Business owners' deadline coming up

The Donley Appraisal District is reminding business owners that the deadline for filing Business Personal Property Renditions is April 15, 2015.

If the business owner is unable to file the rendition by the deadline, a written request for an extension of the deadline until May 15, 2015, has to be filed with the Donley Appraisal District by the April 15 deadline. Failure to file a rendition by the deadline will result in a 10 percent penalty on the current year's taxes.

The deadline for filing for the Multi-Use Exemption for automobiles is April 30, 2015. In order to qualify for the exemption you have to own a business and use your vehicle for both business and personal use. Vehicles that are driven to and from your job do not qualify. You must reapply for the exemption even if you received the exemption for the past year. The forms for this exemption are available at the Donley Appraisal District office.

For more information, contact the Appraisal District at 874-2744

Go blue for child abuse this Friday

April is National Child Abuse Prevention Month and everyone who wishes to show support of this movement is asked to wear blue on Friday, April 10 in order to raise awareness.

Child abuse is preventable, but it takes awareness of the signs of abuse and the courage to speak up when abuse is known or suspected.

Copper Breaks to host 20th StarWalk

QUANAH – Copper Breaks State Park, now an International Dark Sky Park, will kick off the 20th year of the StarWalk program on Saturday, April 18, 2015, at sunset, or around 8:15 p.m. The StarWalk starts with a naked eye tour of the night sky over Copper Breaks State Park followed by a closer look through telescopes and binoculars. Copper Breaks has been designated an International Dark Sky Park and the park is one of only four sites in the state of Texas with an International Dark Sky Association Gold rating. What this means is that the stars at night are big and bright and visitors have spectacular viewing opportunities.

Copper Breaks staff and park friends have been offering the popular StarWalk for twenty years. The 2015 StarWalk schedule starts Spring Constellations on April 18; the Planets on May 16; Galaxies on June 13; Deep Sky Objects on July 18; the Milky Way on August 15; the Super Moon on September 26; and the season concludes with the Fall Constellations on October 17, 2015

For more information on the StarWalk or other Copper Breaks programs or facilities, contact the park at 940-839-4331.

HISD names Waldrop as lone finalist

Hedley ISD trustees named Colby Waldrop as their lone finalist in their search for a new school superintendent last Thursday, April 2, during a called board meeting.

Interim Superintendent Bill Wood said the board was unanimous in its selection of Waldrop after considering four applications and interviewing two candidates.

Under state law, HISD must now wait 21 days before formally hiring Waldrop. That action is expected to take place at the board's regular meeting on April 23, Wood said.

Waldrop, who is the current principal of Jayton-Girard ISD, is no stranger to Donley County, having taught at coached at Clarendon High School from 2006 to 2008. He also attended and played basketball for Clarendon College, and his parents live in Clarendon.

The incoming superintendent says his family is looking forward to returning to Donley County.

"We're real excited," Waldrop said. "We're glad to be getting back near family. It's something we've been looking forward to."

Waldrop is in his 20th year in education and his third year in administration. He first spent three years at Nazareth ISD and later taught and coached in Lubbock, Ackerly, and Claude before taking the position at Jayton-Girard.

Waldrop and his wife, Crystal, are both Texas Tech University alumni and have been married for 14 years. They have an 11-year-old son, Grayson, and an eight-year-old daughter, Kennady.

Waldrop said his official start date in Hedley won't be set until after the April 23 meeting, but he expects to be working part time at HISD starting in May and then full time in June.

Jones 5K to be run Saturday

Runners and walkers will gather on the Clarendon College campus this Saturday, April 11, to raise awareness about child abuse during the third annual Chance Mark Jones Roar 'N Run 5K.

As of Tuesday afternoon, more than 135 people had registered for the event, which is hosted each year by the Clarendon Lions Club and coincides with Child Abuse Prevention Month.

Sign-ins start at 8 a.m. at the Bairfield Activity Center. The 9 a.m. race will start and end at the Bulldog Gym and through the city; in front of the First Baptist Church; down Fifth Street along Clarendon Junior High; past several historic structures, including the S.W. Lowe House, the First United Methodist Church, and the Donley County Courthouse; around Prospect Park – the site of the Chance Mark Jones Memorial Playground, and then back up through the southwest part of the city to the college.

Race packets and race route maps will be available for pick-up all day this Friday, April 10, at the Clarendon Visitor Center inside the Mulkey Theatre.

Proceeds from the race will benefit the charitable community activities of the Clarendon Lions Club, including eyeglasses for underprivileged students, Christmas baskets for local families, local scholarships, continued park improvements, contributions to other local charities, and hosting of the local office of The Bridge - Children's Advocacy Center inside the Lions Hall.

The annual Roar 'N Run 5K honors the life of four-year-old Chance Mark Jones, who died from abuse in 2011.

For more information about this weekend's Chance Mark Jones Memorial 5K, contact Lion Ashlee Estlack at ashlee.estlack@clarendoncollege.edu or 806-874-4808 or 806-662-4687 or Lion Roger Estlack at tourism@cityofclarendon.com or 806-874-2421.

CC changing approach to developmental education

Clarendon College is changing the way development education is taught and putting students on a fast track to success, and now the word is spreading among academic circles.

Last fall, CC undertook a new math pilot program where students needing developmental education were enrolled directly into college level courses paired with a supplemental lab, rather than the typical one- to three-semester route of taking developmental level courses and labs and then the college level course afterwards.

This shortened path has proven to increase the percentage of entering developmental students that successfully complete a college-level course and has cut the time to complete that college-level course by up to three semesters. Additionally, this has resulted in a significant tuition savings to students and a greater overall chance of graduating from college.

CC President Robert Riza said the pilot program was an idea that made sense when faculty presented it to his office and that it was supported with the resources it needed.

"Obviously, students will rise to the level of expectations held by their faculty members, and this is seen in the results and successful completion rates of this math program," Dr. Riza said. "This is what happens when motivated faculty find new ways to help students succeed."

The college faculty responsible for the innovative program will soon be on the road to discuss CC's groundbreaking work at two national conferences.

Math faculty members and program developers Dr. Jeremy Sain and Linda Rowland, joined by CC Director of Institutional Research Robert Taylor will first attend and present at the 2015 National Benchmarking Conference at Johnson County Community College in Overland Park, Kan., May 12-14.

The National Benchmarking Conference attracts a wide range of participants from institutional researchers and executives to national and regional educational policy decision-makers.

Two weeks later, the same group will be in Austin for the National Institute for Staff and Organizational Development (NISOD) 2015 International Conference on Teaching and Leadership Excellence, May 23-26, 2015, where Sain and Rowland will be speaking.

NISOD's International Conference on Teaching and Leadership Excellence attracts educators from around the world and is the definitive gathering of community and technical college faculty, administrators, and staff seeking to engage in deep conversations about best and promising practices designed to improve student achievement.

CC Vice President of Instruction Roger Schustereit said the math pilot program is part of a continuous improvement process.

"Clarendon College is always looking for ways to better serve our students," Schustereit said. "The math pilot program at Clarendon College was developed by Mrs. Rowland and Dr. Sain. I am proud to work with such teachers dedicated to the well-being of their students."

Instructor Linda Rowland said CC's math pilot program is designed to help students accept their responsibility as college students.

"They are responsible for the information they are learning," Rowland said. "As an instructor, we can teach the concepts and the skills, but if the students are not willing to take the responsibility to learn then they will not learn. Many students right out of high school are led to believe that in college they will receive the same treatment as in high school."

Rowland said if other colleges adopt CC's pilot program, it will do away with developmental education on the college level and put the responsibility back where it belongs, which, she says, is on the public school system.

Clarendon College Director of Institutional Research Robert Taylor reports that the numbers are already showing the success of the math department's approach.

"In Fall 2013 under the previous program, 15 percent of Level 1 and 2 developmental Math students completed a college-level Math course within three semesters, while 20 percent of Level 3 students completed a college-level Math course within two semesters and an additional 10 percent after three semesters," Taylor said. "This new program resulted in 39 percent of Level 1 students and 55 percent of Level 2 students (46 percent combined), and 62.5 percent of Level 3 students passing a college-level Math course during the student's first semester."

Restoring the Rule of Law to American

By Richard W. Rahn, Cato Institute

Last week, the Obama Justice Department declined to press charges against former Internal Revenue Service official Lois Lerner — even though there was overwhelming evidence that she had targeted conservative groups and may have been complicit in destroying her emails. She also waived her Fifth Amendment privilege by proclaiming her innocence before a congressional committee and then refused to answer questions. It is possible that for some unknown reason Ms. Lerner’s case should have been dropped, but to many it appeared that once again President Obama and Attorney General Eric Holder were applying the rule of law selectively.

Concealing information from Congress is considered a major offense, punishable by fines and significant jail time. The evidence seems to be overwhelming that some in the IRS and the Department of Justice have concealed information from Congress. In fact, Mr. Holder was cited for contempt of Congress for withholding information. The rule of law breaks down when those charged with enforcing the law are, in fact, violators of it.

We now know that former Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton withheld at least some of her emails from Congress despite pledging full cooperation back in 2012 regarding the Benghazi disaster, and she failed to use U.S. government email servers as she was required to do. Again, these are serious crimes that someone less influential than Mrs. Clinton might well go to jail for — yet she most likely will be given a pass. Mr. Obama has taken many actions contrary to the rule of law. One can go on the Internet to obtain long lists of these alleged violations, many of which are now being litigated. One of the cases that the courts have already settled was Mr. Obama’s outrageous claim that he, not Congress, would decide when it was in session. By making the false claim that Congress was not in session, he improperly made “recess” appointments to the National Labor Relations Board and others, which the courts then reversed, along with decisions made by the board when it was composed of illegal members.

Sustained economic progress is near impossible without the rule of law. Historically, people have been governed by arbitrary decisions of rulers or by laws that are readily understood, equally applicable to all (including the lawmakers), and only changed by a formal and open process. The concept of the rule of law goes back at least to ancient Greece. In England, the Magna Carta (1215 A.D.), established that the rule of law was superior to that of “divine right of kings.” It is no coincidence that the industrial revolution and modern commerce developed first in the Netherlands and England, both of which were governed by the rule of law rather than the arbitrary decisions of a king or religious ruler. In order to protect the rule of law, the American Founders explicitly designed a system to limit the power of the executive and even that of the legislature and the courts.

It is no surprise that those countries in the world whose citizens enjoy the highest per capita incomes (with the exception of some petro-states) largely operate under the rule of law, particularly when it comes to economic issues, rather than the arbitrary decisions of a dictator.

The economic importance of the rule of law can be understood by looking at the highly publicized Argentine government bond default in 2001. Argentina sold more than $100 billion of government bonds in the years immediately preceding 2001 under New York law and using New York financial institutions. The reason it used New York rather than Argentine law is that purchasers of the bonds had much more faith in the rule of law in New York than the rule of law in Argentina. Thus, using New York law, Argentina could get a much better price for its bonds, saving its taxpayers many billions of dollars. The Argentine government has been trying to renege on its promise to use New York law but, fortunately, the U.S. courts have not let them do so.

The rule of law has been undermined in the United States by the fact that not all are treated equally. Politicians have increasingly exempted and declined to prosecute themselves and other government employees for violations of the law that apply to the rest of us. One of the solutions would be to greatly expand the right of private action against individual government employees and elected officials when their actions cause harm to individuals or groups. Tea Party and other groups should be allowed to sue Ms. Lerner and other miscreants at the IRS, without the government protecting them under the doctrine of sovereign immunity.

Finally, the rule of law has been undermined by the enormous increase in the number of laws allowing people in government to target almost anyone. There are more than 4,600 federal felonies now on the books, which many, if not most, citizens have unknowingly violated because many of these laws defy common sense. If the Ten Commandments were good enough for the Lord, then a limit of a hundred felonies ought to be good enough for the federal government.

Marching on with April Fool’s jokes

Who among us has not participated in shenanigans associated with April Fool’s Day, either as a perpetrator or an unwitting victim? I sense only “ayes” in response.

Remembrances of long ago foolishness typically are warm and welcome, even if we were “pie-in-the-face” victims, perhaps responding with lip-quivering – or maybe even tears – during real-time “pranking.”

At the risk of unduly citing personal experiences – really, the only kind I’ve ever had – two “up close” familial connections with April 1 are herewith admitted....

April 1, 1980, was my first of some 6,300 days as a college president. Likely, I could have requested moving the date forward by a day or delaying it by one. But no; the beginning date was April Fool’s Day.

I made a foolish decision right off – according to the faculty association president.

He was critical of my scheduling a faculty meeting on a Wednesday. I asked him why. “You spoiled both weekends,” he said....

Two dozen years later on April 1, the third of our six grandchildren, Brittin Nicole Choate, was born. Julie, her mother, perhaps could have asked for induced labor a day earlier, or maybe could have delayed delivery until a day later if she had exercised more will-power.

“Poppyclock on the delay option,” Julie said. “Que sera sera – whatever will be will be.”

Interestingly – and most sentences beginning with this word aren’t – she usually schedules Brittin’s birthday parties a few days removed from the actual birth date....

We attended her 11th birthday party held four days early this year. Much was traditional – food, balloons, cake, song. Some, though, wasn’t cookie-cutter stuff.

Wise beyond her years and a gifted piano student, she requested a different kind of party. “I really don’t need anything,” she said. Instead of birthday gifts, she asked six girlfriend attendees to bring gifts for “beautiful feet.”

And they did – gifting with tooth-paste, toothbrushes, deodorant, soap, shampoo and such – for Beautiful Feet Ministries, a mission for the homeless in Fort Worth. That’s special, worthy of admiration by family, and a party idea others may choose to emulate....

During the party, Brittin and her friends decorated flip flops, had pedicures and ate cake with footprints in the icing.

Her folks said she had a “mile-wide” smile when she delivered the gifts to the mission.

Grounded in faith with a servant’s heart, she already sees the value of giving....

Come April 1, 2018, her birthday will be on a Sunday, and a special one at that. She’ll celebrate birthday number 14 on Easter Sunday that year.

“How come Easter hops around so much, usually in April but sometimes in March?” someone asked.

Here’s why: For this historic Sunday – the day marking Christ’s resurrection and Christians’ most triumphant day – adherents are perfectly happy to readily accept whatever “calendar hop-

the idle american by don newbury

ping” is required....

The blessed day is determined in a somewhat circuitous manner. On the Christian calendar, Easter falls on the first Sunday following the first full moon occurring on or after March 20 (spring equinox).

My guess is that Brittin will come up with an “extra special” birthday theme in 2018.

I’m sure, though, that it will be about Him, not her. And pervasive will be a spirit of thanksgiving that the same God intervening in the affairs of humankind throughout history is still in charge. The promise of Easter will be emphasized....

Hiding birthdays was considered recently by the Texas Legislature. The bill would have made birth dates confidential and exempt from the Texas Public Information Act.

Delving deeper, legislators realized that universal birth-date confidentiality would prohibit use of DOBs by the media and other public watchdogs in distinguishing “bad guys” from those who happen to have the same names. Investigative reporters have used DOBs to find people with sordid records employed where they shouldn’t be, such as in schools.

Had it passed, the law would have hit close to home. I am NOT the “Donald Newbury” convicted for his role in the “Texas Seven” for the murder of an Irving police officer 15 years ago. I’m the one born on September 7, should this fact ever be helpful to know....

Dr. Newbury is a speaker in the Dallas/Fort Worth Metroplex. Inquiries/comments to: newbury@speakerdoc.com. Phone: 817-447-3872. Web site: www.speakerdoc.com. Archived at newbury blog, venturegalleries.com.

Q. When Will Hillary Announce for 2016 ?

Kick open the doorway to liberty

By John W. Whitehead, Rutherford Institute

Everything this nation once stood for is being turned on its head.

Free speech, religious expression, privacy, due process, bodily integrity, the sanctity of human life, the sovereignty of the family, individuality, the right to self-defense, protection against police abuses, representative government, private property, human rights – the very ideals that once made this nation great – have become casualties of a politically correct, misguided, materialistic, amoral, militaristic culture.

Indeed, I’m having a hard time reconciling the America I know and love with the America being depicted in the daily news headlines, where corruption, cronyism and abuse have taken precedence over the rights of the citizenry and the rule of law.

What kind of country do we live in where it’s acceptable for police to shoot unarmed citizens, for homeowners to be jailed for having overgrown lawns, for kids to be tasered and pepper sprayed for acting like kids at school, and for local governments to rake in hefty profits under the guise of traffic safety?

Why should we Americans have to put up with the government listening in on our phone calls, spying on our emails, subjecting us to roadside strip searches, and generally holding our freedoms hostage in exchange for some phantom promises of security?

As I document in my new book

Battlefield America: The War on the American People, it doesn’t matter where you live – big city or small town – it’s the same scenario being played out over and over again in which government agents ride roughshod over the rights of the citizenry.

In such an environment, it’s not just our Fourth Amendment rights – which protect us against police abuses – that are being trampled. It’s also our First Amendment rights to even voice concern over these practices that are being muzzle-d. While there are all kinds of labels being put on so-called “unacceptable” speech today, from calling it politically incorrect and hate speech to offensive and dangerous speech, the real message being conveyed is that Americans don’t have a right to express themselves if what they are saying is unpopular, controversial or at odds with what the government determines to be acceptable.

What we’re seeing is the caging of free speech and the asphyxiation of the First Amendment.

The colonists’ treatment at the hands of the British was not much different from the abuses meted out to the American people today: they too were taxed on everything from food to labor without any real say in the matter, in addition to which they had their homes invaded by armed government agents, their property seized and searched, their families terrorized, their communications, associations and activities monitored, and their attempts to defend themselves and challenge the government’s abuses dismissed as belligerence, treachery, and sedition.

Unlike most Americans today, who remain ignorant of the government’s abuses, readily persuaded that the government has their best interests at heart, and easily cowed by the slightest show of force, the colonists responded to the government’s abuses with outrage, activism and rebellion. They staged boycotts of British goods and organized public protests, mass meetings, parades, bonfires and other demonstrations, culminating with their most famous act of resistance, the Boston Tea Party.

The rest, as they say, is history. Yet it’s a history we cannot afford to forget or allow to be rewritten.

The colonists suffered under the weight of countless tyrannies before they finally were emboldened to stand their ground. They attempted to reason with the British crown, to plea their cause, even to negotiate. It was only when these means proved futile that they resorted to outright resistance, civil disobedience and eventually rebellion.

More than 200 years later, we are once again suffering under a long train of abuses and usurpations. What Americans today must decide is how committed they are to the cause of freedom and how far they’re willing to go to restore what has been lost.

What are we waiting for?

Thornberry to host U.S. Service Academy Forum

AMARILLO – The office of U.S. Congressman Mac Thornberry (R-Clarendon) will host the annual 13th District’s Service Academy Forum for high-school students interested in pursuing an education at a United States Service Academy on Saturday, April 11, 2015.

The free, informational event will take place at the Texas Air and Space Museum in the Rick Husband Amarillo International Airport on Saturday, April 11, 2015, from 9:30 until 11:30 a.m. This forum is designed for potential nominees in their junior or senior year of high school. However, all local students of any age, parents, and counselors are invited to attend. No R.S.V.P. is required.

To be eligible to attend an academy, students must be at least 17 years old, but not have passed the 23rd birthday by the entry date; must be a United States citizen; unmarried; and, have no legal obligation to support children or other dependents.

“Nominating students to a service academy is one of the highest privileges I have in Congress,” said Thornberry, who serves as the chairman of the House Armed Services Committee. “We owe the deepest gratitude to the brave men and women who serve to protect our freedoms, and I applaud each and every student for their desire to answer this worthy calling.”

At the event, representatives from the U.S. Air Force Academy, the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, the U.S. Military Academy (West Point), and the U.S. Naval Academy will provide details on appointment procedures, daily life at the academies, and post-graduate military commitments, as well as answer any specific questions from the audience.

Each applicant must receive a nomination from a member of Congress in order to be considered. As a member of Congress, Rep. Thornberry is allowed to nominate a limited number of students for each service academy per year.

Applications for nominations must be submitted to the Congressman’s Amarillo office by December 1 of a student’s senior year. After reviewing the congressional nominations and student applications, the service academies will make final selections and offers of appointment in the spring.

Accepted nominees will receive a free education, including tuition and room and board, in return for an agreement to serve as an officer in the military for a minimum of five years after graduation.

For more information on the forum or the academy application process, please visit Rep. Thornberry’s website or Facebook page.

Tips to avoid the most common phone scams

Hi, gang! Phony Calls Claiming Past Due Utility Bills Resurface, hang up, lookup your utility’s number and call them and check. This week we will finish number 9-16 of scams.

9. International Phone Calls Scam: It’s not always easy to tell if you’re dialing an international telephone number. In most cases, you have to dial 011 to begin a call to a foreign country. However, there are locations outside the U.S. where telephone numbers may look like domestic long-distance calls, but are actually international calls and international rates will apply.

For example, 284 (British Virgin Islands), 242(Bahamas), 246(Barbados), 268(Antigua/Barbuda), 345(Cayman Islands), 664(Montserrat), 670 (U.S. commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands), 758(St. Lucia), 787(Puerto Rico), 767(Dominica), 809(Dominican Republic), 869(St. Kitts & Nevis), 868(Trinidad & Tobago), and 876(Jamaica) are all area codes in the Caribbean.

The scheme: the scammer often leaves a message typically asking consumers to call what appears to be an ordinary long-distance telephone number to confirm a lottery prize, or to get information about a relative who has been injured in an accident. In each case, you are told to call the number right away. Since there are so many new area codes these days, people unknowingly return the calls. Once the number is dialed, the scam artist will try to keep you on the phone as long as possible to increase the charges. Unfortunately, when you get your phone bill, you might find that you’ve been charged $2500 per minute.

If you are asked to call unknown number, google the area code to check if it’s local. Also, ask your cell phone and land line companies to put a block on international calls. This way you will hear an error message when you try to call an international number.

10. Phone Toner Scam: The scam artist poses as a warehouse representative or vendor and makes contact with a targeted company. He will say “This is (first name), I need the model number off your copier”. If the person who answers gives this info, the scammers will try to set up a shipment of toner. Of course, the deal is so good that the offer is based on a limited supply or limited time, pressuring the employee to act fast and get their money’s worth. Upon delivery, both the employee and the company are usually in for a big surprise. The price of the invoiced toner is 2-3 times higher than expected, and the scam artist threatens with legal fines if the company fails to pay.

11. “Cramming”: When monthly charges pop up on your telephone bill for optional services that you never authorized such as voice mail, paging, or club membership, it’s called “cramming.” You may be asked to return a missed call because it’s ‘Your lucky day’ and you’ve won a trip to Las Vegas. When the call is made, an automated system is activated and you are unknowingly enrolled in a club or program, and the charge is placed on your phone bill. The crammer might not even need to do anything except simply pick your phone number out of the blue and place charges on your bill through your local telephone company, claiming that you agreed to purchase some services.

Look at your bill closely every month. Charges for optional services should be itemized and show the name of the company providing them and its phone number. If you did not authorize the services, call that number and insist that they be canceled and the charges removed from your bill.

Also, consider putting a third party block on your phone service.

It’s often free and it does not let any third party add charges to your phone bill.

12. “Slamming”: Slamming occurs when customers have their telephone service switched to a new carrier without their permission. You may receive a call from a telemarketer asking you to switch your long distance provider. Although you say you are not interested in switching, your long distance provider is changed anyway.

13. Caller ID Spoofing: Generally, the scam works like this - you receive a call where total strangers pretend to be someone else and they back up their claims with spoofed Caller ID. The scam artists might then ask for money, demand a payment, request your personal information, addresses, or banking info. People report getting calls from ‘Secretary of State’, grandchildren, law firms, IRS, and government officials.

For example, in one scheme the caller identified himself as a court official and informed the victim that she is being prosecuted for failing to show up for Jury Duty. When the victim replies that this is the first time she hears that she was summoned for jury duty, the caller suggests that this may be a clerical error in the court system, and he asks for her full legal name, date of birth, and Social Security number to check the official summons files. The scam artist informs the victim that this data will be kept confidential, but it is required for cancellation of the outstanding arrest warrant.

In another variation of this scam ‘government officials’ call to offer a ‘Government Grant’. ‘Because you pay your income taxes

on time, you have been awarded a $12,500 government grant! To get your free grant, simply give us your checking account information, and we will deposit the grant into your bank account!’ You may receive a message like this, where the caller claims to be from a government agency or some other organization with an official sounding name. The caller might claim that you will qualify to receive a “free grant” to pay for education costs, home repairs, home business expenses, or bills. In any case, the claim is the same: your application for a grant is guaranteed to be accepted, and you’ll never have to pay the money back.

Scam IRS calls: In this scheme people receive phone calls from a caller who impersonates an IRS employee. The caller asks the taxpayer for their Social Security and bank account numbers, claiming that the IRS needs the information to complete the processing of the taxpayer’s payment. In another variation of the scheme, ‘an IRS employee’ states that the check issued by IRS has not been cashed, and the IRS is calling to verify the individual’s bank account number. Hang up, find the official number of the organization and call to report the incident. Also, don’t send money - cash, check or money order - by courier, overnight delivery or wire to anyone who insists on immediate payment.

14. Call Forwarding Scam: You may receive a call or message where the caller, requests you to dial a 2-digit code preceded or followed by the * or # key (such as *79 or 72#), and then another phone number to claim some prize. This procedure programs your telephone to forward your calls to another number, possibly a toll or long distance number. Scammers can then call your number, be forwarded to the number you dialed and place calls that are billed to your home telephone number.

15. Telemarketing Travel

Fraud: These scams have many variations and often involve travel packages that sound legitimate. You get a phone call and the caller is saying that you have been selected to receive a free trip. Skilled salespeople will tell you, to be eligible for the free trip, you must join their travel club. Later, you may find another fee is required to make your reservation. In the end, you may never get your “free” trip because your reservations are never confirmed or you must pay different fees, or comply with hard-to-meet or expensive conditions.

Check out the company with your state, provincial and local consumer protection office before you buy any product or service. Also, be wary of “great deals” and free offers. Few legitimate businesses can afford to give away products and services of real value or substantially undercut other companies’ prices.

16. Get Rich Quick Schemes: Scam artists lure both would-be entrepreneurs and people looking for home-based work with false promises of big earnings for little effort. The schemes often require an initial investment and involve selling items on eBay or making sales calls. However, once the payment is sent the companies often disappear.

The truth is everyone is susceptible to phone scams. Scam artists will devise a highly believable story to solicit information from their victims. That’s why it is important to never give out any personal information over the phone if you are not the one who initiated the call even if that person claims to be a law enforcement official or someone from your financial institution. If you are returning a missed call, research the caller first. Also, always check 800notes.com to read other people’s experiences with the caller. If you stay alert, you can certainly reduce your risk of falling victim to phone scams.

Stay Safe Out There.

Memoirs of past Easter celebrations

Another Easter celebration has passed with our family feast and egg hunt with the children. I become nostalgic at these times, remembering my own egg hunts and the way they have changed but remained the same.

We began saving eggs for boiling and coloring. The number of eggs we hunted would depend on the laying hens. After the war, PAAS egg coloring kits began to appear... usually 6 tablets placed in a cup of hot water with a teaspoon of vinegar and soaked until the desired color appeared. Those eggs must be hidden and found within a day or two because rotten eggs smell BAD.

Our Easter hunting container was probably a paper bag. We didn’t care; we had eggs. By the time my children were hunting eggs, they had a basket with fake green grass, most eggs were still boiled and colored, but the kit was more elaborate with stickers to decorate the eggs and wax pencil to write your name. The first candy egg for hunting was marshmallow with a thick candy coating. Within a few seasons they were wrapped in cellophane to keep them clean, but those boiled and colored eggs remained the main hunting egg.

Today most hunting eggs are two piece egg shaped plastic pieces that are stuffed with candy, money, small toys, etc. with very few boiled and colored eggs and dire warnings from parents.

Oh, I almost forgot the chocolate bunnies, the Peeps that began as marshmallow shaped baby chicks covered in yellow sugar but today come in different shapes and colors, the jelly beans, speckled malted bird

Trip to Old Clarendon

Last week for Cub Scouts I went with my dad and my den to the old Indian village at the lake. All you see now is dead grass and weeds – there are also dead trees. The spot we went to was called Eagle Hill and it looks down on Old Clarendon and there used to be a big a ring of stones with a flag pole in the middle. There used to be a wall of stone surrounding that hill so if they were to be attacked by Indians, they could get behind that wall and protect themselves.

This weekend I am going to run in the Lions Club 5K with my Aunt Anndy and my Nan and Poppa. People can still sign up to run or walk – just call my dad. My mom and my dad are both Lions. The Lions Club does good things for our town and they help a lot of people.

At school in GT, I am going to be in a showcase later this month (I don’t know when exactly). I’m going to showcase George Washington. He was the General of the Continental Army and was our first President. He is from Mount Vernon.

Drugs in the News

Help for Treating Peanut Allergies

The results of a recent Australian study indicates that children with peanut allergies may become more tolerant to peanut products if they are given a combination treatment of a certain bacteria and peanut protein. In this study, children who ingested a probiotic known as Lactobacillus rhamnosus in yogurt with peanut protein were evaluated. The amount ingested was slowly increased during the study period. Severe peanut allergies were reduced compared to the group that got dummy pills. Eighty two percent of the children in the treatment group were able to tolerate peanut protein, but only a little over three percent of the dummy pill group could pass the test. Researchers still have many more tests that need to be completed before they can safely say that probiotics can help treat peanut allergies. They are hopeful of more studies that find safe treatments for this allergy. A food allergy, such as a peanut allergy, causes the body to treat anything made of or from peanuts as an invader. The body will identify it as a harmful substance. Probiotics are considered “good bacteria” that are not completely understood, but are used to help manage many digestive conditions.

Watson, Shadle qualify for Regional Golf Meet

By Sandy Anderberg

Golfers Zach Watson and Riley Shadle shot a qualifying score at the District Golf Meet at Stoney Ridge in Childress to qualify for the Regional Meet to be held in Odessa April 15-16 at Ratliff Ranch Golf Course.

The Broncos finished third overall as a team.

“Our boys golf team did very well,” coach Gary Jack said. “The team finished third overall, just missing out a few strokes from second place and going to Regionals.”

Watson turned in a score of 81 and he was the third place medalist overall. It is Watson’s third time to qualify for the Regional Meet.

Shadle turned in an 87, which tied him for the other place that would qualify him. According to Jack, Shadle was in a play off and he was able to win it on the second hold to earn his spot.

Other medalists on the team were Zach Caison, Clayton White, and Eastin Goodpasture. Raylyn Shelton, Blaine Ellis, and Jacob Hewitt completed the Bronco team.

Clarendon’s golfers Eastin Goodpasture, Zack Caison, Jacob Hewett, Blaine Ellis, Zach Watson, Riley Shadle, Raylyn Shelton, and Clayton White competed at the District Golf Meet at Stoney Ridge in Childress last Thursday. Watson and Shadle qualified for the Regional Meet.

CHS students build balsa towers

Students in Clarendon High School Physics class competed against one another to see who could build the strongest balsa wood tower to hold weight.

The annual competition is lively and gets students involved in a “hands-on” engineering project that produces some stout towers.

This year’s winners were Shelby Baxter and Karlee Adams, who built a tower only weighing only 1.1 ounce that held 162 pounds of weight before it failed. Rhonda Olivas placed second in the competition with a 0.76 ounce tower that held 96 pounds of weight.

Third place went to Cooper Bilbrey and Chesson Sims. The competition is based on the weight held to mass of tower ratio, so students have a lot of flexibility in design. Some build lighter towers that don’t hold as much weight but have a high ratio, and some go for the heavier towers that hold more weight.

Next six weeks students will design windmills to do work as part of a unit on wind power, a growing technology in the Texas Panhandle.

Lady Broncos run-rule West Texas High

By Sandy Anderberg

The Lady Broncos made it look easy against West Texas High at home last Saturday, April 4, winning 17-7 in five innings. Briley Chadwick was on the mound for the Lady Broncos, and Allyson Hogan was behind the plate.

“Briley pitched the whole game and did well,” Jack said. “Allyson caught a very good game.”

According to Jack, several players hit the ball well.

“Taylor DeGrate, Skyler White, Chadwick, Hogan, and Zaryia Smith did a good job hitting the ball and our defense played a solid game as well,” Jack said.

Jack feels the Lady Broncos are in a very good position for the playoffs with a 5-1-district record and 8-3 overall.

Earlier in the week, the ladies faced a tough, undefeated Follett team and were defeated 3-15.

“This game was close until the sixth inning,” Jack said. “We went into that inning trailing 3-6 and playing well. Follett has the best pitcher in this area, but we hit her some. We left 10 runners on base and made too many errors to win the game.”

Jack cited DeGrate, Brittney McAnear, and Chadwick with hitting the ball well.

The Lady Broncos will travel to McLean Friday, April 10, and play Booker at home on Tuesday, April 14, with both games at 4:00 p.m.

Broncos rack up ten hits, shut out Memphis

By Sandy Anderberg

The Clarendon Broncos left Memphis with no answers in their 11-0 slam-dunk in another district game last Tuesday night. The win put the Broncos at 8-5 overall and 2-0 in district.

Zack LaRoe and Bryce Hatley were on the mound, with LaRoe getting the win. He was able to muster 12 strikeouts in the six innings on the mound and allowed no hits and no runs. Offensively, LaRoe had several hits in the game and hit a homerun in the sixth. Charles Mason, Hatley, Joshua Cobb, and LaRoe combined for six hits and seven RBIs.

The Broncos added four big runs in the bottom of the fourth as Izzy Osburn singled scoring Chance Lockhart and Mason. Hatley then hit a double, bringing home Cobb and Osburn. The Broncos put together another three runs in the sixth inning. Caleb Cobb got things going with a single that scored Hatley and LaRoe followed with his homerun.

“I was very pleased with our game,” coach Brad Elam said. “I thought we hit the ball really well and we limited mistakes.”

On Friday, the Broncos stunned Kress 14-0. They were able to jump on the Kangaroos early and set the rhythm of the game. The Broncos mustered eight runs in the first three innings to gain total control over their opponent.

Caleb Cobb hit an RBI single in the first inning with Zack LaRoe following with a two-run single gave the Broncos the early edge.

Kade Hunsaker was on the edge and did a good job containing Kress’ hitters, who managed only two hits. Hunsaker had no earned runs and struck out five batters while on the mound for four innings.

Offensively, the Broncos stormed the plate racking up five runs in the third inning with five more in the fourth. Several Broncos had good hits in the game.

“We are playing good and practicing hard,” head coach Brad Elam said. “We continue to develop and get better.”

The Broncos will travel to Nazareth on Friday, April 10, and play at Valley on Tuesday, April 14.

NOTICE OF RATE CHANGE REQUEST
Southwestern Electric Power Company (SWEPCO or Company) publishes this notice that on March 4, 2015, it filed its Statement of Intent and Application for Authority to Amend Transmission Cost Recovery Factor (TCRF) with the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUCT or the Commission) in Docket No. 44496. The filing was made in accordance with the Public Utility Regulatory Act (PURA) § 36.209 and Commission Substantive Rule 25.239. The TCRF will recover SWEPCO's reasonable and necessary costs for transmission infrastructure improvements, as well as changes in wholesale transmission charges under a tariff approved by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC). In this application, SWEPCO seeks to recover its transmission capital investments through December 31, 2014. SWEPCO also seeks to recover through the TCRF approved transmission charges that are not otherwise being recovered through current rates. This notice is being published in accordance with PURA § 36.103 and Commission Procedural Rule 22.51(a) (1).

STATEMENT OF INTENT TO CHANGE RATES
SWEPCO requests that the Commission approve a TCRF that would result in an increase in SWEPCO's Texas retail revenue requirement of $9,267,375 per annum above the amount approved in SWEPCO's previous TCRF case (PUC Docket No. 42448). This amounts to a 3.01 percent increase in SWEPCO's overall annualized current Texas retail revenue requirement. SWEPCO has proposed that its requested rate change become effective 35 days after the filing of the Statement of Intent and Application. The proposed effective date is subject to suspension and extension by actions that may be taken by the Commission. All customers in SWEPCO's Texas retail rate classes will be affected by this change. The impact of the rate change on various customer classes will vary from the overall impact described in this notice.

REQUEST FOR TEMPORARY RATES
SWEPCO requests that the Commission or assigned administrative law judge issue an order establishing SWEPCO's existing TCRF as a temporary rate effective 120 days after the filing of the Statement of Intent and Application subject to refund or surcharge to the extent the TCRF established pursuant to the Statement of Intent and Application differs from the existing TCRF.

CONTACT INFORMATION
Persons with questions or who want more information on SWEPCO's Statement of Intent and Application may contact SWEPCO at 428 Travis Street, Shreveport, Louisiana 71101, or call toll-free at (888) 216-3523 during normal business hours. A complete copy of the Statement of Intent and Application and related filings is available for inspection at the address listed in the previous sentence. The Commission has assigned Docket No. 44496 to this proceeding. Persons who wish to intervene in or comment upon these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible, as an intervention deadline will be imposed. A request to intervene or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, P.O. Box 13326, Austin, Texas 78711-3326. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission at (512) 936-7120 or (888) 782-8477. Hearing- and speech-impaired individuals with text telephones (TTY) may contact the Commission at (512) 936-7136. A request for intervention or for further information should refer to Docket No. 44496. Unless otherwise ordered by the presiding officer, motions to intervene will be due 45 days from the date SWEPCO filed its Statement of Intent and Application with the Commission.
