Local seminar to focus on farm bill

The Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service will be providing an extensive farm bill educational program in Donley County on July 10 at 1:30 p.m. in the Courson Ranch Operations Center at Clarendon College.

While sign-up for the new farm bill program is still months away, the educational process to help producers understand the complexity of the new legislation, including new programs and options, is increasing in the High Plains, said Dr. Steve Amosson, AgriLife Extension economist.

"Our AgriLife Extension county agents are currently attending educational seminars to become more familiar with general farm program provisions," Amosson said. "They also are learning about decision-aid software, which will be available at a later date to assist with producer sign-up decisions."

The meeting will last about two hours and will explain general farm program provisions and provide a decision-aid demonstration. The meetings are free and will offer instruction from Amosson or risk management specialist DeDe Jones, as well as the AgriLife Extension agriculture and natural resources county agents.

Fair weather greets annual July Fourth celebration

Beautiful, calm weather greeted a patriotic crowd gathered on the Courthouse Square last Friday, July 4, for the 137th annual Saints' Roost Celebration.

The Kids' Parade started the day with the youngsters peddling or driving from Third Street down Sully Street in front of the Courthouse. In the 1-4 age group, Braxton Gribble was first, Chloe Newton was second, and Justus McAnear was third. Kynall Shields won the 5-8 age group with Lindley Hill second and Addison Mooring third. The 9 and up age group was won by Alexia Ralston, Jayde Gribble was second, and McKaden Lax was third.

The annual Craft Fair drew a big crowd to the courthouse square with an impressive number of vendors; and the Chamber of Commerce recognized several pioneer citizens during the Old Settlers gathering. The following honorees received t-shirts from the Chamber: Steve Reynolds, Don Smith, Jewel Judd, Mary White and Floy Smith.

The Al Morrah Shrine Club served 750 plates of barbecue, up significantly from 543 last year. A portion of the proceeds from the annual barbecue are used in conjunction with the Khiva Shrine Temple in Amarillo to help pay for the transportation of kids to the Shriners' burns and crippled children's hospitals.

That afternoon, the Western Parade delighted kids of all ages as floats, riding units, emergency vehicles, and other entries wound their way from the baseball fields through downtown. The Donley County 4-H Club took first place among all parade entries, the Brumley Ranch was second, and the Clarendon Girl Scouts' were third.

Several organizations held fundraisers during the celebration. The winners of the Lions Club Cow Patty Bingo were Jim Owens and Adenia Baird, $250 each, and Cobette Riza and Randy Crump, $50 each. Heather King won the John Deere riding lawn mower given by the Junior Livestock Association in support of the Donley County Activity Center.

Walter Warner was the winner of the St. Mary's Catholic Women Quilt Drawing. Rene Chandler won the lawn mowing from the Howardwick Fire Department, and Jay Hall won the department's fireworks drawing. The winners of the Courthouse Lighting Committee Penny Raffle were Bunk Skelton, $100.00 and Joey Lee and S.E. Grider, $50 each.

The Clarendon Outdoor Entertainment Association hosted a Junior Ranch Rodeo on July Third and an open Ranch Rodeo on July 4 and 5.

Results of those events are listed in a separate article in this week's edition.

Henson's annual Turtle Race was held Saturday afternoon. There were altogether 261 participants, which was an increase from the 206 terrapin handlers last year. The winners were Mason Jackson for the 0-4 division, Aiden Word for the 5-8 division, Chasady Lowe for the 9-14 division, and Debbie Thompson for the adult division. Each child division winner received a coin bag full of gold dollars. The adult division brought in $275, which was divided in half between the winner and the Donley County Child Welfare board.

Summers With New Adjectives

A half-century ago, the late Nat “King” Cole crooned about the Lazy, Hazy, Crazy Days of Summer. The lyrics probably “fit” US life in the early ‘60s, but hardly so today.

Current summers seem jam-packed. There are “wall-to-wall” activities, early ‘til late, particularly for youngsters.

In this piece, we’ll zero in on boys and girls of summer, many of whom attend vacation Bible school early on, thus avoiding conflicts with vacations, sports leagues, and many other activities. All told, they cause summer days to extend far into summer nights. Much is high tech, and most of the goings-on warrant collaboration and coordination. Today, there’s little lazy about summers. Some haziness remains, and craziness—in various degrees—still is in vogue....

the idle american
by don newbury

For most churches, VBS now is a budgeted item. String, paste, bottle caps, egg cartons and such rarely are “saved up” to use in VBS anymore.

In many churches, though, “VBS Kool-Aid” (we called it “Polly Pop” back in the day) still is very much in play.

How does VBS Kool-Aid differ from the ordinary stuff? One packet makes two quarts, according to the label. Historically, VBS leaders have altered the directions—a package will also make a gallon....

I mentioned “collaboration” earlier. At our church, considerable time and resources are committed to feeding the poor. To introduce this massive project to our youngsters, they’ve been asked to write verses, scriptures and/or short messages on the sides of little brown bags. The bags then are filled with lunches delivered to children throughout the neighborhood all summer long.

It’s a nice touch, whether or not the messages make any impact on the hungry youngsters who tear into the bags to retrieve sandwiches, fruit and cookies.

Though she will remain nameless, I am happy to report that the youngest of our half-dozen grandchildren, now seven years of age, happily accepted the little writing assignment. And she took it on at full gallop with no holds barred, unencumbered by political correctness....

Serious as a funeral, she pondered for several minutes before writing her multi-colored message, mostly with crayon, with some “magic marker” for emphasis.

Please keep this in mind: Following is her Sunday school teacher’s report on the personalized writing assignment. I am merely the messenger, hoping not to be shot.

As a granddad, I’m proud of her, and applaud her courage, frankness and sincerity, given that as she gets older, a bit more tact on some subjects should perhaps be considered....

“Dear Friend,” the bag message began. “I hope you will let Jesus into your heart. If you do, when you die, you will get to live with Him in heaven. If you don’t, you will go to hell.”

I’m not sure the bag was used; I didn’t ask. If it was, perhaps they covered the last eight words with stick-on hearts, flowers and shepherds.

Or maybe not....

Children have always been—and hopefully always will be—spontaneous. It is never more apparent than during children’s sermons—particularly at holiday observances. On Easter Sunday at New Braunfels Presbyterian Church, worship began with a huge wooden cross at the altar, behind which were beautiful flowers. The children were to gather the flowers, follow the men carrying the cross outdoors, then decorate it.

They did so, parading back inside with the cross to close the service. They were singing an Easter hymn; all went swimmingly—until the moment the pastor raised his hands to pronounce the benediction. A booming voice—well, booming for a five-year-old—emitted from the group of two dozen children, “Now, let’s sing Jingle Bells.” Needless to say, “church was out.” The benediction was lost in the laughter....

Another five-year-old, standing behind a make-shift lectern, was “preaching” to neighborhood friends and a couple of pets. Questioned by his mother about the scriptural topic, he quickly answered, “The book of Tempations.”

The Holy Bible is clear about Jesus’ love for children. Matthew 19:14 (RSV) reads: “Let the children come to me, and do not hinder them; for to such belongs the kingdom of heaven.”

Chris and Cindy Liebrum—without grandchildren until this year—now have two. They’re ecstatic and can hardly wait to respond favorably to grandchildren’s requests made to “Lolli” and “Pop”....

America needs to begin construction

You still find people are still talking about our economic difficulties as if they are complex and baffling, without an easy solution. Yet, nothing could be further from the truth. Now that we’ve had a few years to let the dust settle, are we any closer to understanding what went wrong back in 2008, between Dubya and Barack? Actually, the basic story of what went wrong is quit surprisingly, ludicrously simple: Our immensely large housing bubble popped, and when the bubble burst, it left a huge hole in spending. Everything else can pretty much be found in the footnotes.

Even the appropriate response was simple, too: Fill that hole in demand. The aftermath of the bursting bubble was, and remains, an excellent time to invest in infrastructure. In the good times, public spending on roads, bridges and so forth competes with the private sector for resources. However, since 2008, our economy has been inundated with unemployed workers, most of whom who are construction workers, and capital with no place to call home (which is why government borrowing costs are at historic lows). Actually, putting those idle resources to work building useful stuff should have been a no-brainer.

What actually happened was the exact opposite of what should have happened: an unprecedented plunge in infrastructure spending occurred. Public spending on construction have fallen more than 20 percent since 2008. This result represents a surreal and very wrong policy turn; we’ve managed to weaken the economy in the short run, even as we undermine its prospects for the long run. Great job! Nice! Ugghh!

Unfortunately, it’s about to get even worse, if such a thing is possible. The federal highway trust fund, which pays for the lion’s share of American road construction and maintenance, is almost exhausted. Unless Congress agrees to replenish the fund, all road work around the US will have to be scaled back or delayed just a few weeks from now. Should this happen, it would quickly cost us hundreds of thousands of jobs, which could derail the employment recovery that seems to finally be gaining steam. Even more disconcerting it could also reduce long-term economic gain.

So, how did things go so wrong, so fast? As with so many of our problems, the answer lies in the combined effect of inflexible ideology and scorched-earth political tactics. The crisis in the highway fund is just one example of a much larger problem.

Historically, regarding the highway road fund, road spending is traditionally paid for by dedicated taxes on fuel. The federal trust fund, in particular, gets its money from the federal gasoline tax, which is currently at 18.4 cents per gallon, and has remained so since 1993, even as the overall level of prices has risen more than 60 percent.

It’s hard to think of really good reasons why taxes on gasoline should be so low, and it’s easy to think of even better reasons, ranging from climate concerns to reducing dependence on the Middle East energy, why gas should cost more. So there’s a very strong case for raising the gas tax, even aside from the need to pay for road work.

However, even if we aren’t ready to do that right now—if, say, we want to avoid raising taxes until the economy is stronger—we don’t have to stop building and repairing roads. Congress can and has topped up the highway trust fund from general revenue. In fact, it has thrown $54 billion into the hat since 2008. Why not do it again?

the quick, the dead, & fred
by fred gray

However, it would be much too simple to simply write a check to the highway fund, we’re told, because that would increase the deficit. And, especially according to our Texas Senator from Canada, eh, deficits are evil, especially when there’s a Democrat in the White House, even if the government can borrow at incredibly low interest rates. Yet, we can’t even raise gas taxes because that would be a tax increase, and tax increases are even more evil than deficits, according to little Teddy Cruz, eh. So our roads must be allowed to fall into disrepair. Hell, Afghanistan now has better roads than we do—at least in Donley County.

If this sounds crazy, that’s because it is. But similar logic lies behind the overall plunge in public investment. Most such investment is carried out by state and local governments, which generally must run balanced budgets, and saw revenue decline after the housing bust. Yet the federal government could have supported public investment through deficit-financed grants, and states themselves could have raised more revenue (which some but not all did). The collapse of public investment was, therefore, a political choice made by the Republicans in the House.

What’s disappointing about the looming highway crisis is that it illustrates just how self-destructive that political choice has become. It’s one thing to block green investment, or high-speed rail, or even school construction. I’m for such things, but many on the right aren’t. Yet everyone from progressive think tanks to the United States Chamber of Commerce thinks we need good roads and infrastructure. Yet the rancid combination of anti-tax ideology and deficit hysteria (itself mostly whipped up in an attempt to bully the president into spending cuts) means that we’re letting our highways, and our future, erode away.

What sort of legacy are we leaving our children and grandchildren?

Obama responsible for illegal crossings

Earlier this week, shortly after it was reported that President Barack Obama would request $2 billion to deal with the humanitarian crisis along the U.S.-Mexico border, the president threatened to double down on the policies that caused the crisis in the first place. More specifically, he made clear in a Rose Garden statement that he is considering yet another unilateral suspension of immigration enforcement on his own.

It is exactly this type of administrative action that caused the current crisis and, if he is not careful, could cause another one, costing taxpayers an additional $2 billion or more.

To understand why, just ask the president’s Department of Homeland Security. According to an internal Homeland Security memo analyzing the recent surge of child and female migrants flooding the U.S.-Mexican border, “The main reason the subjects chose this particular time to migrate to the United States was to take advantage of the ‘new’ U.S. ‘law’ that grants a ‘free pass’ or permit.”

Meanwhile, a Homeland Security study concluded that the unaccompanied minors “are aware of the relative lack of consequences they will receive when

Homeland Security Secretary Jeh Johnson implicitly acknowledged that the president’s policies have become a magnet for illegal border crossings. Referring to the deferred-action program that the president announced in June 2012, Johnson felt compelled to inform the world that “The U.S. government’s Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals program ... does not apply to a child who crosses the U.S. border illegally today, tomorrow or yesterday.”

It’s become simply undeniable, even to those in his own administration, that the president’s administrative policies—from his deferred-action program to his overall lack of serious immigration enforcement—have played a huge role in encouraging tens of thousands of children to risk their lives by traveling across Mexico.

Drug- and gang-related violence in Central America has been a major problem for many years. But the massive spike in illegal immigration by Central American children didn’t start until 2012—the same year Obama announced his deferred-action program.

The president insists on blaming Congress, specifically Republicans, for doing nothing. If he wants to know why Congress hasn’t been able to pass immigration reform, all he has to do is look at his own policies, which have created a massive amount of distrust.

It’s now painfully clear that the consequences of the president’s previous executive actions include tens of thousands of children navigating some of the most dangerous migration corridors in the world. As I’ve said many times, there is nothing humane about encouraging mothers, daughters, fathers and sons to put their lives in the hands of criminal smuggling networks controlled by brutal drug cartels.

So I would ask the president: Given all that’s happened, how can you consider another pen and phone policy change that we know will lead to yet another surge of illegal immigration, cost the taxpayers more money and, most alarmingly, put more lives in danger?

Acreage reporting requirement

CLARENDON – U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Donley County Farm Service Agency (FSA) Executive Director Vance Killian reminds agricultural producers that July 15, 2014, is the deadline to file an acreage report for spring seeded crops. Planted acres must be reported to FSA by July 15, 2014. The Agricultural Act of 2014 (2014 Farm Bill) requires producers on a farm to submit annual acreage reports on all cropland.

“Although some federal farm program enrollments have not yet started, timely acreage reports for all crops and land uses, including prevented and failed acreage that producers submit to their local FSA office, are important to ensure program eligibility,” said Killian.

Acreage reports to FSA are considered timely filed when completed by the applicable final crop reporting deadline, which may vary from state to state. Perennial forage crops intended for grazing or haying were required to be reported last fall, whereas perennial forage crops with an intended use of cover only, green manure, left standing, or seed, must be reported by July 15.

Although July 15 is the most common deadline to report acreage for spring seeded crops, this date may be different in locations with climates that are warmer or cooler than average.

Producers should contact their county FSA office if they are uncertain about acreage reporting deadlines. Killian said that failed acreage must be reported before the disposition of the crop and that prevented acreage must be reported within 15 calendar days after the final planting date for the applicable crop.

For questions on this or any FSA program, including specific crop reporting deadlines and planting dates, producers should contact their county FSA office or seek information online at www.fsa.usda.gov.

Report gas pump problems to the TDA

Hi gang, in checking on the gas pump column from last week I found that vast majority of Texas gas stations are honest merchants. It is the scammers we have to watch out for.

The Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) wants consumers to feel confident we are getting what we pay for at the pump, so they take complaints very seriously and follow through with investigating complaints. Anytime a device exceeds a tolerance, whether that is shortchanging a customer or giving away too much gas, or if there are leaks or even technical issues, then that pump is subject to being placed out of service. Depending on the egregiousness of the violation, it can be subject to an administrative penalty. When a violation is found, the fuel pump is placed out of service, and the place of business is required to hire a licensed service company to recalibrate and/or fix the device. TDA inspectors then follow up and ensure the device is in tolerance. TDA implemented risk-based inspections for gas pumps in January 2014. Under risk-based inspections, stations are inspected at least once every two years, unless TDA receives a report from a licensed service company indicating that calibration was verified as part of a routine maintenance program. However, they investigate all complaints and perform an inspection when there is a new business established or new pumps are installed. ALL TDA inspections are random, even when they are routine. Stations never know that a TDA inspector is coming, regardless of whether the inspection is routine or based on a complaint.

If we experience a problem, we can file a complaint with the Texas Department of Agriculture at 800-TELL-TDA or on their website at TexasAgriculture.gov. We should always look for a small white sticker from the TDA that must be displayed on each side of a pump. If the sticker is missing report the pump. The sticker will tell you the 800 number to call if there is a problem. Information for the incident report are: Date of incident: Other feedback or information to offer: Grade of fuel: Incident business name: Incident business license ID: Name of contact at location (if known): Street, City, County, State, Zip and including a complete explanation of your complaint.

As we enjoy traveling this summer lets also watch the pumps, get our receipts and check them against the pump. I am like most when the pump doesn't give a receipt, I am in a hurry and just leave. However, be wary, go get one. Then check to see if the receipt agrees with the pump. It will probably be OK but what better way for a scammer to cheat us.

Let's be safe out there and enjoy our summer.

A MONTHLY FEATURE FROM THE CLARENDON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

McKinney's Motor Co.
806.874.3457 • 720 US 287 • Clarendon, Texas

McKinney's Body Shop was started in the summer of 1980 by Edward McKinney. After a week of the work piling up, Edward was joined by his brother Lynn McKinney and they split up the body repairs and paint needs. This went on for approximately 6 months before James McKinney (The father of Edward and Lynn) came to the boys with a proposal.

James was a current partner of J & J Autos with Jack Clifford at the time. He suggested that they should buy some cars and that he would sell them out of the front while the boys fixed and repaired them out of the back. After approximately 3 years, they closed the body shop down and went solely into the selling business. Five years later they incorporated and moved the business up the street a few blocks to a recently vacated 'Pizza Box' location, because it had a larger building and more frontage for the car lot, this was in approximately 1989.

The business went on with father and sons until the passing of James McKinney on May 16th, 1998. Another Generation joined in 2009 with the addition of Michael McKinney. Today the business continues to thrive thanks to the strong community support and family values that have taken the McKinney's through over 3 decades of business.

The Clarendon Chamber of Commerce is proud to have McKinney's Motor Company as a Member of The Chamber, and we want to recognize Edward, Lynn and Michael, and all of the Employees that make McKinney's the successful business that it is, for The City of Clarendon, TX and the surrounding area.

The Clarendon Chamber of Commerce gives a "BIG Thank You" to The McKinney Family for all they have done, and all they still do for our city.

State extends public comment period for water supply plan

TEMPLE - The Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board has extended the public comment period on the proposed State Water Supply Enhancement Plan until July 21, 2014. The State Water Supply Enhancement Plan serves as the State's comprehensive strategy for managing brush in all areas of the state where brush is contributing to a substantial water conservation problem.

The State Water Supply Enhancement Plan, formerly the State Brush Control Plan, must be updated and revised in order to continue implementing provisions of House Bill 1808 passed by the 82nd Texas Legislature.

A public hearing to receive oral comments on the proposed plan was held on July 1, 2014 in Temple.

"At the public hearing, we received a request to extend the deadline for accepting public comments on the draft plan. As a result, we're extending the deadline for an additional two weeks. We want to ensure that all interested persons have an opportunity to provide constructive input on the development of this important state plan," said Rex Isom, Executive Director of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board.

The State Water Supply Enhancement Plan also serves as the programmatic guidance for the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board's Water Supply Enhancement Program. The purpose of the Water Supply Enhancement Program is to increase available surface and ground water supplies through the targeted control of brush species that are detrimental to water conservation, and the subsequent establishment of herbaceous vegetation on land where that brush has been controlled.

"Voluntary land stewardship, on a grand scale, is a cornerstone solution for water supply issues in Texas. The efforts of private landowners to control water-depleting brush are vitally important to the ecological health of our productive rangelands across the state," said Isom.

Notice of the availability of the draft State Water Supply Enhancement Plan for public review and comment was originally published in the June 6, 2014 issue of the Texas Register. The Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board has extended the comment period through July 21, 2014. Notice of the extended deadline will be published in the July 11, 2014 issue of the Texas Register.

Written comments on the proposed plan may be submitted by email to Aaron Wendt at awendt@tsswcb.texas.gov. Comments must be received no later than the extended deadline July 21, 2014. The draft document is available online at the agency's website <http://www.tsswcb.texas.gov/brushcontrol> or by contacting the agency directly.

"Many Texans today, especially those in urban areas, are generally less mindful of the public benefits, such as clean plentiful drinking water, they derive from the voluntary land stewardship provided by private landowners throughout the state," said Isom. "The State Water Supply Enhancement Plan will direct the agency's efforts to enhance public drinking water supplies by working with landowners to protect the natural resources of Texas."

After the comment period, the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board will address comments received and incorporate them into a final State Water Supply Enhancement Plan that will be considered for adoption by the agency on July 28, 2014.

For more information about the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board's efforts to revise the State Water Supply Enhancement Plan, please contact Aaron Wendt at (254) 773-2250 ext. 232 or awendt@tsswcb.texas.gov. Additional information on the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board's Water Supply Enhancement Program is available at <http://www.tsswcb.texas.gov/brushcontrol>.

The Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board administers Texas' soil and water conservation law and delivers coordinated natural resource conservation programs through the State's 216 soil and water conservation districts. The Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board is the lead agency for planning, implementing, and managing programs for preventing and abating agricultural and silvicultural nonpoint sources of water pollution. The agency also administers a water supply enhancement program to increase available surface and ground water through the targeted control of water-depleting brush; works to ensure the State's network of 2,000 flood control dams are protecting lives and property; and facilitates the Texas Invasive Species Coordinating Committee.

Relief from Pain-Killer Medicine Side Effect

The New England Journal of Medicine recently published the findings of research from major clinical trials that showed naloxegol eased constipation that was caused by taking strong painkiller medicines. Painkillers help reduce the sensation of pain by attaching to receptors in the brain; these same receptors are also found in the intestine. Naloxegol works by blocking such receptors in the intestine. The effect is to help the painkiller work in the brain, but in the intestine the effect is a reduction in constipation. In the clinical trials, naloxegol helped increase bowel movements in people who had constipation but had not received any benefit after taking laxatives. The side effects that were seen in those who took naloxegol include stomach pain, watery stools, gas, nausea, and vomiting.

Opiate pain medications are typically prescribed for intense pain that can come from conditions like arthritis or pain that occurs after an injury or surgery. These pain killers include hydrocodone (Norco, Vicodin), morphine (Avinza), hydromorphone (Dilaudid), and oxycodone (OxyContin, Percocet).

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR AUTHORITY TO RECONCILE FUEL COSTS

Southwestern Electric Power Company ("SWEPCO") petitioned the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("Commission") on June 4, 2014 for authority to reconcile its eligible fuel expenses and revenues for the period from January 1, 2012 through February 28, 2014 ("Reconciliation Period"). This application, if granted, will affect all Texas retail customers.

During the Reconciliation Period, SWEPCO incurred a total of $486,394,870 in eligible fuel, fuel-related expenses, and purchased-power costs to generate and purchase electric energy for its Texas retail customers, as well as expenses associated with environmental consumables and emission allowance costs incurred by SWEPCO and allocated to its Texas retail customers. For the Reconciliation Period, SWEPCO calculates that it has under-recovered its Texas retail fuel, fuel related, and purchased-power costs by $4,757,551, excluding interest. Including interest, SWEPCO's cumulative under-recovery balance is $1,449,916 as of February 28, 2014.

Persons with questions or who want more information on SWEPCO's Statement of Intent and Application may contact SWEPCO at 428 Travis Street, Shreveport, Louisiana 71101, or call toll-free at (888) 216-3523 during normal business hours. A complete copy of the Statement of Intent and Application and related filings is available for inspection at the address listed in the previous sentence.

The Commission has assigned Docket No. 42527 to this proceeding. Persons who wish to intervene in or comment upon these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible, as an intervention deadline will be imposed. A request to intervene or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, P.O. Box 13326, Austin, Texas 78711-3326. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission at (512) 936-7120 or (888) 782-8477. Hearing- and speech-impaired individuals with text telephones (TTY) may contact the Commission at (512) 936-7136. A request for intervention or for further information should refer to Docket No. 42527. Unless otherwise ordered by the presiding officer, motions to intervene will be due 45 days from the date SWEPCO filed its Statement of Intent and Application with the Commission.
