City hikes trash rates in face of rising costs

Garbage rates in the City of Clarendon will be going up eight percent as the city tries to keep up with rising costs of the service, and water rates may be going up soon also.

At their regular meeting last Tuesday, the Board of Aldermen approved the trash increase, which City Hall says will amount to about $1.39 per month for most residential customers.

The city must haul its garbage to the Memphis landfill. The City of Memphis has raised its landfill rates, and local officials also point to rising costs of labor and transportation. The city hopes to at least break even with this increase.

The increase will take effect April 1, 2014. The city last increased trash rates in 2012.

City leaders also began consideration of raising and restructuring water rates last week.

Greenbelt Water Authority General Manager Bobbie Kidd told aldermen that the wholesale cost the city pays for water has gone up several times since Clarendon last adjusted rates in 2009. And, Kidd said, at that point the city did not raise rates but only lowered the base usage from 5,000 gallons to 2,000 gallons.

Drought restrictions are also hurting the city because customers use less water, which impacts the city's bottom line.

"Conservation is going to cause drastic changes in water rates," Kidd told city leaders. "You have the same costs, but you have less product to sell."

City Hall was going to propose an across-the-board water rate increase; but after visiting with Kidd, city leaders asked City Secretary Machiel Covey to put together a proposal for a tiered rate structure where the biggest water users would pay a greater cost.

Alderman Will Thompson said the tiered structure is common around the state, and city leaders said they wanted to avoid raising water rates on those who use very little water.

City leaders will also consider implementing some type of small commercial rate for businesses that use less than 1,000 gallons per month.

The water rate issue will be considered again on the city's April 7 agenda.

In other city business, aldermen canceled their May election and declared the following unopposed candidates for the board as elected: John Lockhart and Aldermen Larry Jeffers and Beverly Burrow.

The board also approved making Librarian Jerri Ann Shields a part time employee with no city benefits temporarily at her request as she deals with a family health issue, and the board received an update on the bid process for a new city trash truck.

Judgement day

FFA and 4H members judge livestock at Clarendon College last Saturday as part of the college's annual invitational judging contest. A total of 1,917 students registered for the contest, and attendance was estimated at more than 2,200 when sponsors and parents were included. Local restaurants were extremely busy that morning and during lunch as the contest more than doubled the population of the City of Clarendon.

Health fair to be held this week at CC

The 2014 Donley County Health Fair will be Thursday, April 3, from 8:30 to 1:00 in the Bairfield Activity Center on the Clarendon College campus.

Northwest Health Care System will be paying for the processing of tests for cholesterol- LDL/HDL and triglycerides, but you must provide your mailing address. Free medical testing will be available in the following areas: blood pressure, pulse, oxygen, glucose/blood sugar, balance, glaucoma, cholesterol- LDL/HDL, and PSA's. Additional services and information may be available at the fair.

Health fairs are excellent ways to offer screenings for some health problems like diabetes and high blood pressure. Catching them early can help reduce the risks for costly complications. Both diabetes and high blood pressure can go undetected for up to ten years.

Health fairs can also raise awareness of issues like preventing heat exhaustion, heat stroke and even skin cancer. Preventing or delaying the onset of chronic health problems can produce significant savings for many insured employee groups. Thanks to all the generous sponsors, these services will be offered at no cost to the public.

The fair is being sponsored by Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service, Clarendon Family Medical Center, Northwest Health Care System, Mike's Pharmacy, Pilgrim Bank, Clarendon College, Donley County Memorial VFW Post #7782 Ladies Auxiliary, and the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce.

Donations are still being accepted at the Extension Office to help with the expense and keeping it a free event for the attendees.

For more information about the 2014 Health Fair please contact the Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service at 874-2141.

Federal government lists Lesser Prairie Chicken as threatened

By Neena Satija, The Texas Tribune

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announced Thursday that the lesser prairie chicken will be listed as "threatened" under the Endangered Species Act.

The decision means special permission is required for economic development activity across the bird's prairie grassland habitat that spans five states — Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado — and violators could face penalties under federal law.

"We can't ignore the mounting evidence that the prairie ecosystem which supports the chicken and so many other species and communities is in trouble," said Dan Ashe, the federal agency's director. He noted that the prairie chicken population is at an all-time low of fewer than 18,000 birds, according to the latest survey.

The decision disappointed officials in all five states where the bird roams. They had worked together on a conservation plan for the bird and hoped to avoid such a listing. But Ashe said that anyone participating in that plan — a list that includes agricultural landowners, oil and gas drillers, electric transmission companies, wind energy companies and others — would be exempt from the harsh penalties that the Endangered Species Act calls for if threatened animals are harmed.

All such participants could hurt the prairie chicken by eradicating their habitat and providing more tall structures for predators to perch on, but they have agreed to either conserve existing grassland or pay into a fund if they will disturb habitat.

That exemption drew sharp criticism from wildlife advocacy groups, who said it riddled the listing decision with loopholes.

Debate over how to save the bird and continue operating has divided the oil and gas industry as well as many Texas officials. While Texas Parks and Wildlife and Gov. Rick Perry's office support the conservation plan developed by the five states, Comptroller Susan Combs has spoken out against it. Combs supports a different approach to protecting the bird that the government is currently evaluating. That approach also has the support of Environmental Defense Fund and many of the biggest oil and gas companies, including ExxonMobil.

Remembering Marjorie Main, in love and war

Folks with dim memories of World War II recall the “coming home” of troops, and attendant triumphal celebrations that reverberated around the globe. Believers in democracy – weary of Movietone newsreels’ gory war scenes at movie theaters, dismal commentaries on radio and troubling newspaper accounts—were ready for news of loved ones returning home – a place, someone said, where when you go there, they have to let you in.

In the homeland, folk bought war bonds, accepted rationing and endured ultimate sacrifices in a unified effort requiring wide participation. For more than any other American military engagement, we stood stoically united. As a third-grader when the US prevailed, I have faint memories of President Franklin Roosevelt’s bolstering radio speeches. I regret that his death occurred mere weeks before declaration of victory.

Perhaps no one splashed wider smiles in this dark era than actress Marjorie Main (1890-1975), a well-known movie character who never thought of herself as a “pin-up”...

the idle american
by don newbury

When we had little reason to smile during America’s half-decade of war years, she teamed up with Wallace Beery on the silver screen as a crusty, “rough and ready,” pipe-smoking actress who made us laugh.

Later, the laughs became guffaws as she partnered with Percy Kilbride in 10 Ma and Pa Kettle movies (forerunners of TV’s All in the Family). Her homeliness in each movie moved her ever lower on the “pin-up beauty scale.” Marjorie’s name never appeared on the glamour list headed by Hedy Lamarr, Yvonne DeCarlo, Joan Leslie and Rita Hayworth.

These stars’ images, outfitted in swimsuits considered dowdy by fashionistas today, appeared on many fighter planes. Had Main been a “fuselage feature,” she’d have been shown in a high-necked dress and a “don’t-you-dare” scowl, her rolling pin raised high....

With this brief backdrop in place, history reveals that Marjorie—or Mrs. Kettle, or the Indiana actress who quickly changed her last name to avoid embarrassing her preacher father—was named “Occupation Girl” in a spirited election conducted by the 96th Infantry Division, nicknamed “Deadeyes.” (They joked about electing the “girl they’d most like to occupy an island with.”)

The war was over, but the Division was still in place, awaiting the arrival of troop ships to go home. While waiting, they “ballyhooed” the contest, with guys in its 382nd Regiment and 361st Field Artillery pushing for Miss Main.

Lubbock’s Choc Hutcheson, who edited the 382nd regimental newspaper, remembers the wild-fire movement favoring Miss Main. (Even the unit’s adopted dog mascot put his paw print on her ballot.) Hey, it was a way to pass time in the Philippines for troops who’d waged bitter battles on Leyte and Okinawa....

When the actress heard that she’d won—relegating Miss Leslie and Miss DeCarlo to distant second and third-place finishes—she was delighted. She promised to greet them upon their return to the states, with assurances that she would NOT be wearing a swimsuit.

She “made good” on her promise when the unit was state-side, even though the best-laid plans of the brass were tossed aside. The “rough, tough gal for a rough, tough outfit” spurned officers’ request to join them for a formal dinner.

Instead, she insisted on dining with the troops, first serving them in the chow line. She was quickly replaced on the line, however, when it was discovered she was plopping TWO steaks on the plate of each GI....

No matter. This gave her more time to move around the mess hall, delighting the troops with her gravelly-voiced “whoops” – all of ‘em upward.

They were all as one – troops and officers – recounting the ad campaign back in the Philippines that led to the landslide vote.

It was “thumbs up” for the slogans – many of them plastered on military vehicles – “Remember the Main,” “Pistol-Packin’ Momma,” “As Main Goes So Goes the Division” and “Reminds Me of Mom.”...

Indeed she made movie-goers think of moms, with what much of her humor wafting from the kitchen.

In her Ma and Pa Kettle Back on the Farm movie, a city guy paid a visit, requesting a coddled egg for breakfast.

Bumfuzzled, she did an end run, explaining that recently she “broke her coddler.” Such homespun humor endeared her to a nation....

The continuing art of being happy

Well, last week’s column was well received, and even a few folks reported that they would like to hear more about the art of being happy. Granted, we in the Texas Panhandle region have a big advantage when it comes to being happy. The big blue sky, pristine air (except when New Mexico or Oklahoma is passing overhead during a windstorm), and our lack of traffic snafus present us with a very high quality life. Additionally, the Western values of our friends and neighbors make for mostly pleasant conversation and social intercourse.

So, without further ado, here we go. Quick thinking is associated with positive feelings. Those of us who pride ourselves on being fast readers and quick witted usually have a more positive mood. In a recent study, published in Psychological Science, it was reported that happiness is more commonly associated with faster cognitive thoughts. While many folks in the Texas panhandle may not be well educated, we are very adept when it comes to adapting to external problems and circumstances. Folks in this area are sharp even though we may talk a little funny.

Job satisfaction can impact our happiness. Several recent studies, including an examination published in the Journal of Occupational and Organizational Psychology linked happiness with work to overall happiness and life satisfaction. Yet another study conducted by the University of Aberdeen revealed that job fulfillment was ranked as one of the most critical factors to overall well-being and happiness.

Amazingly, there are allegedly over 18 different types of smiles, according to “those who know these things.” These very same scientists have classified expressions that range from an amused smile to an embarrassed smile (which yours truly is good at). Anyway, it doesn’t really matter which smile we see, just seeing smiles makes us happy. So, we need to smile more.

Foods can also make us happier. One of the keys to a quick boost of happiness may lie in our diets. Foods like nuts, chicken, and milk contain higher levels of tryptophan, which can lead to elevated production of serotonin, a chemical that helps induce calm and happiness.

During adulthood, marriage protects against declines in happiness. However, all family structures bring their own joy: Although childless married couples ranked as the happiest in a recent study conducted in the United Kingdom, the survey’s results also revealed that mothers are the most content with life overall – as compared to any other group. So, if you know any single mothers whose children have left home, give me a call? Romance could be in my near future.

On a more positive note (which is the whole point of this column) getting some extra shuteye can help us retain more positive thoughts. In an observation of sleep-deprived college students, one experiment found that the students remembered fewer positive words from a list of words they had previously memorized. It works the other way, too, as a 2013 Cornell study found that a happy outlook on life will get you a better night’s sleep.

Why is the happiest country in Europe? For the second year in a row, Denmark was crowned the earth’s happiest country, according to the United Nation’s World Happiness Report. The U.S., on the other hand, ranked 17th, falling six places from last year’s spot. How can this be? Do we need more guns? Or do we need to invade some of these happier countries. That will dampen their spirits! Personally, I suspect that our inept Congress must accept some of the blame for this despicable state of affairs. Of course, some of the fault should go to the tea party types, who seem to think they are misunderstood and unfairly maligned.

Practicing gratitude can help us lead a happier life. When we are thankful, we are more likely to be a happier person, according to researchers the University of California, Berkeley.

the quick, the dead, & fred
by fred gray

Expressing gratitude has also been proven to generate a more optimistic outlook on life, and can even help lower stress.

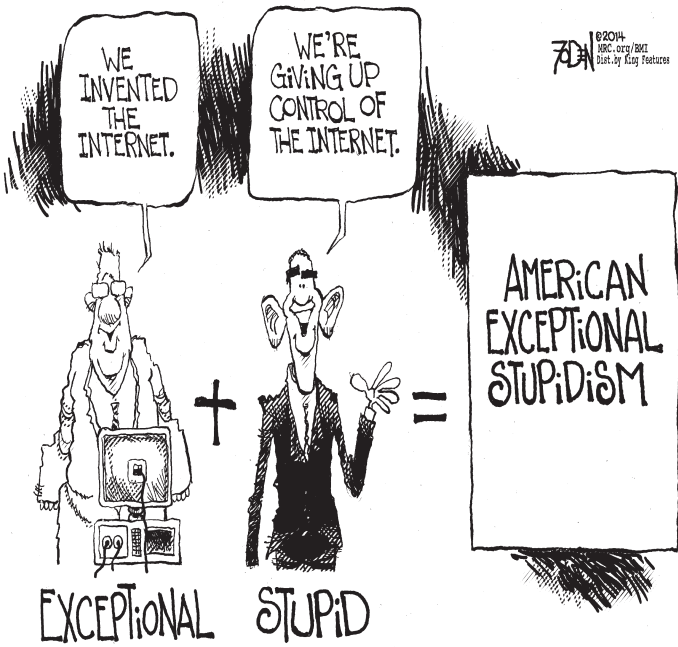

Pets can make us happier. When we pet our furry friends, oxytocin (better known as the “snuggle hormone”) releases in our brains, making us instantly happier. Oxytocin also helps to reduce stress levels and lower our blood pressure. If our spouses are on the furrier side, petting them can also have the same benefits.

We are happier in the mornings. When the sun rises, so does our mood. A Cornell study found that the brightest periods of the day are when we first get out of bed. Researchers analyzed the tweets of 2.4 million people around the world, and found peaks in positive messages at the start of the day, then the tones grew more negative as the day passed.

Our happiness minimally depends upon external circumstances like owning a house or car. Our happiness rarely depends upon our bank accounts or our physical attractiveness (which is a good thing since I resemble the south end of a north-bound mule), primarily because we adapt to most situations rather quickly. “Ultimately, whether we drive a battered truck or a Lexus to work; whether we have hypertension or asthma, our ability to be happier doesn’t vary much,” according to Sonja Lyubomirsky, author of The How of Happiness: A Scientific Approach to Getting the Life you Want.

The older we get, the happier we are with ordinary moments. Researchers at Dartmouth College and the University of Pennsylvania surveyed participants on how extraordinary and ordinary experiences contributed to our overall happiness and discovered as we get older, it is the little things that make a difference. No matter the age, extraordinary moments always created a spike in happiness, but older adults were much more satisfied with the simple experiences. Older folks saw these tiny moments as more self-defining than younger folks.

So, don’t worry, be happy.

Tea Party has reason for unhappiness

The Tea Party is a group of people from all walks of life in every town in our great nation. The vision of the Tea Party is a nation where personal freedom is cherished and all Americans are treated equally in their quest to pursue the American Dream.

Consider what has made America as great as it has become. In the past, the Constitution was the law of the land. Consider how that has changed. We used to have a limited government, and now we have more regulations to hinder growth.

The Tea Party people don’t like Obamacare. Statistics show better than 60 percent of our citizens don’t like Obamacare. Tea Party people don’t like and talk against the excessive spending of our government. Our $17 Trillion of national debt is to be paid by our grand and great-grandchildren. The Tea Party would like to see an economic growth that would encourage large and small businesses to need to hire additional people.

Several years ago, several of us attended a Tea Party gathering. A request was made that any person who served in the military please stand and be recognized. It was great to see 25 to 35 percent of those in attendance were veterans.

*What unites the Tea Party movement is the set of core principles that brought America together at its founding, that kindled the American Dream in the hearts of those who struggled to build our nation, and made the United States of America the greatest, most successful country in world history.

Fred, just what is wrong with the above that causes you to opine against the Tea Party people? If Republicans are unhappy, do you suppose it’s because our nation has changed from what has made us great in the past?

Tom Stauder, Clarendon

CC to host NASA Engineer Jerry Woodfill

By Ashlee Estlack

Clarendon College will be hosting NASA Engineer Jerry Woodfill on Monday, April 14, for the motivational program "Failure is Not An Option."

Woodfill has been employed with NASA in Houston for more than 48 years, and at the onset of the lunar landing program, he managed the spacecraft warning systems and was monitoring spacecraft Eagle's descent when Neil Armstrong landed on the Moon.

On April 13, 1970, Woodfill was monitoring Apollo 13's warning system when the vehicle exploded. His system was the first alert of the life-threatening malfunction depicted in the Tom Hanks-Ron Howard movie "Apollo 13."

For his role in the rescue of Apollo 13, Woodfill shared the Presidential Medal of Freedom as a member of the Apollo 13 Mission Operations Team. Presently, Woodfill is the Technical Managers' Representative for NASA JSC's Software, Robotics and Simulation Division.

"We're expecting that our students and the community will really benefit from this," CC Dean of Students Tex Buckhaults said.

Mr. Woodfill's auto-biographical program emphasizes his NASA experience and highlights his personal accounts of overcoming fear, frustration, and failure. He will demonstrate the ultimate good that comes from perseverance.

Students and community members will have two opportunities to hear Mr. Woodfill speak on April 14. He will first speak at 9 AM and then again at 10:30 AM in the Harned Sisters Auditorium on the Clarendon College campus in Clarendon.

APD assisting California law enforcement with new scam

On Friday, March 21, at approximately 8:30 p.m., Amarillo officers were contacted by the Belvedere Police Department, in Belvedere, Calif., in regards to a scam that one of their citizens had fell victim to.

Officers were advised the victim in California had sent money to an address in Amarillo after receiving a phone call about their grandchild being in jail in Mexico. As the Belvedere Police Department investigated they were able to determine the phone call was a scam and alerted our department.

Officers then went to an address in southwest Amarillo to follow up. There they located a 70 year old female resident who invited officers to come in and speak with her. The resident did confirm to officers that she had received an envelope and was to take the contents of the envelope and repackage it and send it on to another address in Tulsa, Okla. She did show officers an envelope that she had address and placed the money as per her instructions.

The resident told officers she had received a phone call from someone claiming to be a "Federal Officer" and that he was trying to help her claim her "European Lottery" winnings of $10 million dollars.

The "Federal Officer" told her that she would be receiving an envelope with several thousands of dollars in it and that the money was to help the resident pay her taxes and handling of the $10 million. She will go into the cellar, and the others will be gathered together in a bag to take with us.

The popular weather-guy in the 1960s-70s, whose name eludes me, recommended, no, demanded, every-one pack an emergency bag for your car that began with a jar of peanut butter and included a box of crackers, a thermos of water, a blanket and a candle with matches sealed in a jar. He promised you could survive for days with those supplies. I think you could survive today with those items.

Our condolences to the family of Vernon Byars, who passed away last week. Vernon was very active in the community and will be missed. Please pray for his wife, Greta. God bless you.

Be prepared before severe weather hits

We received some rain last week at our house, the best guess is about 0.20 inches, which helps. With three rain gauges the answer to "how much" should be clear, but one had a crack, one was turned upside down to prevent a crack, the third had a big dead bug and dirt inside, so we guessed and continue to pray for rain.

How does your storm shelter look inside? If it is like mine, it needs cleaning.

According to the severe weather preparedness website, they recommend an emergency bag you can grab at a moment's notice that contains essential items for your family. That should include a flashlight with good batteries, medication, formula, bottles, and diapers for a baby, and anything you may need for your family.

They recommend 72 hours of emergency food that does not require refrigeration or cooking; enough water to drink; blankets; a battery-powered radio; a manual can opener; eating utensils; and anything else you may need for survival.

In our case we would include food for Buffy the Wonder Dog. These things cannot be grabbed. You must plan. For us the water and food

Church of the Nazarene
Attention: Mr. Joe Shadle & Youth Group
PO Box 790 Clarendon, TX 79226

Dear Joe and Friends,

Thank you for your hard work raising funds for Water for LIFE. What an encouragement you are to us! Providing clean water is more than a mission outreach. It opens the door for us to share the "Living Water" – Jesus Christ – and change lives for eternity. We are truly grateful for your help.

Students, we love to hear from dynamic young people who love Jesus. We are thrilled that at your age you are already learning the joy that comes from helping others through serving God. It is a wonderful feeling knowing you've helped someone else, and the best part is you are literally sharing God's love with them too.

We pray God's abundant blessings upon you. Jesus thinks you are very special and we do too!

"For I know the plans I have for you," declares the LORD, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future..." Jeremiah 29:11

Sincerely,
James Robison

City Hall News

It’s that time of year again to get your pets City Tags. The 2014 tags are available at City Hall for $1.00. The City tags are valid from January 1 to December 31 every year. You must bring proof of current rabies vaccination. If you have livestock in City limits, you are required to have a livestock permit. The livestock permit is $20 and is valid for one year from date of purchase. Come by City Hall to get an application and a copy of the livestock ordinance.

Come in and take advantage of our draft program. You will receive your bill on the first and the draft will automatically come out on the seventh of each month. That gives you a week to review your bill. All you need to do is to fill out a draft approval. Many have taken advantage of this option. You can have it removed from draft with a simple phone call. Call City Hall at 874-3438 if you have any questions.

Be sure to keep your contact information current with us so that if we see problems with your account, like excessive usage caused by a leak, we can notify you.

Last Tuesday, City Council finalized the Street Project plans and gave approved to the engineer to start the bid process. We will be doing the base work ourselves and contracting the curb and chip seal keeping all of the original widths of the street. We recently purchased a street packer and along with the zipper we will be able to complete the base work in-house. This is the project that was approved by the citizens through a bond election. The bond was for $700,000 and the City has other funds available if needed. We are very excited to get started on this project and are hoping for a start date of April 1 and completion by fall. The plans are available at City Hall for citizens to review at any time.

The Water/Sewer line replacement project has been completed. It didn’t fix all of the problems but it made a substantial improvement. We still have a project we will be starting soon on Fifth Street. It will go from Collinson to Bugbee and will replace 6” cast iron water lines with 6” PVC. We are also adding two fire plugs to this line. The City recently purchased a boring tool called a “Hog” that will go under the bricks and pavement which will save time and improve the appearance of repairs under the streets.

City Council meetings are the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month at 7:00 p.m. in City Hall. All citizens are welcome to attend and are given the opportunity to address Council on city matters. Call City Hall for details. The City Council meeting scheduled for March 11 has been cancelled due to Council Members being out of town for spring break.

Watson advances to Regional Golf Tournament

By Sandy Anderberg
Golfer Zach Watson put together eighteen great holes of golf in the District golf tournament in Borger.

Watson outlasted the less than ideal conditions and turned in an 88, which was one of four scores under 90 on the day.

Watson will be competing in the Regional Tournament for the second straight year, which will be held April 14-15 at Lake Ridge Country Club in Lubbock.

Watson finished in fourth place overall according to coach Gary Jack, but was the number two medalist that qualified.

"The other members of our team was Izzy Osburn, Blaine Ellis, and Riley Shadle," Jack said. "They all did pretty good in very tough conditions and our team finished sixth out of eleven teams."

Watson will compete in the Amarillo Relays Golf Tournament this Friday and Saturday at Amarillo Country Club and Tascosa Country Club in a pre-regional tournament.

"This will be a good warm-up tournament of Regionals," Jack said.

If Watson plays well at the regional meet, he will earn a trip to state that will take place April 30-May 1 in Austin.

Lady Broncos notch two wins

By Sandy Anderberg

The Lady Broncos made short work of two district opponent last week to give them and 9-2 overall record and 4-1 in district play.

Their first win came against Gruver on Tuesday at 19-4 on Gruver's brand new softball field. According to head coach Gary Jack; the pitchers did a great job.

"Camra Smith pitched well for a couple of innings and then Briley Chadwick came in for a couple. The Brooke Martin finished up," Jack said. Haley Ferguson caught for us and did very good."

The Lady Broncos' offense was on line as well.

"Skyler White hit the ball very well along with Taylor DeGrate, Audra Thomas, Taylor Gaines, and Savannah Topper," Jack said. "Gaines, Smith, DeGrate, and Sterling King all played well defensively."

The ladies went ahead and played another game against Gruver and defeated them 4-0.

"Brooke pitched along with Taylor D," Jack said. "Sterling did a good job of catching and Karlee Adams, Shelby Baxter, and Martin hit well." The Lady Broncos played McLean on Saturday and defeated them 16-1. According to Jack, Martin took the mound first and Chadwick cleaned up.

"Skyler continues to hit very well in every game," Jack said. "And Haley did a good job catching and also hit the ball well. Gaines, Chadwick, and Topper hit well and Thomas also had a big hit for us."

Jack said that several Lady Broncos made very good defensive plays. White, Gaines, Topper, King, Smith and DeGrate did a good job defensively for the Lady Broncos according to Jack.

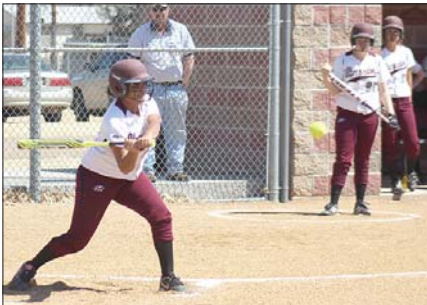

"We are now tied for first place in district," Jack said. "We have some big games this week with Follett and West Texas High. I just want to say thanks again to Pat Ritchie for running the concession stand at the ball fields during the games."

Drugs in the News

Recently Approved for this Sleep Problem

The FDA recently approved tasimelteon (Hettioz) to treat a condition called non-24 hour sleep wake disorder. This is the first FDA approved medication to treat this condition. Hettioz binds to melatonin receptors to help a person sleep. Melatonin receptors are believed to help control circadian rhythms. Research showed that Hettioz helped increase nighttime sleep while at the same time decrease daytime sleep. Since the medicine helps with sleep, a common side effect is drowsiness. Hettioz should not be taken before activity that requires the person to be alert. It is taken one hour before bedtime and on an empty stomach.

Non-24 hour sleep wake disorder affects the circadian rhythm, or "body clock". This makes it hard for people to figure out what time they need to go to bed. The circadian rhythm relies on the ability to see daylight and is synchronized with a sleeping pattern once light enters the eyes. Therefore, affected individuals tend to be blind and cannot see any light. There are as many as 100,000 individuals in the United States that are thought to be affected by this disorder.
