Lions to host 5K Saturday

Runners and walkers will gather at Clarendon College this Saturday to raise awareness about child abuse during the seventh annual Chance Mark Jones Roar & Run 5K.

More than 75 people have registered for the event, which is hosted by the Clarendon Lions Club and coincides with Child Abuse Prevention Month.

Sign-ins start at 8 a.m. at the Bairfield Activity Center. The 9 a.m. race will start and end at the Bulldog Gym and run through the city; in front of the First Baptist Church; down Fifth Street along Clarendon Junior High; past several historic structures, including the S.W. Lowe House, the First United Methodist Church, and the Donley County Courthouse; around Prospect Park – the site of the Chance Mark Jones Memorial Playground; and then back up through the southwest part of the city to the college.

Race packets will be available for pick-up all day this Friday, April 12, at the Clarendon Visitor Center.

Proceeds from the race will benefit the charitable community activities of the Clarendon Lions Club. The race honors the life of four-year-old Chance Mark Jones, who died from abuse in 2011.

Texas House passes school finance bill

AUSTIN – The Texas House of Representatives overwhelmingly passed House Bill 3 last Wednesday that invests $9 billion in Texas classrooms to boost student achievement, support teacher quality, reduce recapture and provide property tax relief.

Following a full day of discussion on the House Floor, Rep. Ken King (R-Canadian) voted in support of House Bill 3, which passed the House with 149 votes.

"We have come together, because we all have a common goal," said King. "That is what the entire House did today and I am so proud of every member, it says a lot about the priority of the House."

House Bill 3 is the first major rewrite of school finance laws undertaken without the threat of a court order, and it puts a stop to decades of patchwork fixes by creating a more equitable public education system.

"This is the fourth session that I have worked on school finance legislation, and I am so proud of the work that the House has done to make sure that this bill is an equitable system to improve our education system as a whole," said King.

Rep. King has served on the House Committee on Public Education for four consecutive sessions and served as a member of the Texas Commission on Public School Finance during the interim of the 85th Legislature.

City putting sales tax question to voters

The City of Clarendon is asking voters to consider a change in the way local sales taxes are distributed when they go to the polls this May.

Local businesses collect an 8.25 percent sales taxes. That overall number won't change no matter which way citizens vote, but the local allocation of those taxes could change.

Of the sales tax rate, 6.25 percent goes to the state and currently 1.0 percent goes to the city's general revenue, 0.5 percent goes to economic development, and 0.5 percent goes toward property tax reduction.

If citizens vote for the ballot initiative, the 0.5 percent currently allocated for property tax reduction will be redirected with 0.25 percent going to the general fund and 0.25 being dedicated for street repairs.

The property tax reduction sales tax revenue, which amounts to about $100,000 per year, results in lowering the city's ad valorem rate by about 20 cents per $100.

Earlier this year, the city council abolished the city's tax on personal property, such as cars, trucks, boats, etc. That savings for residents will show up on next year's property tax bill along with a significant reduction expected in the city's overall property tax rate. Tax notes and certificates of obligation that were paid off earlier this year will cause the property tax rate to drop by about 28 cents per $100.

It's that lower rate and the death of the personal property tax that city leaders hope citizens will consider when they go to the ballot box. If voters approve the measure, the city's net ad valorem tax rate will be about eight cents lower than it currently is, and the city would collect about $50,000 annually from the street maintenance sales tax.

That maintenance tax can only be spent to repair existing streets and sidewalks and will have to be reauthorized by city voters every three years.

City Administrator David Dockery says that $50,000 will be dedicated over and above the city's current street maintenance budget.

"It will simply mean more dedicated funds for street maintenance and repairs," Dockery said.

Early voting begins April 22 at the Courthouse Annex and will continue through April 30. Election Day will be Saturday, May 4, 2019.

H'wick candidates clearing up tax bills

Candidates for Howardwick City Council are getting taxes and other obligations caught up as the April 22 date for early voting gets closer.

An Enterprise review this week of the candidates running for positions in Howardwick and the Clarendon Consolidated Independent School District found four candidates with outstanding obligations, each of whom say they have either cleared up the matter or are working to do so.

All school board candidates – Zack Robinson, Chuck Robertson, Robin Ellis, and William Thompson – were all current on their taxes with the Donley Appraisal District, and five of nine candidates at Howardwick – Brice Hawley, Tony Clemisher, J.D. Kindie, Beverly McCaskill, and Jerry Mullanax – were current on their city taxes as of Tuesday.

Alderman Johnny Floyd had an outstanding personal tax balance but took care of it Monday, the appraisal district said.

Candidate for mayor Coy Cooper owes some back taxes, but he said that was the result of him selling some parcels and the deed not being registered to the new owner properly, which resulted in the tax bill showing up in his name. The appraisal district confirmed Tuesday that Cooper has contact them indicating he would take care of that situation.

City Hall also said Cooper owed Red River Water Authority for water service, but Cooper said that is not true and that his water bill isn't anyone's business anyway.

"I don't owe Red River anything," Cooper said. "I do not, however, use the city's trash service, so I don't pay for it."

Alderman candidate Ericka Mills also owes back taxes, but she says that she is making payments on that obligation, and the appraisal district confirmed that Mills has made payments. The city also reports that Mills owes Red River Water Authority money, but Mills said Monday she did not know of anything she owes Red River.

Alderman candidate Tammy Jordan has an outstanding tax bill for 2018 but says she is aware of it and that it will be taken care of.

Howardwick hosts forum for city council candidates

Eight of nine candidates for office in Howardwick participated in forum last Tuesday, April 2, to answer questions submitted by citizens.

Candidate for alderman Tammy Jordan was the lone absence from the forum and told the Enterprise this week she was not notified of the meeting.

Mayoral candidates Coy Cooper, Alderman Brice Hawley, Tony Clemisher, and J.D. Kindie were up first to address citizen concerns, covering a wide range of topics, as presented by City Secretary Sandy Childress.

Hawley and Clemisher both agreed to try to not let meetings go on for three hours or more if elected.

Cooper was asked about "dividing the city," to which he replied that he merely wants the city to follow the law.

Kindle said he wanted Howardwick to be a good place to raise kids, and Clemishire said that get the fire department situation "straightened out" is critical.

All the candidates at one time or another mentioned roads as being a priority.

Hawley would like to see the city council have more time to review documents before voting on them and also would like citizens to have more time to review ordinances and regulations.

Cooper received a question about his driver's license.

"I'm not going to show my driver's license," he said. "I had to show it to get my voter registration card, and that's all that's required."

Kindle received a question about ways of uniting the city and he said he felt the Hoedown set for this June is a good start and that he also wants to see a place for kids and other citizens can gather. He also wants to bring more business to Howardwick.

Clemishire was asked about his leadership history. He talked about his experience the construction industry and facing adversity against odds.

"Worked my way up as a vice president of a large electrical contracting company," he said.

Hawley pointed to his past experience as a trustee in the Clear Lake community as an example of his leadership and said spending money on infrastructure and the fire department is important to city

Kindle said his experience as a consultant to other businesses helped qualify him to be mayor and said he imitates leaders in fields of business, particularly oil, wind, and gas.

For their goals, Cooper said he wants people treated equally and the city to follow state laws; Hawley wants a more robust fire department, beautification with walking trails and other amenities, and transparency in government; Clemishire would like to see park and city entrance improvements, and people working together; and Kindle wants more community events, finding common ground with neighbors, and attracting more population to improve quality of life.

Later four candidates for alderman were featured: Beverly McCaskill, Jerry Mullanax, Ericka Mills, and incumbent Johnny Floyd.

A recurring theme among the alderman candidates was improved communication. Mullanax also focused on enforcing ordinances and resolving the ongoing conflict between the city and volunteer fire department.

Donation to cool off CHS gym

Clarendon basketball fans will soon be able to keep cool even during heated games thanks to an anonymous donation to install air-conditioning in the Bronco Gym.

Clarendon CISD Trustees approved a resolution during its regular meeting March 21 expressing the school board's appreciation of such a generous gift to the community.

"This was an anonymous, unsolicited gift of $150,000," Clarendon Superintendent Mike Norrell said.

The board's resolution also officially dedicated those funds to the air-conditioning project, and trustees also entered into a contract with Huseman Consulting Engineers for mechanical engineering and related services on the job. The school will use a construction manager-agent as the delivery method for this project to provide the best value for the district.

Norrell said Huseman is currently working with the school district to replace rooftop HVAC units on the elementary and junior high buildings. That work is expected to be completed this summer. A timetable has not been finalized for the gym air-conditioning project.

In other school business last month, trustees heard from two people during open forum. LaTonya Wilson presented her concerns on bullying issues, and Carmer Harris presented her concerns of student mistreatment.

Administrative reports were received from Athletic Director Clint Conkin, Elementary Principal Mike Word, CJH Principal Travis Victory, CHS Principal Larry Jeffers, Counselor Jenae Ashbrook, and Norrell.

The school policy manual was updated, and the 2019-2020 school calendar was adopted.

After meeting behind closed doors for more than an hour, trustees returned to open session to acknowledge the resignations of Brian Fritz and Erica McAenar and to approve the following contract recommendations of the superintendent:

One-Year Term Contracts of Employment for professional support staff for Buffie Smith and Vernon Noble; One-Year Probationary Contracts for Drew Ahrens, Savannah Ahrens, Carlos Camarena, Elizabeth Cranford, Ashley Hommel, and Christopher Woodcock; One-Year Term Contracts for Tiffany Campbell, J.W. Clark, Tashia Duncan, Anne Dushay, Adelita Elam, Jill Frausto, Lisa Grahm, Medina Gribble, Kara Hill, Bruce Howard, Tina Lacey, Tammi Lewis, Terri Luna, Dennis McMenamy, Eurena Marcum, Brittany Monds, Carrie Moss, B.J. Owens, Jennifer Pigg, Cobette Riza, Jennifer Robinson, Shethelia Russell, Dee Ann Sears, Melanie Shelton, Alix Snure, Jennifer Tubbs, Jalee Victory, Brandi Wann, Leslie White, Amber Williams, and Elizabeth Zongker; and Dual-Assignment One-Year Term Contracts for Kasey Bell, Corey Conkin, Kalen Grahm, Brad Elam, Carrie Hicks, and Johnny Nino.

The board also met February 21 to complete board training.

America must learn to live together again

By Kristen Farrington, Freedom Forum Institute

Religious freedom in today’s world is synonymous with controversy. Debates rage around the country on issues that touch our deepest beliefs: abortion, adoption, vaccinations, war memorials, equity and identity.

Families and communities are torn apart waiting for courts to sort out the fine and complicated lines between basic human rights and religious liberty. After waiting months if not years for court decisions, communities discover that legal rulings don’t have the power to heal fractured communities.

This part of our American story is as old and real as when the first settlers arrived on our shores, but the intensity today feels somehow different. Surely by 2019 we Americans have learned to live together despite our deepest differences!

The stark reality is that, no, we haven’t. According to several watchdog organizations and the FBI, religious intolerance and religion-based hate crimes are on the rise; bullying in schools continues to threaten the well-being of our children.

Religious leaders and educators share similar stories – we just aren’t equipped to deal with the controversy and division we are experiencing in our classrooms and communities. There is an urgency to do something, coupled with a sense of exhaustion that all we have been doing is simply not working.

Complex issues call for complex solutions. Civil dialogue is not the solution, but it needs to be an integral part.

Over the last 10 years, organizations have emerged to provide resources, training and opportunities for dialogue: Living Room Conversations, Difficult Dialogues National Resource Center, National Institute for Civil Discourse, Generation Global and the Religious Freedom Center are just a few committed to restoring civility and creating intentional spaces for difficult conversations while promoting pluralism and understanding across differences.

It is easy to dismiss the value of this work. Someone once described such efforts to me as fluffy. Make no mistake – there is nothing fluffy about dialogue or understanding our differences. Such work takes commitment, constant practice and the courage to stay engaged when things get heated.

Any person can engage in informal dialogue by learning the basic skills and finding opportunities to practice them at home, at work, with friends, neighbors and family. Formal dialogue is usually a series of dialogue sessions led by a trained teacher.

I’ve met a lot of people who don’t really understand the purpose of dialogue. At the most basic level, it means to seek understanding through words. The purpose of engagement is to learn as much as you can about each other – to share stories, beliefs and perspectives about an issue. It is a space where you can explore an issue from many different sides, so you come to understand the meaning and significance of that issue to each person in the discussion. Dialogue is a place for curiosity – a place where you can ask questions about and explore a perspective with which you completely disagree. It is a space where you can disagree and yet stay engaged.

Dialogue is not debate, deliberation, mediation, conflict resolution or problem solving. Its value often is overlooked in favor of rushing to solve a problem or dismissed because people don’t wish to engage with different beliefs, values or perspectives.

As a dialogue practitioner, I’ve had opportunity to train thousands of educators, religious and civic leaders. As the religious liberty debates rage around us, as we watch our schools, communities and places of worship become places of controversy and division, as we find ourselves caught in situations that challenge our deepest beliefs, I can attest that dialogue works. I’ve seen it transform classrooms and community groups.

I’ve seen educators, community and religious leaders become more confident in helping their students, congregations and communities navigate difficult issues. I’ve heard young people find their voices and become more confident talking about what is meaningful and significant in their lives. I’ve seen prejudice challenged, pain shared and unlikely friendships forged.

We should give it a try.

Riza’s leadership has an impact

I want to express my thanks to Dr. Riza and Clarendon College for the job they have done with the dual credit program at Clarendon College.

Several years ago, Dr. Riza personally visited my office in Panhandle, which has never happened with any other president of a community college, and asked if we might be interested in changing from Amarillo College to Clarendon. As you might expect, I was a little apprehensive since Panhandle ISD through the years has had a great relationship with Amarillo College. However, in visiting with him I was impressed with his vision and passion for making Clarendon College a destination for local high school students enough so that Panhandle ISD switched from Amarillo College to Clarendon College.

Since that time Panhandle has worked with Clarendon College to create a dual credit program that offers anything from the basics of English, Math and Science to a dual degree program of which my son graduated in 2017. Anything, we have asked Dr. Riza and his administration to help us with they worked hard to provide.

Several years ago, we ask that they help us with TSI, the test that is required for high school students to eligible to take dual credit, and immediately a meeting was set for all the local districts and a plan developed to help our students.

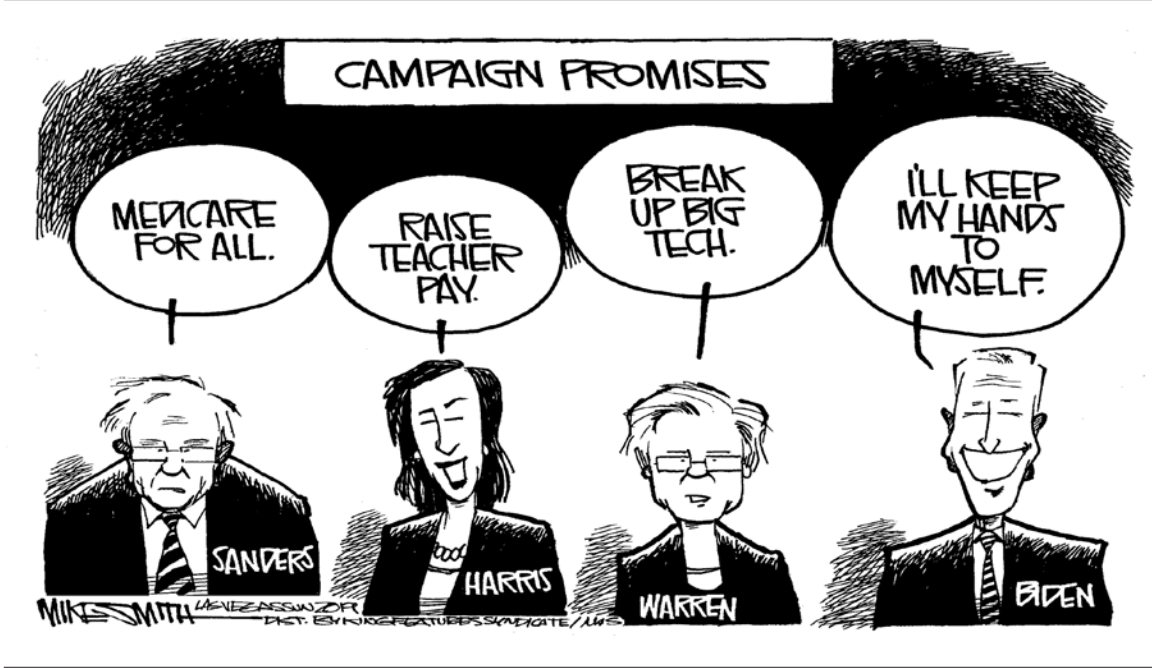

Another program that Dr. Riza and his administration have developed is the Honor College where students get the tuition waived for the number of hours they have taken in dual credit with Clarendon College. Several of our students have begun dual credit at Panhandle ISD through Clarendon College and attended Clarendon College to receive their Associate’s Degree.

Panhandle ISD would not have 82 students enrolled at Clarendon College if not for Dr. Riza and his staff.

I do hope that people will stop and think before making a change at Clarendon College. Relationships are difficult and not easily built, but Dr. Riza and his staff have our gratitude for what they have done for the kids and community of Panhandle. I believe Clarendon College is an up and coming place, and a big reason is Dr. Riza’s leadership.

Thank you,
Blair Brown
Superintendent Panhandle ISD

Now here’s something that’s special

A common practice when decision-makers arrive in Washington, DC, is to check common sense at the door. There’s daily evidence of “bonehead” decisions that make us wonder about competencies.

The other day, President Trump hit replay when citizens came unstuck with Education Secretary Betsy DeVos’ announcement that the federal government would no longer fund Special Olympics.

She, too, quickly “pedaled backwards,” finding out how special the Special Olympics are. Folks looking for trouble might have better chances taking on God, motherhood, apple pie and Chevrolet. ...

Higher education seems to have more than its share of boondoggles. (How ‘bout rich parents spending big bucks to get their kids into top-tier universities, where many such kids then find new ways to skip class?)

It’s not a stretch to segue from fortunes expended for some to get into college to the subject of bloated salaries paid to some coaches. Back when some institutions initially went “salary crazy,” majorities of some governing boards were asleep at the switch.

Yep, had there been some “budding” when million dollar salaries for football coaches came up, big-wig chairmen (chairwomen?) could have resorted to understandable “gavel-pounding” to restore clear thinking to the body, or at least take deep breaths. It’s absurd that board members didn’t stiffen in disbelief when seven-figure salaries were first mentioned.

Instead, they went along. Thus, the monster has been created, and on some campuses, is running rampant. Blame the boards.

This is not to say that most coaches aren’t capable and committed, with reasonable compensation.

Two of the very best were longtime Baylor University Coach Grant Teaff and former Texas A&M grid boss R. C. Slocum.

Many observers felt that Teaff made a grave error when he took the Baylor job in 1972. He was paid the “princely” annual sum of $25,000, and after two decades at BU, he served two more decades as Executive Director of the American Football Coaches’ Association. Slocum, still revered by Aggies far and wide, laughed – as Teaff did – when asked if he had an agent. ...

Almost as nauseating as some salaries are the additional incentives added if coaches’ teams do well.

A current example is Coach Chris Beard, who has brought basketball respectability to Texas Tech. For sharing the Big 12 title with Kansas State, he got $250,000. There was another $50,000 for reaching the “sweet 16” in the NCAA “March Madness” tournament, and for making it to the “elite eight,” another $75,000 bonus. Qualifying for the hallowed “final four” netted $100,000 more. This season’s incentive payments almost doubled his starting salary at Tech three years ago.

Tech regents recently re-wrote his

the idle american
by don newbury

contract – $19 million for six years that could require “sweetening” post haste. He’s not far removed from a seven-year stretch when he had a new coaching gig annually, including one year (2012) at McMurry University in Abilene.

My 106-year-old Uncle Mort, a veteran “head-shaker,” isn’t optimistic about pennant prospects of the 2019 Texas Rangers.

“Too many gaps, and they’ve rarely had a team worthy of the grandeur of Globe Life Park, which will be abandoned after this year for snazzy, air-conditioned environs,” he said.

Predictably, Mort has a suggestion for future managers.

Only one of seven Ranger managers during Globe Life History has managed to win openers in his first year. That was back in 2003, when Buck Showalter’s team beat Anaheim, 6-4. The other six managers posted opening day losses.

For those keeping score, the Milwaukee Brewers bested Kevin Kennedy’s 1994 team, 4-3, and when the late Johnny Oates debuted in 1995, Cleveland prevailed, 11-6. In 2002, Jerry Narron’s bunch lost to Oakland, 8-3. In 2007, Ron Washington’s team fell to the Los Angeles Angels, 4-1, and in 2015, Jeff Banister’s team bowed to Oakland, 8-0.

“In the future, new managers should call in sick on opening day. New managers have won second games following openers three times.” ...

Homeland security chief resigns

By Noab Elam

On Sunday, President Trump confirmed via twitter of Secretary of Homeland Security Kirstjen Nielsen’s resignation citing problems between her and Trump due to her handling of the illegal immigration problem.

Apparently, Trump has been angry about the amount of illegal immigrants crossing the border recently. He then stated in the tweet that Kevin McAleenan, who is the current US Customs and Border Protection Commissioner, will be the Acting Secretary for the Department of Homeland Security.

Nielsen also tweeted Sunday that she has “agreed to stay on as secretary through Wednesday, April 10th to assist with an orderly transition and ensure that key DHS missions are not impacted.” Her resignation is part of the DHS overhaul the Trump administration is directing in an attempt to make the department more strict on illegal immigration.

Nielsen has served as the DHS Secretary since 2017. From that point, Nielsen has had a couple of crises involving the DHS, including public outrage over the policy of separating minor children from their parents declaring asylum at the southern border. The policy was intended to move around a court order mandating that full families not be kept in Customs and Border Protection custody more than 21 days.

Along with that botched policy, Nielsen has had to battle the thousands of migrants coming from Guatemala and Honduras in groups of caravans. Because of this, CBP and Immigrations and Customs Enforcement (ICE) have been overwhelmed, trying to process thousands of different asylum requests and holding thousands of illegal immigrants.

Instead of detaining the immigrants, the only other option available at the moment is the Obama Administration’s policy of “catch-and-release”, where the asylum seekers are allowed to temporarily enter the United States while wearing tracking devices until their asylum hearing. The problem with that solution, though, is that the asylum seekers usually never returned for their court dates.

To combat the problem, President Trump recently threatened to close the border completely, but later eased off and gave Mexico a year to enforce its own immigration laws. Even so, the Trump administration has made a decision to place more immigration officers at the border. He also warned of traffic and commercial delays at the border until Mexico could enforce their laws.

The right solution for the immigration issue is hard to find. Democrats and Republicans rarely agree on anything and this is no different. With the resignation of Nielsen, it is obvious that Trump is serious about stopping the border crisis.

Howardwick Election to be help May 4

We were blessed with another good shower last week, and the empty lots are turning green with hills covered with small yellow flowers we called wild mustard.

My red bud tree is blooming, and I see it as I sit on the front patio. Someone has trimmed the trees in the park. Thank you very much; it looks nice.

Unfortunately, I missed the "Meet the Candidates" meeting held April 2, but by all accounts it was civil. No fights broke out, and no guns were drawn. The questions submitted were in good taste and covered a wide range with time allowed for questions from the floor.

Howardwick • 874-2886

Remember Election Day is May 4. In the meantime, do not steal or mutilate candidates' yard signs. The laws are specific in Texas. If you are caught vandalizing a sign, you could be charged with criminal mischief, but stealing one could cost you up to $500 in fines. That would be a stupid reason to have a criminal record, so bite your tongue and look away when you see a sign you don't agree with.

God bless our little community.

Wilson

V a d a Grace (Collins) Wilson, 75, passed away April 4, 2019, in Kansas City, Kansas.

Wilson

Graveside services were held on Monday, April 8, 2019, at Citizens Cemetery in Clarendon with Rev. Lance Wood, pastor of First Baptist Church Clarendon, officiating.

Pastor Jeremy and Pastor Garvie will be honoring Vada at a memorial service on Wednesday, April 10, 2019, at 10:00 a.m. in the Hillsboro MB Church at 300 Prairie Point in Hillsboro, Kansas.

Vada was born in Borger, Texas. After High School, she worked for Phillips Petroleum, where she met and eventually married the love of her life, Darrell Wilson on July 3, 1963, in Borger.

The greatest joy of her life was being a wife and a mother. The family moved to McPherson, Kansas, where she touched many lives, making lifetime friendships. She and Darrell owned a popular donut shop, Carol Lee Donuts, and then later with Darrell, managed Rolling Acres Golf Club.

She enjoyed playing golf and was quite good at it, beating Darrell on several occasions. Vada also enjoyed playing the piano and was involved in many Prayer groups. Vada was known for her great smile and positive attitude on life. She would like her remembrance to be that she was kind to others.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Otis and Onnie Collins as well as her brother, Edgar Collins.

She is survived by her husband, Darrell and son, Ray Wilson, of Kansas City.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to Children's Mercy Hospital, Kansas City, Missouri.

"Swing Into Spring!"

I love the spring! Wind gusts lift kites high into the sky. Sunlight hours are longer so I get to play outside a little later in the day. The temperatures are warmer and many kids only need to wear sweaters or light jackets. Rain showers form puddles and I can slide in the mud!

In early spring, you'll notice many changes.

Read the clues below to fill in the crossword puzzle:

1. crocuses, daffodils
2. break out of an egg
3. lawn "weed" with a bright yellow flower
4. _____ grow longer (waking hours)
5. color of grass and leaves
6. tree frog with a high-pitched chirp
7. shrub with soft, gray "flowers" (2 words)
8. melts into water
9. when you feel heat you feel _____
10. beginning stage of leaf
11. home that birds build
12. clay or dirt mixed with water
13. grow shorter (sleeping hours)
14. falling drops of water

What do you know about breaking words into syllables? The word "spring" has only one syllable. You can say it without any breaks. Now, say the word "secret." It has two syllables: se • cret. Can you hear them? I really like even bigger words like the word "alphabet." It has three syllables: al • pha • bet.

Can you find and circle 5 words that have 3 or more syllables?

Wow! He's a big frog in a small pond!

Many baby animals are born in springtime.

Spring has sprung! Spring into action, everyone: skateboard, play ball, hopscotch, garden, fly kites, ride bikes, mini-golf – and bring a friend, too!

...to blossoms!

Buds... hatch bud

What do I know? I'm just a froglet!

Lady Broncos beat Gruver

By Sandy Anderberg

The Lady Broncos took on Gruver at home on Saturday and recovered from an 0-8 start to run-rule the Lady Hounds 20-10.

“We allowed them to score eight runs to our seven in the first inning,” coach Carrie Hicks said. “Then, we jumped ahead in the second inning and increased the lead throughout the rest of the game.”

Hicks credited Kaylin Hicks, Ashlynn Newsome, Raynee Newsome with good defensive play and Madi Smith pitching well from the mound.

They were able to turn a double play after Hicks scooped it up and tossed to Newsome who got the out and threw it to Emily Johnson on first.

Offensively, the ladies connected well with the bat.

“We hit well when we could,” Hicks said. “Emily Johnson, Jade Benson, Sandra Smith, and Raynee Newsome each had doubles and Jade, Emily, Kira, and Makayla (Brown) each got singles. We definitely needed this win to start off our second half of district.”

Earlier in the week, the ladies fell one run short to Sunray in a 23-24 loss.

“I was proud of the girls because they never gave up and they encouraged each other throughout the game,” Hicks said.

The Lady Broncos led until the fifth inning when Sunray tied it up at 16 all. They were able to retake the lead in the seventh, but could not answer the Lady Cats’ runs to put them on top.

“We hit the ball well and aggressively ran bases,” Hicks said. “We just struggled on defense a couple of innings.”

Hicks pointed out that A. Newsome, S. Smith, Brown, Benson, Johnson, Hicks, and R. Newsome had doubles and M. Smith, A. Newsome, S. Smith, Weatherton, and M. Smith all caught an out in the outfield. Hicks caught two in the infield and Newsome earned another out on a fly ball.

The Lady Broncos will play Memphis at home on Friday, April 12, at 4:00 p.m. and play West Texas High at home on the 16th at 4:30 p.m.

Broncos stunned by Wellington

By Sandy Anderberg

The Bronco baseball team dropped a district game to Wellington at home last Saturday 14-0.

According to coach Brad Elam, the Broncos struggled against the Rockets.

“We picked a bad time to have our worst game of the year,” Elam said. “Offensively, we had a Collin Butler hit, and that was it.”

The Broncos’ offensive game left them dry at the plate as ten hitters struck out, and defensively the Broncos posted nine errors.

“Just not a very good day,” Elam said. “I did not do a good job of getting the players ready; that’s my fault. We will turn it up this week and have a better week.”

The Broncos will play at home against Memphis April 12 and Wellington on April 16 beginning at 4:00 p.m.

Fatalities decline in construction areas

AUSTIN — In spite of a decrease in work zone crashes in Texas last year, 161 people still lost their lives and another 684 were seriously injured, with the vast majority of those killed—84 percent—being motorists and/or their passengers. As National Work Zone Awareness Week got underway on Monday, April 8, the Texas Department of Transportation highlighted its Be Safe. Drive Smart. campaign, reminding motorists to stay alert and exercise caution when driving through work zones.

“Work zones present a different environment for drivers to navigate with concrete barriers, slow-moving heavy equipment and vehicles that may make sudden stops,” said TxDOT Executive Director James Bass. “That’s why we’re urging drivers to pay special attention in work zones on Texas roadways—for their protection and the safety of highway work crews.”

In 2018, a total of 25,162 work zone traffic crashes were reported, an average of nearly 70 crashes per day, resulting in deaths that fell by 20 percent between 2017 and 2018 in construction zones in Texas. In the Childress District, a total of nine collisions occurred in work zones resulting in one serious injury and no fatalities.

At any given time, Texas has as many as 3,000 active work zones across the 80,000 miles of road TxDOT maintains. Since the leading causes of work zone crashes in Texas are speeding and driver inattention, TxDOT asks motorists to avoid distractions and put their phones away, obey road crew flaggers, slow down and follow posted work zone speed limits. Traffic fines double in work zones when workers are present, and fines can cost up to $2,000.

To safeguard roadside crews and first responders, the state’s Move Over/Slow Down law also requires drivers to move over a lane or reduce their speed to 20 mph below the posted limit when they see flashing blue or amber lights on a TxDOT vehicle, emergency vehicle, tow truck, or law enforcement stopped on the roadside or shoulder. Not doing so can result in a fine of up to $2,000.

The Texas Mutual Insurance Company is joining TxDOT to promote work zone safety through sharing of campaign materials and providing speakers for safety-related events. Part of Texas Mutual’s mission is to help employers prevent workplace incidents and minimize their consequences, which aligns with TxDOT’s work zone awareness safety efforts.

Texas Republicans warn Trump about closing border

By Patrick Svitek, Texas Tribune

As President Donald Trump threatens to shut down the US-Mexico border, some of the highest-ranking Texans from within his own party are warning about the consequences of doing so.

“Closing the border to legal commerce would be devastating to Texas,” US Sen. Ted Cruz, R-Texas, said in a statement Wednesday evening. “Millions of jobs, in Texas and across the country, depend upon trade with Mexico, and the federal government shouldn’t do anything to jeopardize those jobs.”

Trump threatened to close the border – or large sections of it – earlier this week if Mexico didn’t “immediately stop ALL illegal immigration coming into the United States.” While Trump has since eased up on the threat, it was enough to set off alarms in Texas, particularly in the business community.

The Texas Association of Business said Monday that 1 in 5 jobs in the state is dependent upon trade and that “no group stands to lose more than Texans in communities” along the border, such as El Paso and Laredo. The business group pressed state leaders to speak out – and it was clear by Wednesday evening that some of them had gotten the message.

US Sen. John Cornyn, R-Texas, told reporters Wednesday afternoon that he had spoken with Trump on the phone about the issue.

“I told him that I understand his frustration, but I also believe shutting down the border would have a lot of unintended consequences,” Cornyn said. He added that he “asked the president to let me work with this administration to come up with more targeted ways to encourage Mexico and Central America to work more cooperatively with us.”

Asked what Trump’s reaction was, Cornyn said the president was “responsive” and told the senator to talk with Cabinet members.

Even Lt. Gov. Dan Patrick – Trump’s biggest cheerleader in Texas, particularly when it comes to his immigration policies – made it clear he opposed a border closure. The Texas Senate, which Patrick presides over, passed a resolution Tuesday along party lines that declared an emergency at the border.

“I’m not for shutting the entire border,” Patrick said in an interview Wednesday morning with Fox News Radio. “The commerce would dramatically impact Texas, America and Mexico. I’d like to see the commercial lanes flow.”

Still, like other Republicans, Patrick sympathized with Trump’s frustrations – and offered one solution.

“Maybe he needs to send a message and close one port, one entry point,” Patrick said.
