Storm spawns tornadoes

A Saturday afternoon storm system produced tornadic active that tore across part of Donley County.

The storm was first warned by National Weather Service in Amarillo as it entered in to the county near Brice. When emergency personnel spotted rotation, storm sirens were sounded in Clarendon, Howardwick, and Hedley as the system approached.

The NWS reported this week that three separate tornadoes occurred Saturday afternoon with the first being an EF-1 just south of US 287 between Lelia Lake and Hedley about 2:20 p.m. and lasting for 18 minutes as it tracked northeast.

A second EF-1 tornado occurred at 2:40 p.m. and continued for 27 minutes, continuing the northeast track into Collingsworth County. The third tornado was an EF-0 that occurred west of Shamrock and was on the ground for about 11 minutes.

Clarendon Fire Chief Jeremy Powell said property damage from the storm was first reported on County Road U between CR 21 and CR 22 where there was significant damage to large trees being uprooted or broken off, including trees in excess of two feet in diameter.

One home's roof was damaged and lost decking. A large barn was gone, and metal roofing was removed from others. Power lines were also downed.

As the storm went over FM 1932 it blew away a carport and took down more power lines. An outbuilding was pulled up and blown away, and a small tree was damaged.

At CR 25, a large barn suffered significant damage, and a small outbuilding was blown away. Power lines were downed, and large trees with diameters bigger than three feet were uprooted.

At FM 273, a home was damaged by hail, and high winds, and large tree branches were broken and trees uprooted.

As the storm moved out of the county near CR P and into Collingsworth County, there was large hail damage to a home with windows being broken, a large tree was blown over, and a large limb was blown from a tree.

Powell said hail damage was reported over a large portion of the county with the largest hail being near the path of the tornado. Hail was noted to exceed 2.5 inches in diameter in this area.

Rain reports were noted to be as little as a few tenths to over two inches in places across the county.

Devins' killer dies in jail cell

By Jordan Overturf, The Bryan Eagle

BRAZOS COUNTY – The death of an inmate in solitary confinement at the Brazos County Jail was under investigation late Monday by the Sheriff's Department and a Texas Ranger, authorities said.

Dennis Wayne Brown III, 35, was found unconscious on his bunk about 11:40 a.m. Monday, Brazos County Sheriff Chris Kirk said. Brown was accused of killing two former Clarendon residents last year.

"There is nothing obvious in this situation. He was lying on his bunk in a position that didn't suggest any distress," the sheriff said.

According to Kirk, jailers tried to revive Brown with CPR before calling Bryan EMS crews, who also performed CPR. Brown was pronounced dead at 12:19 p.m.

Monday afternoon, authorities were reviewing evidence, conducting interviews and reviewing footage from a camera inside Brown's cell.

The convicted felon from Madisonville has been in custody since his arrest on April 7, 2014, when Bryan police said they located him at a

Mulkey party is Saturday

Rain or shine the show will go on Saturday as the third annual Mulkey Block Party heralds the start of Memorial Day weekend.

Party organizers are keeping an eye on the forecast but say they intend to keep the party going unless weather becomes dangerous.

The 100 block of Kearney Street will be closed starting Saturday morning as work begins to set up the stage and other amenities for the party.

The fun begins at 6 p.m. as Steve Hall and Jesse Lincycumb of Howardwick provide the opening musical entertainment before Amarillo's "Insufficient Funds" takes the stage for the evening. It will be a night of dancing, kids' games, and food and vendor booths.

A $5 donation at the theatre door will get a wristband good for popcorn and drinks and allow folks to come-and-go throughout the evening. Cartoons will be showing inside the Mulkey with a temporary screen and projector sponsored by The Clarendon Enterprise and the Hitchin' Post.

A live auction will also be held during the night, and several very nice items have been donated to the Mulkey cause, including four tickets and parking pass to a Texas Rangers game, handmade jewelry, two six-month gym memberships, a $700 reverse osmosis water filtration system, and more.

Food booths run the gamut of everything from baked goods to fajita-on-a-stick to homemade ice cream.

The Herring Bank car and motorcycle show will be held again on the bank's parking lot, and all year models are welcome.

For more information, contact the Visitor Center at 806-874-2421.

Area Champions

The Clarendon Broncos bested Tahoka in two out of three games last Friday and Saturday at Wayland Baptist University in Plainview to claim the Area title. Put Harriet Tubman on the $20 bill

By Doug Bandow, Cato Institute

Washington’s latest symbolic battle is looming. America’s money celebrates its early political leaders, white males all. There’s now a campaign to provide for greater currency diversity. The group Women on 20s held a poll on what woman should be added: the victor was famed antislavery activist Harriet Tubman, who narrowly beat out First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt. Finishing further behind were Rosa Parks, the Civil Rights heroine, and Wilma Mankiller, the first female Cherokee chief.

Of course, it wouldn’t be the first time that a woman appeared on America’s money. Suffragette Susan B. Anthony graced the ill-fated dollar coin that was little used and quickly forgotten. The Native American Sacagawea later did the same and suffered a similar fate.

The Treasury Department is authorized to choose figures for America’s money. The administration has almost total discretion, since all that matters is that the person be dead. President Barack Obama indicated his interest in showcasing more women, encouraging feminist groups to rev up their political engines.

Republican legislators should take up the challenge and introduce a resolution urging the Treasury to add Tubman. There’s nothing sacred about the present currency line-up. After all, America was created by many more people than presidents and other politicians.

Indeed, replacing Andrew Jackson makes a certain sense since he resolutely opposed a federal central bank. He likely would be horrified if he returned and found his visage gracing paper money for a system far more malign than the Bank of the United States, which he battled ferociously and ultimately killed. Tough, cantankerous, and short-tempered, he would make today’s denizens of Capitol Hill feel his pain.

Moreover, Tubman would be a great choice to replace him. She represents the best of America. She was born between 1820 and 1822 in Maryland to slave parents. She was christened Araminta Ross and her mother fought hard to hold the family together. Tubman was hired out and often beaten. She suffered permanent harm but her strong Christian faith helped sustain her. After her owner’s death in 1849, which led his widow to begin selling their slaves, she escaped through the Underground Railroad to Philadelphia.

However, a year later she returned to Maryland to rescue her niece and the latter’s two children, beginning a career of leading slaves to freedom. Frederick Douglass may have hosted one of her groups, sheltering it and raising money to send the fugitives on to Canada. She was daring and creative; her plans were sophisticated. Although she trusted God she also saw value in arming herself. Among the 70 or so slaves she saved were her three brothers. She also helped instruct scores of other escapees. Neither she nor any of those she guided were captured. She directed her last rescue in December 1860.

Tubman also was an active abolitionist and lecturer, friendly with New York Senator William Seward. She aided John Brown, though she played no direct role in his raid on Harpers Ferry. During the Civil War she pressed abolition on the Lincoln administration. With greater effect she aided slave refugees, served as a nurse, and acted as a scout for the federal army. Long after the war she aided the cause of women’s suffrage, working with Susan Anthony, among others. Despite manifold health problems she lived past 90, dying in 1913.

It’s an incredible legacy.

In short, she represented the common women and men across the country who contributed much to make America. Andrew Jackson was more influential in setting national policy, but Tubman represented the many that battled against the great injustice, slavery, which he accepted. Until that practice ended America could not be considered either truly good or free.

True, writer Feminista Jones made an uncommonly silly argument against adding Tubman or any woman to U.S. currency: “Her legacy is rooted in resisting the foundation of American capitalism. Tubman didn’t respect America’s economic system, so making her a symbol of it would be insulting.”

In fact, capitalism rests on a foundation of economic liberty, which is violated by the institution of human slavery. The original industrial state, Great Britain, ended slavery decades before America. The northern states, where industrial capitalism was strongest in the U.S., also rejected slavery early. One suspects that Tubman did not see herself as spiriting away the enslaved to freedom to save them from “capitalism” but to allow them, like whites, to work, invest, create, own, and take advantage of the manifold opportunities of a free economy. Given her experience with government oppression, it is unlikely she would have advocated turning the economy over to the very same politicians who proved willing to institutionalize human bondage.

The usual PC bias infects much discussion about who should grace America’s currency. However, critics of the usual arguments by the usual suspects shouldn’t feel an obligation to defend today’s currency line-up. Andrew Jackson has had a fine run on the $20 bill. It’s time to give someone else a chance. Why not Harriet Tubman?

Irresistible chocolate chip cookies

Patrick Voith, an accomplished pilot who flies a sleek King Air 200 plane for M&F Western Products Co. in Sulphur Springs, would have stumped the panel had he appeared on the old TV quiz show, What’s My Line.

He could have claimed to be a “food taster” for Texas billionaire Ross Perot. OK, maybe that’s a stretch, but he did share a cookie with the 1992 independent presidential candidate – the Texarkana native who founded megacompanies – Electronic Data Systems and later Perot Systems.

Perot, who will be 85 on June 27, ate the “other half of the cookie” on the occasion of his 81st – possibly 82nd – birthday. As The Sound of Music theme song suggests, we’d best start at the beginning – a very good place to start. Background information is critical to understanding how such an unlikely chain of events could link up so seamlessly....

Patrick’s mom, Nancy Voith – now living in her hometown of Knoxville, TN – joined EDS in 1979. She rose to Director of Communications during her 28-year Dallas career, working closely with Perot in his business.

She returns to Dallas at every opportunity to visit Patrick, his wife Mandy and 15-month-old granddaughter Kennedy. Nancy was in Big D for Perot’s aforementioned birthday. (She visits him on or near his birthday annually and typically takes him a birthday gift.)

Anyway, she purchased chocolate chip cookies at the La Madeleine restaurant, remembering how much Perot enjoys this rich dessert. Why not purchase three monster cookies, thought she, “fancying up” the La Madeleine cookie box with a birthday ribbon? A piece of cake, she figured....

The concept was strong, looked great on paper and could easily have worked. When she returned to her son’s home, she placed the box on the kitchen table. She planned to add the ribbon later when she left for the party.

Soon, however, Patrick walked through the kitchen. He is something of a “cookie monster,” particularly when the marked box is a dead giveaway as to contents. The master of his house, he did what most American males would do. Salivating, he lifted the lid, spied the three giant cookies and was intoxicated by their grand aroma.

Unadvised that the cookies were to be Perot’s birthday gift, he showed considerable restraint, breaking off just one-half of one cookie. Salivating liberally with each jaw movement, he slowly chewed each bite. Then he placed the lid back on the box and went on his way....

Later, his mom whipped through the kitchen, attached a festive bow to the box and headed for Perot’s office, the birthday cookie surprise in tow.

During the visit in his private office, Perot – like Patrick earlier – spotted the unmistakable La Madeleine box. He, too, salivated, and he, too, loved the aroma. As might be expected, he simply couldn’t wait, asking, “What do you have for me there?”

Tearing the ribbon away, he spotted the half-cookie. Repeatedly, he alternated stares, first at the cookie, then at Nancy. He lifted the partial cookie from the box for her to see, then took a bite might near as big as the young pilot’s chomp a few hours earlier....

For Nancy, as one might guess, time stopped. Immediately, she was 100% certain where the missing half of cookie had wound up. Then, she – in 50 shades of red – tried to explain what probably happened, as Perot continued to slowly eat the cookie, enjoying her momentary embarrassment. It all made for a good laugh before the visit was over.

It’s a vignette often shared. Patrick’s boss, M&F President Mickey Eddins, thrives on the re-telling, often at 25,000 feet, somewhere over the U.S. (Mickey and wife Linda have three sons, and they consider Patrick – a 2001 Richardson HS graduate and a 2005 graduate of Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University – to be a member of the family. He’s been the M&F pilot for five years.)

Nancy, who will have a grandson to visit come September when she’s in Dallas, will likely wind up at other future Perot birthday observances. Count on her creative juices to flow freely when she shops for birthday gifts. There is little likelihood, though, that future presents will be edible. Perot and his “taster” will be the losers....

Climate anger: Last refuge of alarmists

By Robert Bradley Jr.

For purveyors of climate alarm, emotional displays of intolerance are increasingly crowding out reasoned argument. But remember the adage: “Hate hurts the hater more than the hated.”

Consider President Obama. At the White House Correspondents Dinner last month, the president used the light-hearted occasion to shout at those who doubt his climate-change narrative. “It is crazy! What about our kids? What kind of stupid, short-sided irresponsible bull...” said the president before a comedian jokingly cut him off.

The current elephant-in-the-room for climate alarmists is the “pause” or “hiatus” in global warming.

Green activists have preached that the Earth’s temperature would rise steadily into a global crisis. For the 1990s, their model predictions appeared plausible. But global temperatures have slowed considerably since 1998, despite steadily rising levels of carbon-dioxide emissions (the alleged cause of warming).

This was not supposed to happen. “Pauses as long as 15 years are rare in the simulations,” wrote Science magazine scribe Richard Kerr. “Researchers ... agree that no sort of natural variability can hold off greenhouse warming much longer.” That was six years ago.

The pause is now the ever greater pause. And even if global temperature sets new record highs, it will be by hundredths of a degree, well below the model-predicted increase. The “pause” is even more the climate-model discrepancy. “95% of Climate Models Agree: The Observations Must be Wrong,” one climatologist humorously wrote.

On the political side, Senators Edward Markey (D-MA), Barbara Boxer (D-CA), and Sheldon Whitehouse (D-RI) began investigating 100 fossil fuel organizations suspected of “funding scientific studies designed to confuse the public and avoid taking action to cut carbon pollution.”

By “confuse the public,” they mean question the sacred view that climate change will soon compromise the planet. In their view, scientists who contradict the doom-and-gloom climate narrative are a threat to the public and must be discredited as shills of industry.

Another specie of climate desperation leading to anger is exaggerated scientific speculation. In a remarkable display of illogic, Rep. Barbara Lee (D-CA) has managed to link global warming to prostitution -- citing, of course, some study. She claims that global warming harms women in developing nations, forcing many into “situations such as sex work, transactional sex, and early marriage.”

It’s time for green activists et al., to come back to Earth. Fossil fuels aren’t going anywhere. According to the U.S. Energy Information Administration’s 2015 Annual Energy Outlook, the United States will depend on fossil fuels to supply 80 percent of its energy needs in 2040. That’s not far off last year’s 82 percent.

As for the world, a robust three-fourths of primary energy consumption will come from fossil fuels in 2040, the International Energy Agency predicts.

The EIA’s recent report noted specifically that oil and natural gas production would continue to grow. By 2017, the United States will be a net exporter of natural gas. Right now, U.S. production of 9.4 million barrels per day is close to record levels.

Americans are less worried about the environment than at any time since the 1980s, according to Gallup. Concern over global warming, the same poll found, has waned measurably since last year.

The devout parishioners of climate calamity may label the rest of us as moral degenerates. But there are real here-and-now problems that need their time and dollars. And to the angry: a new cause might bring peace of mind -- and spare the household budgets of the rest of us.

CJH receives recognition for High-Progress

The Texas Education Agency recently identified Clarendon Junior High as a High-Progress school.

The identification of high-performing and high-progress Title 1 schools is a part of the state's conditional waiver from the U.S. Department of Education for specific provisions of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (commonly known as the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001). The identification of high-performing and/ or high-progress is based on statewide reading and mathematics assessments under the State Accountability System in the 2013-2014 school year and graduation rates.

A high-progress school is identified as a Title 1 school in the top 25 percent in annual improvement and/ or a school in the top 25 percent of those demonstrating ability to close performance gaps. For 2014-2015, TEA has identified 218 Texas campuses as high progress.

Therefore, to be identified as a High-Progress School, a campus must first of all be a Title 1 School that met all targets on the system safeguards (which relate to the percentage of students that met STAAR standards based on federally required student groups). Clarendon Junior High met this standard and was also identified for performance on the STAAR progress measure in relation to a comparison group of similar schools.

This fall, Clarendon Junior High received five of seven possible distinction designations as part of the Texas Accountability System in addition to meeting the standard on all four indices of the system. Recognition as a Federal Reward School is related to CJH's distinction designations in Student Progress and Closing Performance Gaps.

"While we talk of the need to close the education achievement gap, the real work in accomplishing that goal is already taking pace on these campuses," said Commissioner of Education Michael Williams. "Whether identified as high-performing, high-progress or both, we should be proud of what's taking place at these schools and what it means for the future of Texas.

CJH principal John Taylor noted that only about 25 of the 218 campuses statewide are junior high/ middle schools.

"We share this honor with one other school in the Panhandle. There are only five middle school/junior high schools identified as high-progress in the area encompassing Amarillo, Lubbock, Wichita Falls, Abilene, and San Angelo," said Mr. Taylor.

"This recognition is the culmination of all the work our students and teachers did last year with the support of our parents and community," Mr. Taylor added. "This achievement proves our students and teachers lived up to our campus motto which is "Leaders in Excellence."

Warning: computer scammers back in action

Hi, gang! Last Thursday evening I received a call from one of our citizens who had received a call from Winnac Solutions, 877-822-7770, Wilmington, Del., 19810, Winnac Solutions.com who advised that they were from Microsoft Windows and were monitoring his computer. They advised that he had a lot of computer problems. How did Winnac know that he was having computer problems? Apparently they had sent him a Malware to infect his computer. They have an impressive webpage and information given him looked very good. They were a foreign speaking males.

They ask him to let them fix his computer if he would let them have control of the computer. He did and while they were working on it he had to send them an e-check for $199.95 and he did. I told him that I thought it was a scam. He gave me the information. My internet was down from Suddenlink (Cebridge) problems and I was not able to check out the information until Friday.

I advised him to call the bank and cancel the check, also check with the BBB and the Federal Trade Commission and he did. The FTC was very helpful and he has filed a complaint with them. The FTC advised him to take his computer to The Geek Squad to get it cleaned up.

I now know of one other lady who got scammed and she has lost her money. I am sure there are others. Please call me on my cell 806-205-2758 if you think you are being scammed. Remember if someone calls you wanting to sell you something it is a red flag. Hang up.

I use 800notes.com and type in the phone number to check on unknown numbers. One of several comments was from: kim, dated 5 Mar 2015. It reads: Foreign accented male called stating that his company monitors my computer and that it was running slow due to several error messages. He kept insisting I give him access to my computer and wanted me to pay him $200 through pay-pal to monitor my computer for 6 years. I hung up and he continues to keep calling me. It's been 3 days and he still keeps calling me. I've reported him to all govt agencies and the local police.

To file a complaint with the, Federal Trade Commission - Official Site www.ftc.gov. You can also file on the nuisance phone call we all receive at this site. Let's all file complaints on all of these nuisance phone calls and maybe we can get them stopped. To check on a local area business contact the BBB of The Texas Panhandle (806) 379-6222.Look Out for Door-to-Door Magazine Scams This Spring

New city officials take office in Howardwick

Who could have envisioned between ten and eleven inches of rain for Howardwick during the first half of the month of May and rain in the forecast through Saturday? With the rain Greenbelt Lake continues to rise, the wildflowers are beautiful, and wildlife is increasing.

After turning into Howardwick last evening, we first saw a terrapin and around a corner a pair of roadrunners. Oh yes, don't forget mosquitos and an invasion of ants inside the house. Our cool mornings continue even with the higher humidity. Let the rains continue while they may.

Howardwick welcomes the newly elected city board:

Drugs in the News

Key to Taking this important Medication

Many older people have an irregular heartbeat a condition called atrial fibrillation. With this condition there is a high risk of developing a stroke. They are often prescribed a blood thinner type medicine that may help reduce the risk. Newer blood thinners must be taken exactly as prescribed or else the risk of a stroke is very high, however studies show that many older people do not take their medication properly. A study published in the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA) showed that older patients were taking a blood thinner called dabigatran (Pradaxa) appropriately when the pharmacist was directly involved in their care. Many Pharmacists at the Veteran's Affairs hospital system educate and closely monitor patients taking Pradaxa regarding the importance of taking the medication as prescribed every day. One study indicated that about eighty percent of these patients in VA facilities took the medication as instructed.

Pradaxa is used to help prevent a stroke in people with atrial fibrillation. It works by blocking an enzyme necessary to help the blood clot. It comes with a warning about the increased risk of getting a stroke if the medication is stopped abruptly without an appropriate reason.

annoyance that return each spring. Be on the lookout for scammers selling fake magazine subscriptions. How the Scam Works: You answer your door, and it's someone selling magazine subscriptions. The seller may claim that he/she is raising money for a school or charity. The subscription prices seem steep. In fact, they are typically three times the typical price. However, the money goes to a good cause, so you purchase one anyway. Months pass, and your magazine never arrives. Turns out the magazine fundraiser is totally fake!

There are many versions of this scam. Sometimes the sales people call instead of going door-to-door. Other times, "subscribers" are charged monthly fees instead of an annual subscription rate. Some sellers don't even realize they are working for a scammer! How to Avoid Magazine Scams: Don't fall for high-pressure sales tactics: Scammers use high-pressure tactics, hoping you'll make a purchase or bad decision before you can think it over. Don't fall for it.

Ask to see the terms and conditions: Legitimate magazine companies will give you the details in writing, including the commitment period, total price and cancellation instructions. Request to see the seller's license. Many municipalities require a solicitation license before you can sell door-to-door. If your town has this law, and Clarendon does, be sure to ask to see the seller's license. Contact your magazine publisher. If you are uncertain about your magazine subscription, contact the magazine publisher directly with questions or concerns. Check with Panhandle BBB. Not all door-to-door magazine sales are scams. Look up the seller on our website at bbb.org to see what others' experience has been, or call your local BBB for more information.

To find out more about other scams, check out BBB Scam Stopper (bbb.org/scam).

Stay safe out there!

House again topic at city meeting

The owner of the old Neece house at Sixth and Bugbee told the Clarendon City Council last week that setbacks are keeping her from making progress on code violations.

More than six months ago, the city was beginning the condemnation process on the property but later granted Linda Lewis six months to rectify code concerns.

With time running out, Lewis signed in for public comment at the May 14 regular city meeting and said an infestation of bees and rainy weather were "a series of interesting things" that had stalled progress on the property.

Lewis said there had not been seven consecutive days without rain and that the country road she must travel down to dispose of debris from the house has been impassable because of the rain.

Lewis' deadline to satisfy the code department was May 18, but she told city officials last week that she's looking at the end of June to be able to finish.

The Lewis property wasn't a specific agenda item last week, so the council did not address her directly. But Alderman Sandy Skelton pulled the Code Compliance Report from the city's consent agenda in order to comment on the property.

"I'm getting frustrated with the whole thing," Skelton said. "The debris has been there for three months, and it just started raining."

City officials say Lewis' property will be on the May 28 agenda.

In other city business, the board approved contracting with KSA Engineers to complete the city's wastewater permit renewal application and to complete a preliminary engineering report for a possible USDA grant application.

The council heard a quarterly report from Greenbelt Water Authority from Clarendon representative Gary Campbell, who reminded the board that it is time to renegotiate the rate for which the city sells groundwater to Greenbelt.

The council also heard a quarterly investment report from City Secretary Machiel Covey, a quarterly Hotel Occupancy Tax expenditure report from the Clarendon Economic Development Corp., and also a quarterly Hotel Occupancy Tax expenditure report from the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce.

City Administrator David Dockery reported that the citywide cleanup was progressing and seeing a great response. He also said that, due to the weather, the cleanup and the half-price dumping fees will be continued through this Friday, May 22.

Mayor Larry Hicks declared last week Peace Officers Memorial Week during the May 14 city meeting and presented a signed proclamation to Donley County Sheriff Butch Blackburn recognizing the service of local law enforcement.

The Lions pledged their allegiance, prayed, and sang Jingle Bells.

Lion Jacob Fangman reported that the Mulkey Block Party is this Saturday from 6-10 p.m. Lion John Howard and Lion Landon Lambert bravely showed up at 12:38 after utilizing the county's only kayak to get here, bringing the total members up to 10.

There being no further business or reports, we were adjourned with Lion Pride in our hearts and thankfulness for the rain.

Killer: Brown found dead in Brazos County jail

motel less than 5 miles from a house fire where the bodies of (former Clarendon residents) Noel and Mac Devin were found. According to jail records, Brown was driving Noel Devin's car and had it parked outside his motel room. Police also said in a report that they found Brown in possession of several items belonging to Noel Devin.

A spokesman for the district attorney's office said the Devin family was notified of Brown's death Monday afternoon.

Brown was awaiting trial on several charges, including the capital murder of Noel and Mac Devin, burglarizing Noel's home, setting the house on fire and stealing her car.

An additional felony charge was filed in March after authorities said they discovered a sharpened plastic utensil during a routine search of his jail cell.

A date for Brown's capital murder trial was not set, according to the district attorney's office.

Kirk said Brown was in administrative segregation for disrupting behavior prior to an attempted assault on a guard.

Brown was kept in a concrete cell with a metal door that had a small window. Kirk said Brown was taken from his cell to a day room to exercise one hour each day.

Kirk said he did not recall if Brown was on suicide watch, adding that the information is part of the investigation.

The sheriff said officials had a hard time tracking down Brown's father, Dennis Wayne Brown Jr., because he is not living in the area. Brown's last known residence was in Madisonville.

An open records request filed last year by The Eagle revealed Brown was convicted at age 19 of aggravated robbery in 1999 and served a 15-year sentence. During that time, he was transported to 18 facilities, including the UTMB-Galveston hospital on several occasions.

The records also show Brown was transported to three TDCJ psychiatric facilities more than two dozen times during his incarceration.

"To me, Dennis Brown really died years ago when he spent so much time in solitary confinement in prison," Billy Carter, Brown's court-appointed attorney, said late Monday.

"What remained of him died today. It's a tragic end to a sad life," Carter said, declining to comment further.

Kirk said Brown was receiving medication for a health issue daily, but did not recall what the medicine was for or what health issues Brown had while in custody.

Sheriff's investigators were waiting on the results of an autopsy to confirm the cause of death, Kirk said.

A Texas Ranger was called in from another county to oversee the investigation by the sheriff's deputies. Kirk said Friday's double homicide and the shooting at a Twin Peaks in Waco on Sunday has local Texas Rangers occupied.

"This has been an unusual few days," Kirk said.

Claude to hold Smithsonian exhibit

The Smithsonian Institution's traveling exhibit "Journey Stories" debuts on May 26, 2015 at the Armstrong County Museum in Claude.

Visitors to "Journey Stories" will navigate four centuries of American history while experiencing the joys and hardships of journeys past. Just as the summer travel season kicks off, visitors can enjoy an exhibition that explores the history of American travel, from immigration to migration, the role of innovation and myriad transportation modes, and the search for freedom. Of particular interest to area visitors might be the portion of the exhibit dedicated to the role railroads played in the development of the west.

Using a wide range of engaging visuals, audio clips, music, maps and artifacts, "Journey Stories" brings to life the personal paths of immigrants, slaves, explorers, business tycoons and historical figures whose travels have led from the Mayflower to the Golden State. The Armstrong County Museum is the final stop on the exhibit's tour of Texas.

This unique opportunity can only be experienced at the Armstrong County Museum located at 120 N. Trice, Claude, from May 26 – July 4, 2015. Museum hours are Tuesday – Saturday, 12:00 – 4:00 p.m. Admission is $3.00/person. Groups welcome. Call 806-226-2187 for more information.

"Journey Stories" has been made possible by the Texas State Historical Association. The exhibit is part of Museum on Main Street, a collaboration between the Smithsonian Institution and State Humanities Councils nationwide. Support for Museum on Main Street has been provided by the United States Congress.

Thornberry, Larsen introduce bill to improve transportation options for rural veterans

WASHINGTON – US Congressmen Mac Thornberry (R-Clarendon) and Rick Larsen (D-Everett) today introduced "The Rural Veterans Travel Enhancement Act of 2015," H.R. 2291, that would reauthorize the Veterans Transportation Services program for five years and provide mileage reimbursement for combat veterans traveling to receive counseling and care from veterans centers.

"We have a responsibility to the men and women who sacrificed so much for our nation with their selfless service," said Thornberry, the chairman of the House Armed Services Committee. "We will never know the full extent of their sacrifice, but we would not know freedom without it. That is why programs and legislation like this one are so important in our work to better serve them."

The Veterans Transportation Service program provides funding to local VA facilities to hire transportation coordinators and purchase vehicles that VA-trained staff can use to connect more veterans to the care they need. Amarillo transported 6,047 Veterans to appointments between Oct 1, 2104 and March 31, 2015. The program is a cost-effective way to help veterans access health care by saving money on ambulance costs and mileage reimbursements.

"Access to health care does not just mean having enough doctors. It means making sure veterans can get to appointments with their doctors. My bill will help break down travel barriers so veterans don't have to wonder how they will get to their next healthcare appointment," said Larsen, a senior member of the House Armed Services Committee.

The Rural Veterans Travel Enhancement Act will: Reauthorize for five years the Veterans Transportation Services program;

Provide mileage reimbursement for veterans traveling to receive counseling and care from Veterans Centers like the one in Amarillo; and Reauthorize a grant program to provide transportation options to highly rural veterans seeking medical care.

A companion bill in the Senate was introduced by Sens. Jon Tester (R-MT) and Patty Murray (D-WA).

Thornberry's office is available to assist veterans who need help accessing resources. Call his Amarillo office at (806) 371-8844.

Broncos claim Area over Tahoka

By Sandy Anderberg

The Clarendon Broncos are having a stellar season. They were able to claim a district championship with only one loss in their district schedule and because of that championship they received a bye in the first round of the playoffs.

After a two-week layoff period, the Broncos were eager to get on with post-season play. Last Friday, they traveled to Plainview to take on a good Tahoka team in the Area round at Wayland Baptist University. The Broncos bested their opponent in two out of three games, which catapulted them to the Regional quarterfinals the end of this week.

The Broncos won the first game of the series in an extra inning, when Nick Shadle hit a monster single with runners on second and third to win the game in the bottom of the eighth. Senior Zack LaRoe threw a no-hitter in the Broncos' 1-0 win over the Bulldogs. He also struck out nine batters and walked only two. On the plate, Kade Hunsaker got a hit on each of his four times at bat and the Broncos as a whole hit the ball well according to head coach Brad Elam.

"We did get a lot of hits, but couldn't drive in any runs until the eighth when Nick Shadle came through driving in Clay Koetting for the walk off win."

Elam was also proud of LaRoe's effort on mound.

"Zack threw a heck of a game," he said. "Don't see no-hitters much, especially in the playoffs and an extra inning game."

The win prompted a game two for the Broncos and they were defeated 4-6. The Broncos led early, but failed to hold that lead when the Bulldogs took advantage of a wild pitch to get the lead.

"We didn't play as well on defense and had some costly mistakes," Elam said. "We had one big inning but failed again to drive in runs."

A third game was needed to see who would advance and the Broncos, once again, showed their strength with their bats. Junior Bryce Hatley handled the pressure and got a good hit to left field to score Josh Cobb for the walk-off win at 5-4. Hatley was four for four from the plate with a single in the first, fourth, fifth, and seventh innings. His seventh inning scored Josh Cobb. In the fourth Senior Charles Mason slammed an RBI single that added to three other runs in the inning and helped to boost Clarendon.

"What a game," Elam said. "Back and forth. We took a 4-2 lead, but were not able to hang on in the seventh. A few too many walks allowed them to tie the game, but with one out, Josh Cobb doubled off the top of wall and Bryce Hatley hit a dribble between shortstop and third base that squirted through and Cobb was able to score the playoff winning run. Very proud of the way the kids battled and played. Very exciting series with two walk off wins and a no hitter."

The Broncos will play Plemons-Stinnett-Phillips at Amarillo High School this Thursday, May 21, at 5 p.m. and again on Saturday, May 23, at 1 p.m.

The Broncos won the Area Title last week against Tahoka. On the plate is Joshua Cobb during the Area game at Wayland Baptist University.
