THIS WEEK

2 A libertarian analyst says everyone should have to pay taxes.

4 The community rallies to buy gifts for local children in need.

5 Hedley students are rewarded for their artistic endeavours.

6 And the Broncos slam the Valley Patriots.

All this and much more as The Enterprise reports in this week's amazing edition!

DPS boosts holiday traffic enforcement

The Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS) will increase patrols for an eight-day period that includes both the Christmas and New Year holidays. From Dec. 24 – 27 and Dec. 31 – Jan. 3, DPS troopers, as well as law enforcement, will be patrolling roadways throughout the holiday weekends looking for drunk drivers, speeders, seat belt violators and other drivers who are endangering themselves and others.

“Drinking and driving is always a concern during the holidays, and these DPS patrols help by identifying impaired or reckless drivers who endanger the safety of the traveling public,” said DPS Director Steven McCraw. “We urge Texans to do their part to save lives by always driving sober and adhering to all traffic laws.”

During the Christmas/New Year holiday enforcement effort last year, DPS troopers made 403 DWI arrests. DPS enforcement efforts also resulted in 7,274 speeding citations, 724 seat belt/child safety seat citations, 292 fugitive arrests and 166 felony arrests.

Candlelight service to be held Dec. 24

The First United Methodist Church will hold a candlelight service on Christmas Eve, Dec. 24. The service starts at 6 p.m., and everyone is invited.

Chamber rewarding local holiday buyers

Shopping at home can put money in your pocket this month thanks to a new promotion from the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce.

Chriss Clifford was the first winner of the season, getting $125 in Clarendon Cash last week; and Shauna Herbert was the second winner this week.

To enter next week's drawing for $125 in Clarendon Cash, just bring a receipt from a Chamber member business for $100 or more to the Clarendon Visitor Center for a chance to win.

Receipts for $100 or more must be dated between November 27 and December 28 in order to enter the contest.

The final drawing for this season will be held at noon December 28 at the Visitor Center.

Enterprise sets holiday schedule

THE CLARENDON ENTERPRISE will be closed for the Christmas and New Year's holidays, December 23-January 1.

Next week's “Year in Review” edition will be distributed on Wednesday, December 30, and the paper will resume regular office hours on Monday, January 4, 2016, and regular deadlines will be in place with news and photos being due by noon Monday and ads and classifieds being due by 5 p.m.

We wish all our readers and advertisers a very Merry Christmas and a fantastic New Year!

Forest Service says threat of wildfire exists

A wet winter may be in store, but the threat of wildfire still exists.

The current El Niño conditions drop the threat of wildfire to below normal, however Texas A&M Forest Service urges caution this holiday season.

“Fireworks and outdoor fires are usually associated with this time of year,” Jan Amen, fire prevention specialist said. “It's important to be careful, because one spark can cause a devastating fire.”

Although much of the state received above normal rainfall – which suppressed fires for most of the year – the rain increased the amount of grass present, which can serve as fuel for a wildfire start.

“Awareness of this threat is a key safety concern for this winter,” Tom Spencer, Predictive Services department head said.

Abundant fuels can increase fire size and make wildfire more difficult to control.

Spencer also said that even though the ground is wet, the grass above the ground can still catch fire which may spread quickly if conditions are windy.

Texas A&M Forest Service offers the following tips for the holidays:

When and where outdoor burning is allowed, keep the fire small, never leave it unattended and remove leaves and other material from the area surrounding the fire. Avoid lighting piles on windy days.

Keep water, wet towels and a garden hose nearby. A spark or burning ember can ignite dry, fine-textured fuels like grass and weeds.

Properly watering your live Christmas tree and promptly disposing of it after the holidays reduces the chance of a house fire.

Remove your natural Christmas tree soon after the holidays and consider community tree recycling projects.

Dispose of wrapping paper, boxes and other holiday waste by recycling, when practical. Burn paper and cardboard in a burn barrel or fire-proof receptacle topped by a metal screen or grill, as winds can carry embers over long distances.

The daily fire danger outlooks can be found on the Predictive Services web page.

CHS students building bridges for competition

Physics students at Clarendon High School recently competed against one another to build the strongest balsa wood tower.

This year's winners in the annual contest were Bryce Hatley and Nick Shadle. Their half-ounce bridge held over 36 pounds of weight for a 2.65 pounds/gram score.

Bridges were scored on a ratio of pounds held/gram of bridge.

Second place in the contest went to Briley Chadwick and Sterling King, with Cire Jaregui and Alysse Simpson placing third. This year's winners of total weight held were Chance Lockhart and Bryce Grahm, whose 1.25 ounce bridge held nearly 60 pounds of weight before collapsing.

Next six weeks students will compete in building a balsa wood tower to support weight.

Haven spreads hope, impacts lives all year

As we celebrate this holiday season, I'd like to tell you about a place in San Antonio that captures the holiday spirit of caring year-round.

After Peter lost his job, he found himself living a life he never imagined: seemingly all at once, he was living on the street, using drugs, and without anywhere to turn. He'd lost his friends in his downward spiral, and shame and guilt prevented him from asking his family for help.

But fortunately for Peter, in his hometown was a nationally-renowned transformation center meant to help people just like him. The non-profit Haven for Hope helps people down on their luck not only get back on their feet, but also empowers them to give back to the community that lifted them up.

Peter had hit rock bottom when he finally sought help at Haven for Hope. He worked with a case manager to develop a personalized plan, beginning with a 90-day in-house recovery program. Peter received on-site treatment that cured his addiction, and medical care to restore his overall physical health. But most important for Peter was the restoration of his faith in himself. Healthy, clean, and on the path to independence, Peter was eventually able to reunite with his estranged family.

Peter's story is just one of nearly 8,000 Texans who have sought out Haven for Hope for shelter, restoration, and hope over the last five years, ranging from those in a rough patch, to those just released from prison, to the chronically homeless.

Having visited the facility, I can tell you Haven for Hope truly lives up to its name.

Located just west of downtown San Antonio, Haven for Hope's 22-acre campus can sleep 1,500 people on any given night, but as Peter quickly found out, the facility is much more than a shelter.

Just like Peter, each individual or family that comes through the doors of Haven for Hope's Transformational Resource Center first meets with a case manager to put together a specialized transformation plan based on the medical, legal, educational, employment, and other services offered that would most benefit them. To meet their specific needs, Haven for Hope guests' first step could be to enroll in a class to prepare for the GED exam, get help with a job application, or receive critical medical care.

All-in-all, Haven for Hope partners with 92 different agencies to offer over 150 specialized services, ensuring a comprehensive transformation for each of their guests.

For example, the San Antonio Food Bank's on-site facility not only serves three healthy meals a day there, but also offers an opportunity for guests to earn a certificate in Culinary Arts. As a testament to the effectiveness of this partnership, graduates can go on to find jobs in the food service industry; one graduate is now a pastry chef at a hotel in downtown San Antonio.

While guests work on personal improvement, Haven for Hope provides long-term living quarters for individuals and families. And for those who prefer temporary, anonymous shelter, the Courtyard allows guests to lock up their belongings while they sleep safely inside a guarded gate. Guests of the Courtyard are offered a hot shower and a hot meal, and the door is left open for them to explore the other programs Haven for Hope has to offer whenever they feel ready.

All of these life-changing services Haven for Hope offers come at no cost to the guests. However, many choose to give back by working at the facility or by donating when they are able to get back on their feet, a truly touching testament of the hope the center provides.

Part of Haven for Hope's success stems from their unwavering positivity. Employees don't let individuals dwell on past or present troubles. Through a technique Haven for Hope calls 'motivational interviewing', guests are taught instead to focus on their desire to improve, and more importantly, their power to change.

Haven for Hope has succeeded in slowing down the revolving door of homelessness by treating the whole person. Their model of empowerment has helped the city of San Antonio make great strides in reducing homelessness. Since its opening in 2010, more than 2,400 Haven for Hope graduates have moved into permanent housing. Haven for Hope notes that homelessness in downtown San Antonio has dropped by 80 percent since the center's inception. And through a partnership with the Center for Health Care Services, San Antonio Police officers can divert some of those in need to Haven for Hope instead of a public jail or emergency room, which Haven for Hope estimates saves the city about $1 million per year.

And for a personal testament to their success, look no further than Peter, who has graduated from the program. He has moved into permanent housing on his own, yet still refers to Haven for Hope fondly as "home sweet home." Peter is now a full-time employee of Haven for Hope, helping people who face challenges he was all too familiar with not long ago.

A chicken way out of clucking noise

At this "turkey time" of year, stories of chickens are decidedly in the background. Clucking is drowned out by gobbles. The mention of "clucking" brings to mind a vignette destined to become an urban legend, except for a sudden change of location to a pastoral setting where neighbors live acres apart.

Let the story begin. By any measure, my friend Les Paul Vernon is a champion. A wonderful Christian and model citizen, he is an optimist by nature, almost always prevailing on projects large and small. A former Marine fighter pilot, Vernon is the "stuff" from where confidence and competence dwell. He and wife Melissa, along with three children, are living the American dream, much of it going swimmingly as planned.

Until a while back, anyway, when Les decided his children should learn at least a sliver of the farm life he had known during his youth in a bona fide rural community called Itasca. He would do so, thought he, with a small flock of, uh, urban chickens....

He spent days – yea, weeks – with "Dr. Google," determined to provide accommodations which for chickens might be the "coop" de resistance! They would luxuriate in "cushiness" worthy of the same name chicken magnate Bo Pilgrim gave to his lovely estate – "Cluckingham Palace." (Les claims "Taj ma Coop" has a good ring, too.)

I mean Les was "drumstick deep" in research to provide the best possible experience for his children – Samantha, 17; Reed, 14, and Jacob, 10. He dreamed of their eager engagement in chores they'd happily experience – feeding, tending, protecting and, of course, the gathering of eggs daily.

He'd pored over regulations, studied numerous breeds and had drawn detailed designs for a coop and run, the former to be 6x12 feet, so he could slide it onto a 12-foot trailer if need be. There were details about the foundation, ventilation, safety, automation, lighting and assorted other topics. Indeed, Les and Lowe's "did" the project together, to the tune of about $3,500....

Few details were overlooked. There are hundreds of them included in my notes. Urban folks who may be contemplating acquisition of a few chickens are welcome to them. Just send email address.

Indeed, many steps in the project are guideposts for living. It was begun, for example, on Easter Sunday.

The importance of patience came into play, too, since the eggs were not to come until the chicks became hens....

The three chickens – Pollo, Deer and Feathers – did what chickens do. They ingested bugs during their periods of "recess" in the backyard, and seemed to greatly enjoy their "preening sessions" in front of tiny mirrors placed strategically in the coop.

To say they were pampered would be a gross understatement.

There was excitement, of course, when they started laying eggs. Les says they were tasty, but wait....

the idle american

by don newbury

As if to join in the exultation of egg production, as well as preening done exceptionally well, the three hens – Speckled Sussex – began celebratory clucking, often as a trio. Les knew he didn't have to worry about crowing, since roosters aren't allowed in his neighborhood. Clucking, however, wasn't carefully researched.

Alas, if his research had deepened, he would have learned this breed is well known for turning out champion "cluckers" – noise well beyond the point of mere annoyance.

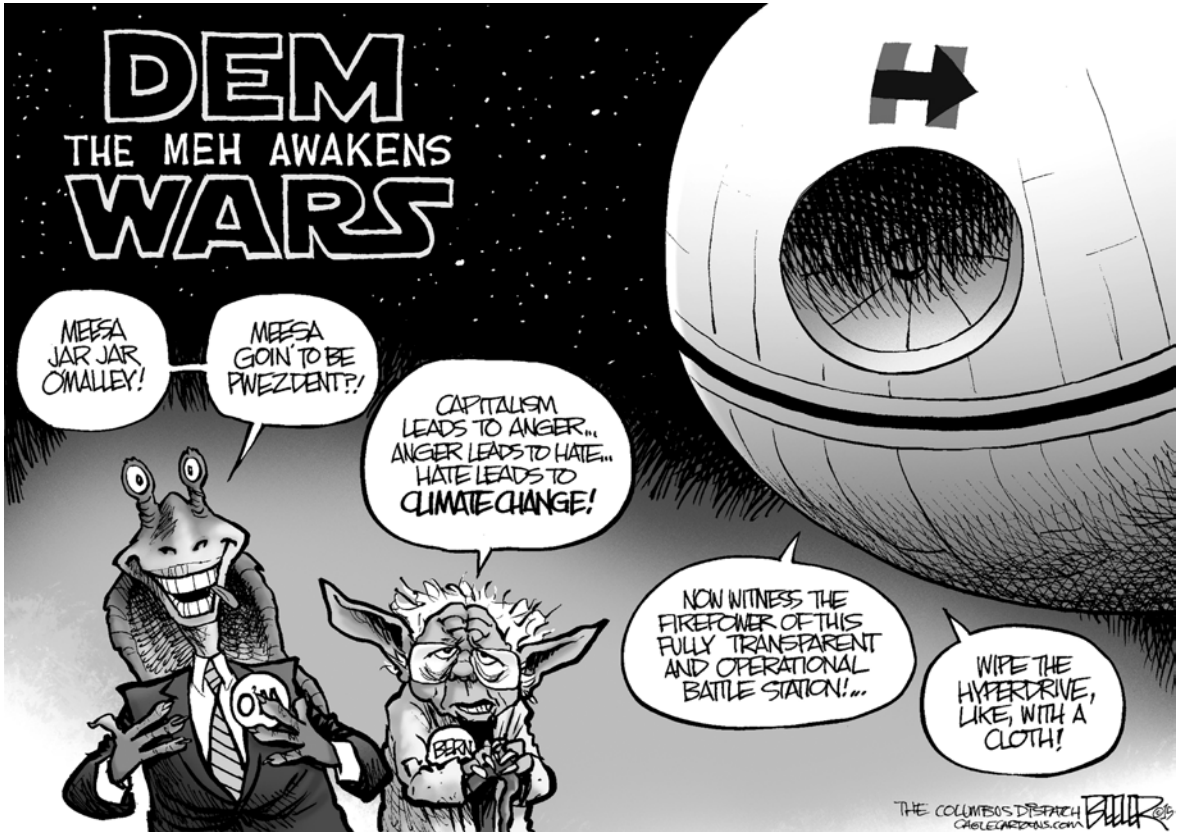

Early each morning, Les and Melissa – their bedroom only about 50 feet from the coop – were awakened by the clucking. Plus, the clucks – predictable at around 5:30 a.m. daily – seemed to echo. The Vernons are sure their neighbors, with bedrooms about the same distance away from the coop as their own, were hearing the same triumphant clucks....

What to do? Remember the design that provided ease of relocation by trailer? The three hens are now interspersed with the flock at his brother's farm 40 minutes away near Grandview.

They have taken right to their new roles as "free range chickens." And, the Vernons' children visit the hens often, calling them by name. And when the kids yell and whistle to bid them come, they do so, gleefully.

It should be noted, of course, that the Vernons didn't field a single complaint from neighbors. They sleep better, though, knowing they evacuated the three hens before they had to....

Everyone should pay some taxes

By Doug Bandow

Even failed candidates sometimes had good ideas. So it was with Louisiana Gov. Bobby Jindal. He sharply challenged conventional wisdom when he proposed a tax reform plan that ensured everyone paid at least some income tax.

His bottom rate was just 2 percent. But he'd have killed most of the deductions and credits that allow those with low incomes to pay nothing. Jindal's idea should outlive his candidacy because other GOP presidential wannabes propose going the other way.

In fact, the Tax Policy Center figures that already 45.3 percent of American households — 77.5 million out of 171.3 million — won't pay any income tax this year. Trump's plan would probably push that to well over half.

The current nonpayers are divided roughly equally between those who don't earn enough money and those who are eligible for credits and deductions which offset their earnings.

Indeed, refundable tax credits have turned an increasing number of "taxpayers" into tax consumers.

The idea of cutting taxes to nothing, especially on those who don't earn much, is superficially attractive.

The idea of cutting taxes to nothing, especially on those who don't earn much, is superficially attractive. But it's actually dangerous for a democratic republic, especially one based on limited government and individual rights.

As Jindal explained: "We simply must require that every American has some skin in this game. If we have generations of Americans who never pay any taxes, it will be very easy for them to turn a blind eye to absurd government spending."

His point was simple but powerful. If government programs don't obviously cost you something, there's no reason to be against government programs. Even stupid ones, so long as you perceive some possible benefit from them. It's a form of "fiscal illusion."

Of course, many who don't pay income taxes are hit by payroll taxes. But income taxes are the most visible federal levy. They also are what formally funds most of the programs received by nonpayers.

Although in truth tax revenues are fungible, the payroll tax typically is seen as dedicated to Social Security and Medicare. Thus, someone who opposes a payroll tax hike still might embrace a tax-and-spend policy based on the income tax.

The Tax Foundation concluded: "Basic economic theory tells us that consumers will respond to a drop in the price of a product by demanding more. By extension, economists predict that as the price of government goes down for a citizen, he or she will then demand more of it."

That certainly appears to be our experience. The federal income tax was permanently established only a century ago and dramatically expanded during World War II. Since then, it has become the engine of big government growth.

Of course, government expenditures have risen year in and year out, irrespective of the share of nonpayers. The system's overall bias toward an expanded state may overwhelm any additional impact from the rising number of nonpayers.

Nevertheless, the Tax Foundation recorded a stronger relationship between that number and transfer payments: "After the late 1960s, with the start of the Great Society programs, the growth of transfer payments and the growth of nonpayers begin to move closer together."

Indeed, "over the past 25 years, the two trends seem to track each other quite closely, with both reaching their 60-year peak in 2009 and 2010."

This suggests that real tax reform, while simplifying and reducing taxes, also should ensure a minimum level of burden-sharing by everyone, including lower-income workers.

The wealthy already pay the vast majority of income taxes. The top 1 percent of taxpayers paid 38.1 percent in 2012 (the latest available figures). The top 5 percent were responsible for 58.9 percent, and the top 10 percent paid 70.2 percent of income tax collections.

Thus, proposals to massively expand the welfare state by shaking a bit of change loose from the pockets of the rich are a delusion. Expanding the number of nonpayers inevitably increases the burden on fewer and fewer payers.

Jindal won't be president, but he got tax reform right. As he explained, "in America, everyone is expected to help row the boat. Independence, not dependence, is the root of the American dream. It's time we had the guts to say so in public." He did. The rest of the presidential candidates should follow. Doug Bandow is a senior fellow at the Cato Institute and a former special assistant to President Reagan.

Stay safe and watch for these new scams

Hi, gang! The IRS Scam is going strong in Donley County. A local lady called and advised she had received two calls in one day. Three short articles this week. Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. Stay safe and watch for scammers.

“Veterans and identity theft Twitter chat” by Carol Kando-Pineda Attorney, FTC’s Division of Consumer & Business Education

You probably know a few veterans. You might even be a vet yourself. If so, you’ll want to get some valuable tips from the FTC’s Military Consumer campaign, the Department of Veteran Affairs and the US Treasury Inspector General for Tax Administration (TIGTA). We’re joining forces for a Twitter chat about how vets can protect themselves against identity theft and IRS imposter scams – and how to use Identitytheft.gov to recover from this crime.

“Don’t recognize that debt? Here’s what to do.” By Dan Dwyer, Staff Attorney, Division of Financial Practices, FTC

Debt collectors make up to one billion contacts with consumers each year. It’s their job to make sure they’re collecting from the right people. But sometimes, they reach the wrong person. Other times, they’re actually part of a fake debt collection scam.

If you don’t recognize a debt, here’s what you can do:

Find out who you’re dealing with. Ask for the collector’s name, the company’s name, and its address and phone number. Legitimate collectors will provide this information.

Don’t give additional personal information. The collector might ask you to confirm personal information. If the collector has the wrong information, like an address or phone number you’ve never used, don’t correct the mistake with the right information. And don’t give any other personal information. If it’s not your debt, but the collector now has the right personal information for you, it could be harder for you to dispute the debt later.

Refuse to discuss the debt until you get a “validation notice.” Collectors must send you a written notice. It tells you how much money you owe, the name of the creditor, and what to do if you don’t think you owe the money. This notice might help you figure out if you owe the debt.

Do your own detective work. Reach out to the company the collector says is the original creditor. They might help you figure out if the debt is legitimate – and if this collector has the right to collect the debt. Also, get your free, annual credit report online or at 877-322-8228 and see if the debt shows up there.

bob's whittlin'
by bob watson

Dispute the debt in writing. If you think you don’t owe some – or all – of the debt, or you just don’t recognize it, send the collector a letter disputing it. Be as specific as possible about why you think the debt is wrong – but give as little personal information as possible. Once you get the validation notice, you have 30 days to send this letter.

By law, the collector then must stop contacting you – though the debt doesn’t go away. But, if the collector sends you written verification of the debt, they can start contacting you again.

And, if there’s incorrect information on your credit report, dispute that, too. You can use these sample letters, using the address given in your credit report.

“Copper clothing to the rescue?” By Amy Hebert, Consumer Education Specialist, FTC

Could what you wear today be the difference between a day of severe pain and one of total relief?

According to Tommie Copper infomercials, TV spots, YouTube videos, print ads, and brochures, wearing the company’s copperinfused compression garments could relieve severe pain and inflammation — whether it’s chronic joint pain, or pain caused by diseases like multiple sclerosis, arthritis, and fibromyalgia.

Unfortunately, the FTC says, Tommie Copper and its founder didn’t have the science to back up those claims. But that wasn’t all. According to the FTC’s complaint, Tommie Copper ads also touted the sleeves as “pain relief without a pill.” Testimonials claimed that Tommie Copper compression wear was as good as or better than drugs or surgery, with people even claiming to go from needing surgery to “not going near the surgeon’s knife” after using Tommie Copper products.

Today, the FTC announced that Tommie Copper and founder Thomas Kallish have agreed to settle the FTC’s charges. The order requires the company and Kallish to only make claims they can support with solid scientific research.

Before you try a new health product or service that promises amazing results, talk to your doctor or other healthcare professional. The FTC has brought cases against companies whose ads falsely claimed that a product will treat a serious disease or can replace surgery. To report a health product you believe is advertised falsely, file a complaint with the FTC.

Safety course for hunters to be held at Copper Breaks

QUANAH – Copper Breaks State Park will offer the state-approved Hunter Safety course on Saturday, January 9, 2016, according to Wendell Barberee, lead ranger and Hunter Safety instructor at the park.

The course is required by law for all hunters born after September 2, 1971. Proof of course completion must accompany hunting licenses.

The course begins at 9:00 a.m. on Saturday, January 9, 2015. It is recommended that participants bring a sack lunch as there will only be a short lunch break.

Participation is by reservation only. Younger hunters should be accompanied by an adult. A non-refundable advance payment of $15.00 is required to sign up for the class. Park admission of $2.00 for adults is waived for participants, but camping and other fees will apply.

For more information on the Hunter Safety course, other park events or facilities, contact the park daily during business hours at (940)839-4331. Copper Breaks State Park is located 13 miles south of Quanah and eight miles north of Crowell on State Highway 6.

Broncos blast Valley

The Bronco varsity made easy work of the Valley Patriots at home before the break and easily defeated them 74-40.

Offensively, the Broncos were on their game as they had four players in double figures. Senior Junior Cenicerros hit four three-pointers, leading the team on the scoreboard with 24 points. Colt Wood and Bryce Grahn were on fire as well, finishing with 14 and 13 points respectively. The inside work of Marshal Johnson netted the Broncos with 11 points in the win.

They Broncos were not only on their game offensively; they were spot on defensively, as well. They stopped everything Valley tried and were able to keep them off the score-board.

Keandre Cortez and Chesson Sims added four each to the score and Damarjae Cortez put in three, while Bear Smith added one from the free throw line. As a team, the Broncos shot 67 percent from the bonus line.

They will take on Fritch at home Saturday, January 2, at 3:30 and then travel to White Deer on Tuesday, January 5.

Bronco JV slams Valley

Noab Elam hit three three-pointers, finishing with 12 points, to lead the Bronco junior varsity to a big win over Valley at home last Tuesday night. The Broncos easily won that game 54-11.

The Broncos began the game strong and found a rhythm offensively. Their defense was outstanding as they held them scoreless in both the second quarter and third quarter.

Payton Havens joined Elam finishing in double figures with 10 points. The Patriots were helpless against the strength of the Broncos on both ends of the court. Kenrick Addington aided the Broncos with eight and Preston Elam and Daquawne Oliver each put in seven. Ryan Ward helped with six and Isaac Dunham added four.

The Broncos will take on Fritch at home on Saturday, January 2, beginning at 2:00 p.m. They will play at White Deer on January 5.

Lady Broncos fall to the Lady Patriots

By Sandy Anderberg

The Lady Broncos played a good first half in their 44-63 loss against Valley at home Tuesday night, but fell off in the second half as Valley exploded offensively to get the win.

The Lady Broncos only trailed by four points at the break, but the third quarter proved tough for Clarendon as the Lady Patriots hit shot after shot to add to their lead. They were able to outscore the Lady Broncos by 14 points and grab the momentum. The Lady Broncos were unable to make up the difference before time ran out.

Shaelyn Owiti had a good game outside and led the ladies with 12 points, while Berkeley Alexander stayed strong inside to put in 10 points. Brianna Butler had nine and Briley Chadwick helped with six. Hannah Hommel had four, Hannah Howard put in three, and Jensen Hatley finished with one.

The Lady Broncos will play Fritch at home on Saturday, January 2, beginning at 2:00 p.m. and travel to White Deer January 5.

Colts take on tough Wellington teams

Both seventh and eight grade Colts traveled to Wellington Monday night and played hard, but were defeated. The seventh grade lost 13-27 and the eighth grade fell 22-43.

The Colts played hard, but were no match for the tough Wellington teams. The seventh grade had a slow first half, but was able to connect in the third quarter of play. But the deficit was too great and the Colts could not make up any ground. Ivan Gonzalez put in six points, Aaron Roys added five, and Travis Thomas helped with two.

The eighth grade Colts were able to stay fairly close to the Rockets in the first half of play, but fell off in the second twelve minutes. They had some defensive breakdowns in the final two quarters that allowed the Rockets to take control of the scoreboard.

Jamal Butler put in nine, Marcus Lilly had five, and Clay Ward added four. Collin Butler and Tanner Burch each had two.

"The seventh grade started out slow in the first half and couldn't get many shots to fall," coach Brad Elam said. "Our defense was sluggish, but the second half was much better. The kids understood better what I wanted them to do on defense and we executed and got shots to fall on offense. It was a much better second half. The eighth grade was the opposite. I thought we played a really good first half. Defensively, we struggled, but were able to score. In the second half, we struggled to score. I see promise from both teams."

The Colts will travel to Quanah on Monday, January 7, beginning at 5:00 p.m.

Lady Colts stumble against Wellington

The junior high Lady Colts hosted the Wellington Lady Rockets last Monday at home and were defeated 18-32 and 16-30.

The seventh grade Lady Colts never gave up and finished the first half only six points down. They were able to close the gap to five points before the final quarter of play, but could never catch Wellington as they pulled away. Jade Benson put in eight points and Ashlynn New-some had five. Kailee Osburn and Amnesty Oatman added two and Kaylin Hicks put in one.

The eighth grade Lady Colts held their own in the first half of play and actually led by one point at the break. But Wellington started making their shots in the third quarter as they exploded offensively. Kira Weather-ton finished with six and Darcie Hunsaker helped with five. Madi Gay had three and Giselle Mel-lado put in two free throws.

The Lady Colts will be home Monday, January 7, and play Quanah beginning at 5:00 p.m.

Lady Bronco JV stuns Valley

The Lady Bronco junior varsity easily handled Valley at home on Tuesday, December 15, defeating them 46-15. The ladies used a strong offense and aggressive defense to get the win.

Clarendon led early on and never gave up that lead as they stopped the Lady Patriots from gaining any momentum offensively. Sandra Smith was on fire as she put in 21 points and Emily Johnson helped with 10. Zaryia Smith had eight and Kendra Weather-ton put in four. Brandalynn Ellis finished with two and Allyson Hogan had one.

"The girls are working hard," coach Kasey Bell said. "We are staying aggressive on both ends of the court and seeing good results."

Junior, Kenrick Addington and Freshman, Isaac Dunham rebound for the Broncos during the JV boys game against Valley last week.

Happy New Year, Everyone!

Out With the Old Year, In With the New!

I really like the New Year celebration. It comes around and gives me a new chance every year to do a little better or start doing something in a new way. What do you know about the celebration of the new year? Read these clues to help you fill in this New Year puzzle:

1. In Ancient Rome, the new year started in _____ because the month of January did not exist yet
2. to represent the birth of a New Year we use a newborn _____ dressed in a top hat and a sash
3. by the end of the year the child grows into a wrinkled _____
4. _____ time is used to represent the passage of years; he usually carries an hourglass
5. to celebrate the new year many people gather to eat, drink and dance at a _____; the biggest is in New York City in Times Square
6. _____ light up the sky in celebration; they can be seen behind the Statue of Liberty, the Eiffel Tower and the Forbidden City in China
7. the new year officially begins when the clock strikes _____
8. everyone's favorite New Year's _____ is "Auld Lang Syne," which means "old long since"
9. after the parties of New Year's eve, many people relax by watching the big _____ game, "The Rose Bowl"
10. after the game people line the streets to watch the "Rose _____" which takes place in California
11. friends wish each other a happy _____ New Year
12. people use the start of a new year as a way to better themselves through New Year's _____

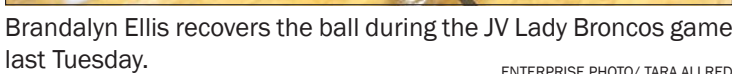

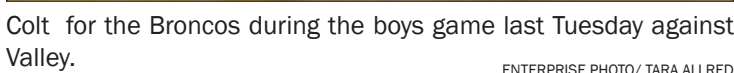

What's a New Year's Resolution?

Have you ever heard of a New Year's resolution? It is a promise you make to yourself to change something or add something to your life. My New Year's resolution is to do my chores without being reminded by my Mom. What will be your New Year's resolution?

This 2-part puzzle has ideas that you might like to try. First, read the clues and fill in the crossword puzzle. Next, match each resolution to its 2nd part that would "kick it up" a bit.

1. get more fresh air and _____
2. finish all your _____
3. spend less time talking on the _____
4. try out a new _____ or sport
5. clean your _____
6. watch less _____
7. develop a new, special _____ (singing, dancing, juggling)
8. feed your _____ healthy _____
9. think about how to make yourself _____ healthy _____ well before it is due
10. do your _____ well before it is due
11. save up your _____ on time
12. get to _____ on time

A. and invite friends and family over instead
B. and help your brother and sister with theirs
C. and put on a show for your family to enjoy
D. and take on a few extra little jobs without being asked
E. and choose an exciting book to read instead
F. and spend it on someone else
G. and make a chart of your progress
H. with clean clothes and a clean you!
I. and help your parents shop and pick out fruits you like
J. and help with the rest of the house too
K. and play with it every day, and keep it clean too
L. and become the best you can at it

House passes budget and tax bills

WASHINGTON - U.S. Congressman Mac Thornberry (R-Clarendon) voted this week in support of the "Protecting Americans from Tax Hikes (PATH) Act of 2015" that passed the House by vote of 318-109 and the "Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2016" that passed by a vote of 316-113.

"There are a number of good and important provisions for the country and for our area in these bills," said Thornberry. "While there are also a number of provisions that I support – and have voted for – that did not survive negotiations, many did."

Some of the chief provisions

include:

Providing essential funding for our military; Repealing the 40-year-old ban on exporting crude oil; Limiting EPA funding to its lowest level since 2008; Repealing the Country-of-Origin-Labeling (COOL) law that threatened to harm the beef and other livestock industries; Extending and then phasing out the wind production tax credit; Delaying implementation of several provisions and taxes associated with Obamacare; and Strengthening security of the Visa Waiver Program.

The PATH bill also made permanent over 20 tax provisions that Congress has been extending one year at a time, making it difficult for businesses and individuals to plan. These permanent deductions include: State and local sales tax deduction, which is important in states like Texas that do not have a state income tax; Section 179 expensing for small businesses; The Research and Development Tax Credit; Charitable deduction for contributions of food inventory; and Many other tax provisions were extended for two or five years.

Finally, attached to the measure is a cybersecurity bill, similar to that recommended by the Cyber Security Task Force, which Thornberry chaired in 2011 and 2012.

Texas checkoff program begins its second year

AUSTIN – After a successful inaugural year, the Texas state beef checkoff program began its second year of collections that fund programs aimed at strengthening and expanding beef demand.

Texas beef producers voted in June 2014 to establish a state-level beef checkoff program, which was approved by a wide margin of 66 percent of voters. The Texas Department of Agriculture conducted the referendum upon petition by cattle industry organizations under the authorities designated by the Texas Legislature.

The program is funded through a refundable $1 per head assessment on cattle at each point of ownership transfer in Texas. The funds are managed in accordance with Texas law by the Beef Promotion Research Council of Texas (BPRCT). The BPRCT consists of 20 Texas cattle producers appointed by the Texas commissioner of agriculture.

The BPRCT contracts with the Texas Beef Council to conduct demand-building programs in the areas of promotion, research and education. The fiscal 2016 year began Oct. 1, 2015 for the BPRCT with a budget of $9.51 million.

Drugs in the News

Nasal Spray Reverses Medicine Overdose

The United States Food and Drug Administration recently approved a nasal spray formulation of a medication that has been used for some time to reverse overdose events related to certain pain medications. The spray contains naloxone, it is called Narcan. It reverses the effects of an overdose from opioid medications such as morphine, hydrocodone, and oxy-codone. The nasal spray version of naloxone hydrochloride (Narcan) is believed to immediately help deliver the medication safely in life-threatening situations.

In clinical trial naloxone nasal spray was delivered into one nostril. It produced the same level of overdose reversal compared to the injectable medication. Naloxone nasal spray can cause symptoms of withdrawal when it is administered to people with opioid dependence. Signs of withdrawal include body aches, diarrhea, nausea, vomiting, restlessness, shivering, and increased blood pressure.
