen discuss water system issues

The Clarendon Board of Aldermen discussed issues facing the city's water distribution system when engineer Clayton Scales presented early findings of a $25,000 study.

Scales, representing KSA Engineers, found several causes of concern including the east side of town being fed only by one eight-inch line connected to Greenbelt's main 14-inch line. Scales said a long forgotten plan from 1981 would have addressed that and other issues but was never acted upon, possibly due to a lack of funding at the time.

KSA's assessment includes a computer model that can run the city's waterworks through a variety of simulations. Scales said the model shows that under peak flow situations, some parts of town do not have the proper water pressure.

Greenbelt awards contracts for wells

Greenbelt Water Authority has awarded contracts worth about $890,000 to drill wells on the north side of Clarendon and build a 14-inch pipeline to carry groundwater to the authority's filter plant.

General Manager Bobbie Kidd said the Greenbelt Board awarded the final contracts last week after the authority received confirmation that $1.5 million in bond funds had been deposited in Greenbelt's account.

Bids on the project came in well below estimates that OJD Engineers had projected. The pipeline was expected to cost $770,000 and came in at $588,481 and will be built by Amarillo Utility Construction. 4M Drilling from Claude will dig the wells at a cost of about $130,000, which was expected to be $152,000. And electrical work will be done for $170,000 by Ray Electric of Amarillo.

With the extra funds available Kidd said the authority will consider increasing the size of some piping connecting five new wells to the new 14-inch line, and the authority is also exploring securing some water resources in addition to the city's groundwater.

Ceremonies honor service of local veterans

Randall County Judge Ernie Houdashell capped off a weekend of local Veterans Day observations Monday night before a crowd of about 200 people in the Clarendon College Harned Sisters Fine Arts Auditorium.

Houdashell, a Hedley native, praised the number of college students who are veterans of the American armed forces and talked about the sacrifices that veterans have made.

Bringing the speech closer to home, Houdashell related the story of Adrian Youngblood, another native of Donley County, and his service during the Vietnam War.

Men and women like Youngblood are heroes, Houdashell said, despite the fact that many of them rarely or never talk about their time in combat.

City okays 5 percent trash hike

Garbage rates will soon be going up after the Clarendon Board of Aldermen approved Ordinance 420 during last week's city meeting on November 13.

City Administrator Lambert Little said the rate hike will be a five percent increase on all accounts and will generate about $10,000 per year for the city.

Little said the sanitation services ought to be a net revenue stream for the city but should at least break even. Maintenance costs are rising in the sanitation department, he said, due to aging equipment that is breaking down at the same time.

"We cannot maintain our equipment right now," Little said. "Last year we bought and re-built a used truck with grant money. We desperately need two more trucks, but they cost about $200,000 each and have life spans of about 10 years.

Thanksgiving meal draws 233

Organizers of the fifth annual Community Thanksgiving dinner at the Clarendon School Cafeteria say the event fed a total of 233 people with no charge this year.

Attendance was slightly down this year in terms of participants and helpers, volunteer Laura Paul told the Enterprise, but everyone still had a good time.

City aldermen debate hiring, firing powers

Raised voices and pointed fingers were the order of the evening when the Clarendon Board of Aldermen met last Tuesday, November 27.

Of the six items on the board's agenda, five items were discussed, and one was acted on – accepting the resignation of Alderman Terry Noble, who is moving to Pampa.

Issues with the city's employee policy manual took up much of the discussion for the night with Alderman

Tommy Hill opening by disagreeing with Estlack and saying he believed "seven heads are better than one" and said the city's hiring record "isn't worth a flip."

City battles water line breaks

Quick action by city employees repaired a broken water line last Tuesday, December 4, but a loss of pressure during the repair resulted in a "Boil Water Notice" being issued temporarily for Clarendon residents.

A contractor rehabilitating a city water well site struck a six-inch line while digging a slush pit just before 5 p.m., and the City of Clarendon Public Works Department responded immediately by notifying employees that they were needed, arranging for the necessary equipment and parts and making the necessary "line locate" call to DIG-TESS (Texas Excavation Safety System), the organization which locates all underground utilities before excavations start.

City officials said the pipe was so damaged that removal and replacement of a section of the line was necessary. Because the city's water system has only a few isolation valves, fire hydrants in the area had to be opened to relieve the water pressure. When pressure was reduced, the excavation around the damaged pipe could be pumped out and the repair completed.

Aldermen vote 3-1 to fire Little

City Administrator Lambert Little was fired by the Clarendon Board of Aldermen on a 3-1 vote last night.

After a heated discussion regarding Mr. Little's job performance, Aldermen Tommy Hill, Jesus Hernandez, and Abby Patten vote to terminate him immediately. Alderman Will Thompson opposed the measure.

The board tabled discussion of appointing a replacement for former alderman Terry Noble, who resigned November 27.
