torm clouds gather over Hart-Moore Field during Friday's Little League game (top photo) and again Sunday evening over the Agapé Christian Church. Donley County was blessed with much needed rain from these clouds with unofficial totals coming in at three inches or more in town. Severe weather threatened the area with the most serious being Saturday when part of the county near Hedley was placed under a tornado warning.

help fund survey of CC impact The Clarendon Economic Development Corporation will pro-vide half the funding needed to conduct a study of the economic impact of Clarendon College follow-ing Monday's meeting of the CEDC board.

CEDC to

CC President Robert Riza said the study, conducted by the private firm EMSI, will look at value the college has to its eight-county service area and to Clarendon in particular by examining payroll, purchasing, student spending, and other factors such as event hosting. The survey will also gather information to see what workforce skills are needed in the area.

The study is part of a larger effort across Texas to measure the impact of community colleges on the state economy. In conjunction with that work, EMSI offered to do more in-depth studies for individual college districts at a cost discounted from their regular charge, Dr. Riza said.

"This is an example of a part Infis Is an example of a part-nership to make the community better and stronger," Dr. Riza told the Enterprise after the meeting. "You have to have data to do that, and this survey will give us the information we need to make decisions, espe-cially in terms of workforce skills." CEDC board members expressed their opinions that most people do not realize the substantial impact Clarendon College has on the local economy.

The CC study will cost $9,900, and the CEDC will provide $4,950 for the information.

In other business, the CEDC board approved the use of Hotel Occupancy Funds to promote this year's Saints' Roost Celebration, July 3-5. The Clarendon Outdoor Entertainment Association received $8,000 to promote the overall cel-ebration along with its Ranch Rodeo and junior rodeo. The board also approved $500 to promote this year's Henson's Turtle Race, which will include a new adult division.

Clarendon Director of Tourism & Economic Development Chandra Eggemeyer reported that the Mulkey Block Party had raised more than $6,900 for continued work on the theatre.

The board also approved funds for a new computer in the Clarendon Visitor Center and discussed job descriptions for Eggemeyer's posi-tion and for the Chamber of Commerce Manager position in terms of staffing the Visitor Center.

WAHNING: The following column is an editorial (i.e. an opinion, a point of view) and may contain ideas with which some readers may freely disagree. It could be harmful to liberals, socialists, and other small mammals. Read

Marking 136 years and here to stay

What does this newspaper mean to you? Perhaps it's a source of information, a chronicle of your life's story within this community, or a way to keep up with your kids or grandkids in school. Perhaps you rely on it for entertainment or just to see what's going to happen next. Maybe you just read it to make sure you're not in the obituaries this week or to find out where the best garage sales will be. Maybe its editorial stances or columns rub you the wrong ay, but you still read it to be a great asset to its community. If you look around at small towns that are successful, you will most likely find a vibrant newspaper there as well, with most nextly line a treater investigate rate as wear, covering the news, pushing for progress, and keeping a watchful eye on elected officials. In my college days, I participated in a study of the economies of 17 communities in the Hill Country and, given my field of study, I picked up a paper in each one if it was available. Without exception, the busiest towns had great newspapers.

One hundred and thirty-six years ago this week your newspaper got its start with its primary mission to report the happenings in a fledgling colony and to attract more settlers to the area. What began as a monthly publication on the banks of the Salt Fork of the Red River grew and changed – and even moved – with Clarendon, reporting the ups and downs of life in Donley County.

Publishers have come and gone, and the name has changed; but whether you grew up with it as THE DONLEY COUNTY LEADER, THE CLARENDON PRESS, or THE CLARENDON ENTERPRISE, our community has been fortunate to have a solid newspaper that supports its people as much as its readers and advertisers support

Earlier this year, the ENTERPRISE was the focus of a feature by ProNews 7's Larry Lemmons that talked a lot about the paper's place as the oldest newspaper in the Texas Panhandle. One of the interviewees for that story talked about the uniqueness of still having a local paper. That comment may have seemed odd to many people, but imagine what it would be like not to have your local paper, not to have someone to count on to cover the Broncos or the Owls, or not to have a place to advertise your local business, or publicize your garage sale.

For people in Wellington and Memphis, that scenario became a reality last week with the merger of those papers, along with the papers in Childress and Hollis, into one new publication called the RED RIVER SUN. It is not the intent or the place of this column to second guess or criticize the owner of those papers for this decision. The ENTERPRISE does however sorrowfully reflect on the loss of three unique Panhandle institutions, each of which have existed for more than 100 years. THE CHILDRESS INDEX and the HALL COUNTY HERALD (long known as the MEMPHIS DEMOCRAT) were both founded in the 19th century, and THE WELLINGTON LEADER, as its nameplate trumpeted, had been "A Builder in Collingsworth County for 105 Years.

Each of those papers were pioneers of their communities and were at one time or another helmed by legendary newspapermen. Their archives are the repositories of history for their counties, and their pages tell the stories of the people who helped settle this land.

The next few weeks will certainly be a transition time for Memphis and Wellington, and hopefully it will go as smoothly as possible. But there is understandably some trepidation among the people of those towns, and very likely a sense of loss for readers of Cottle County with no local news outlet. These are not the first closures or consolidations we've seen of historic Panhandle papers. More than a year ago, the MOTLEY COUNTY TRIBUNE and the BRISCOE COUNTY NEWS WERE folded into a new publication, the CAPROCK COURIER. And McLean and Lefors were long ago brought under the umbrella of the GROOM NEWS.

Another long-running paper, THE PADUCAH POST, ed last month with little fanfare, leaving the folks

We live in a time of change for the newspaper industry. Large papers who lost their focus have gone under, and other papers have slimmed down gone under, and other papers have slimmed down due to tough economic pressures. The digital revolution brings its own pitfalls and opportunities for newspapers, and today's young adults consume news very differently from their parents and grandparents.

The ENTERPRISE, by whatever name, has been covering the news since 1878, and we are continually grateful for the support and faith of our readers and advertisers. We will change and adapt as best we can with the times, but we are not going anywhere. More and more of our readers receive our news and columns in some electronic format, and this editorial is the first to have been published digitally before it was printed on paper.

on paper. Our commitment, however, remains the same as it was 136 years ago... to provide you with the best news coverage possible and to promote the growth and development of Clarendon and Donley County. We've never wavered from that, and we never will.

Texas GOP lurches farther to right

zealously took

Unsurprisingly, the Tea Party types steered the Republican Party even farther to the right at the recent Republican Party Convention in Cowtown. Shockingly, yours truly was startled to discover that he, for the most part, agreed with the party platform – albeit with a more moderate interpretation of some of the planks. Most importantly, the Republicans firmed up their opposition to amnesty for illegal aliens. If American citizen ship is to retain any value or meaning whatsoever, we cannot and must not allow those who sneak into our country to gain American citizenship. If the aforementioned sneaky aliens prove their worth, pay their taxes, and carry their own weight then perhaps some sort of long-term or permanent residency status can be granted to them. If they cannot or will not prove themselves then they should be deported post haste.

In either case, citizenship should never be granted to those who break our laws when they sneak into this country - ever. Otherwise, those who have legally entered into America have done so for naught, and a veritable pestilence of illegals will surely follow. After, they will have been rewarded for breaking our laws, and American citizenship will become a farce. Additionally, we must do all we can to secure our borders, particularly our southern border, which leaks like the Titanic. We need to increase the number of border security guards, using the military if necessary. In Texas, we must increase the efficiency of the guards on hand by utilizing local law enforcement and the DPS. Our Texas National Guard is particularly suited to this type of mis-sion and should be fully deployed in the effort to greatly reduce the flow of illegals out of this country. Eventually, we might even be able to completely stop this flow of humanity into this country, as unlikely as it may seem. Right now, the status quo is unacceptable. The Republican platform also rather aim at the gay/ lesbian community, going so far as to make it a felony for anyone who 10 the quick, grants a marthe dead, riage license to same-sex couples. & fred Unfortunately, they also want to make it a felony for anyone who marries these couples. Prosecuting ministers for marying same-sex couples is wrong. Our prisons are full enough of non-violent prisoners like drug offenders. Imprisoning a bunch of ministers - who are usually really fine folk – is absurd and does nothing to actually address the problem of same-sex marriage.

This issue is a social issue, not a criminal issue, and needs to be handled accordingly – in the political arena. To me, homosexual sex is not a crime, and homosexuals are most assuredly not criminals. I'm just grateful that I was not born with same-sex attraction. Actually, when you think about it, I doubt that an individual would ever choose such a lifestyle and subject themselves to the harsh treatment that is rained upon them.

All of the major medical institu tions, including doctors and mental health practitioners, agree that same-sex attraction has a genetic origin and is not some sort of mental illness. Unfortu-nately, the Tea Party types treat homosexuality the same as they threat other scientific certainties, such as climate change, by ignoring the inconvenient scientific evidence of said behavior.

The absurd counseling program that the Republican Party endorsed, and wishes to implement, will only result in taking us back to the dark ages of medicine and mental health practices. Their time would be much better spent if they addressed the real mental health issue of keeping guns out of the hands of the mentally and emotionally unstable. Of course, if they did that then some of the delegates who attended the convention could actually be prevented from access-ing guns in the future. Better yet, they could actually do something to improve the mental health systems of America, which are currently in abominable condition. There is much more that can be written about the brash new platform of the Texas Republican Party but limited space prevents further illumination by yours truly.

In closing, it should be mentioned that Senator Ted Cruz, our Republican Senator from Canada, (eh!) won the straw vote for President of the United States. Governor Rick, on the other hand, took it on the chin, finishing fourth in the ballot. Of course, Governor Rick, as dull as he is, would most likely thrash Senator Ted in a national straw vote between the two candidates. If, by some miracle or trick by Mother Nature, Senator Ted actually wins the Republican nomination for President of the United States, then the Republican Party will lose yet another presidential election. Tea Party types cannot seem to understand that narrow minded, wacky right wing candidates cannot win national elections

If the Republicans hope to win the White House in 2016, then they will have to submit a more moderate candidate. Radical right wing candidates like Senator Ted are repugnant to most voters, at least most of the voters outside of Texas. I hope the Republicans can field a more moderate candidate. If they do so, regaining the White House is not only possible but probable. The Democrats have proven that they are even more inept than the Republicans, if such a thing is possible. For America's sake, a fiscally conservative, socially moderate candidate must be nominated by the Republicans

Museum looking for good locations

Thank you, Jim! Recently, the Clarendon Economic Development Corporation took the initiative to help make the Saint's Roost Museum a more visible and useful part of our tourist economic base by providing funding to open the mus five days a week. Part of that project is to erect billboard type signs to alert travelers of our great historical museum. As with most volunteer organizations, money is always a problem. The museum board could not afford to spend what it would cost to rent regular billboard space. After looking at the very effective signs for the Goodnight house, we decided we needed to design and erect signs for the museu The board would like to thank Jim

Riley for his donation of a great space to use on his property east of town. Now our quest is to find a suitable space for a roadside sign on the west side. If anyone has property or knows of someone who might be interested, please contact me or the museum.

We are also looking for help in funding the cost of the signs. There are a lot of people like Jim who help with time and money for the museum, and we want to thank all of you.

Bob Weiss, Museum Board Member Senior Citizens Center is a worthy endeavor

Don Stone was right when he described the urgent situation facing the Senior Citizens Center. (See Stone's letter to the editor last week.) All of us need to consider how we can assist with this worthy endeavor. Here's a way you can help that might be fun: Saturday on the 14th there will be a home tour in Clarendon from 10 AM till noon. All the proceeds from this tour will go to benefit the Senior Citizens Center. We should all do what we can to help; consider buying a ticket and go on the Home Tour!

Aspirin May Not Be For Everyone

The FDA recently issued a statement surrounding the everyday us of aspirin by both men and women who are taking it to prevent a heart attack or stroke, but have never had a history of heart disease. The FDA issued a statement after closely examining clinical studies that may show an increased risk of side effects from daily aspirin use, such as bleeding. The American Heart Association recommends that people should only take an aspirin everyday if they are at high risk of getting a heart attack or stroke, unless told otherwise by healthcare provider. The FDA says that the everyday use of aspir should be either continued or stopped after discussing the situation with a healthcare professional. Aspirin helps reduce inflammation, pain, fever, and clotting. The ower dosage of aspirin (81 milligrams) may be taken after a heart attack or stroke to help prevent platelets from clumping together which may lead to a repeat clotting event. Bleeding inside the body is a warning regarding the use of this medication. Other aspirin concerns include salt retention, ringing in the ears, and interaction with other medication
