Deal in works for new Clarendon City Hall

Clarendon City Hall will have a new home in 2020 after a real estate agreement was reached last week.

City Administrator David Dockery says the city is purchasing the former office building of Bill Lowe at 313 S. Sully across from the Donley County Courthouse for $163,000.

"We're too confined in our current offices and our requirements to meet the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) was going to be expensive," Dockery said.

ADA accessibility is a requirement of the city's current USDA-funded waterline project, and Dockery said the age and construction of the present City Hall was going to make it difficult to meet those standards.

The Lowe building will also require some modifications for ADA, and Dockery said contractors are looking at that work now, and the city hopes to have it completed in three to four months. The new location has more than 3,600 square feet of floor space available to meet the city's needs.

Dockery said the city was able to use excess revenue from the current budget to purchase the Lowe property and did not have to tap the city's reserves for this.

Officials are currently exploring options as to the future use of the current City Hall offices. The two-story building was erected in 1918 and has housed the city offices for most of the time since then. Currently the fire department utilizes the second floor and the back of the building with city offices on the first floor at the front of the building.

Test run

Clarendon freshman Jmaury Davis runs the ball for the Broncos last Friday during their scrimmage with Shamrock. The Broncos will be on the road this week for another scrimmage in Sunray and then open their season at home next week against Lockney.

H'wick council considers budget, tax rate

Howardwick aldermen considered several items of business when they met last Tuesday, August 13.

Budget and tax rate discussions were early on the agenda, and the city council voted to propose maintaining the current rate of 40 cents per $100 valuation.

During budget discussions, local resident Jody Ratcliff volunteered to purchase a new refrigerator for the community center.

Mayor Tony Clemishire reported that the city did not receive the community development grant that it hoped would pay for street improvements. It was also reported that a fish fry will be held this Saturday at 5 p.m. at the Clarendon County Club to benefit the City of Howardwick Fire Department.

In public comments, former mayor Greta Byars complained about underage drivers running four-wheelers and golf carts in the city.

The council approved bids on properties through Texas Communities Group, and the city also approved selling three lots of its own. Aldermen also authorized purchasing an app through TCG to assist the city's code officer, who is in training.

In fire department business, the board approved Resolution 160, creating a bank account for the reconstituted City of Howardwick Fire Department.

Interim Fire Chief Brice Hawley gave a very informative update on the department. City Hall said this week that six volunteer applicants for the department are being vetted now and are likely to be approved.

Foster & Lambert was selected again to do the city's audit, and Ordinance 118 was approved, amending Ordinance 102 to reaffirm that Red River Water Authority will continue to do the billing for the city's trash service on the water bills.

The council considered 13 designs for the Howardwick entrance sign and narrowed it to three top choices. Those will be put before the citizens in attendance at the next city council meeting to pick a winner.

H'wick back under water restrictions

Howardwick citizens were back under a boil water notice this week after a failed pump impacted the city's water supply there.

City Hall reports that pump problems began Saturday and worsened on Sunday, prompting Red River Water Authority on Monday to issue the boil water notice and place the city under a Stage 4 water emergency, which bans all outside watering.

Red River also delivered bottled drinking water to City Hall for the residents' use.

City Secretary Sandra Childress said Tuesday that a replacement pump was being installed that day.

Childress also reported that Red River's board on September 18 will consider moving forward with an entirely new well for the city now that all the necessary approvals for that work have been obtained.

City officials anticipate having all water restrictions lifted later this week.

District court hears plea in one case here

The district court heard one plea in a Carson County case when it met in Clarendon last Thursday, August 15.

District Attorney Luke Inman, along with Assistant District Attorney Harley Caudle, prosecuted the case for the State of Texas, with the Honorable Judge Stuart Messer presiding.

Cornelius Moore, 26, pleaded guilty and sentenced to 12 years in the Institutional Division of the TDCJ for the second degree felony of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon, his vehicle.

Moore, from Memphis, Tenn., was arrested in Carson County by Texas DPS Trooper Kendall Styles on October 22, 2018, after he evaded arrest traveling at speeds over 120 mph, according to Inman.

During the chase, Moore placed many individuals in fear of their lives, including workers on the highway.

William Goodman, Moore's co-defendant, pleaded guilty to the evading arrest charge on March 28 due to his assistance in the evading arrest.

Goodman, videoed the chase and streamed it on Facebook live, displaying the callousness of their actions, according to Inman.

Both Moore and Goodman are required to serve at least 50 percent of their sentence before becoming parole eligible. Moore is required to pay $305 in court costs.

Blue beacon

Wallace Monument Company's 1958 neon sign is again greeting travelers on US 287 following a restoration partially funded by the Clarendon Economic Development Corporation and undertaken by AAA Signs. Co-owner Kim Fowler says the sign was installed by her grandfather, company founder L.L. Wallace, but had not been lit up since the early 1970s. "It's very special to us and we're so excited to have it lit up again," Fowler said.

Time to bring troops home

By Ted Galen Carpenter, Cato Institute

President Trump is once again beating the drums about the need for greater burden-sharing by U.S. allies. The latest example is his demand that South Koreans pay “substantially more” than the current $990 million a year for defraying the costs of American troops defending their country from North Korea.

This is not a new refrain from the president. Most of Trump’s spats with NATO members have focused on the financial aspects of burden-sharing. Yet the nature of his complaints leads to the inescapable conclusion that if allies were willing to spend more on collective defense efforts, he would have no problem maintaining Washington’s vast array of military deployments around the world.

Trump’s obsession with financial burden-sharing misses a far more fundamental problem. Certainly, the tendency of U.S. allies to skimp on their own defense spending and instead free ride on the oversized American military budget is annoying and unhealthy. But the more serious problem is that so many of Washington’s defense commitments to allies no longer make sense if they ever did. Not only are such obligations a waste of tax dollars, they needlessly put American lives at risk, and given the danger of nuclear war in some cases, put America’s existence as a functioning nation in jeopardy. American military personnel should not be mercenaries defending the interests of allies and security clients when their own country’s vital interests are not at stake. Even if treaty allies offset more of the costs, as Trump demands, we should not want our military to be modern-day Hessians.

Unfortunately, the current situation is not unprecedented. During the Persian Gulf War, President George H.W. Bush expressed satisfaction that allied financial contributions offset most of Washington’s expenses. That was undoubtedly true. Indeed, according to some calculations, the United States may have ended up with a modest profit. Kuwait and Saudi Arabia were especially willing to contribute financially to support the U.S.-led military campaign to expel Saddam Hussein’s forces from Kuwait. Japan, still agonizing over the alleged limitations on military action that its “peace constitution” imposed, asserted that while it could not send troops, it would contribute funds to the war effort. All three countries practiced rather blatant “checkbook diplomacy.”

The Persian Gulf War was surprisingly short, and U.S. forces incurred far fewer casualties than anticipated. However, the immediate costs were merely the beginning of an expanded American security role in the Middle East that has proven to be disastrous. The checkbook diplomacy payments of 1990 and 1991 did not even begin to offset those horrendous, ongoing costs in treasure and blood.

Financial considerations aside, it never served American interests to become the onsite gendarme of the Middle East. Those who saw the Persian Gulf War as a low-cost, perhaps even no-cost, venture from the standpoint of finances were incredibly myopic. America’s role as Hessians for Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, and other powers undoubtedly benefited the ruling elites in those countries, but it clearly has not benefited the American people.

Yet Trump’s security policies continue to evince similar myopic impulses. During the 2016 presidential campaign, he repeatedly criticized NATO members for their lack of burden-sharing, and he even indicated that Washington’s defense commitments to an “obsolete” alliance might be reconsidered. But when the allies pledged greater defense spending at the 2018 NATO summit, Trump’s grouching was replaced by praise and expressions of alliance solidarity. He greeted with even greater enthusiasm the Polish president’s offer to offset construction costs if the United States built a military base in Poland—even though such a move would deepen already worrisome tensions with Russia. The American Conservative’s Daniel Larison put it well: “Trump is often accused of wanting to ‘retreat’ from the world, but his willingness to entertain this proposal shows that he doesn’t care about stationing U.S. forces abroad so long as someone else is footing most of the bill.”

The overwhelming focus of Trump’s burden-sharing goals continues to be financial. His administration shows little receptivity to independent defense policy initiatives on the part of allies. Indeed, he and his advisers, especially National Security Adviser John Bolton, show outright hostility to proposals for a European Union army or other manifestations of greater Europeans-only security efforts, even though they would seem to constitute meaningful burden-sharing. Bolton has blasted such initiatives as “a dagger pointed at NATO’s heart.” Washington simply wants the allies to pay more for its own defense protection.

Instead, U.S. leaders need to engage in burden-sharing—eliminating security commitments that now entail far more risks than benefits to America. For example, it makes little sense to retain, much less add, obligations to defend small, strategically insignificant countries on Russia’s border. The risks of such a provocative stance clearly outweigh any potential benefits. Likewise, the risk-benefit calculation to continue providing a security shield for South Korea has changed dramatically since the days of the Cold War. Not only is South Korea now a much stronger country economically, one that can build whatever forces are needed for its defense, but North Korea is now capable of inflicting grave damage on U.S. forces stationed in East Asia and will soon be able to strike the American homeland with nuclear warheads.

Greater burden-sharing efforts by NATO members or South Korea will not change that more important risk-benefit calculation. The American people deserve a far more substantive policy change.

In an umpire league of their own

They called balls and strikes behind home plate for a combined 52 years, achieving greatness in the world of Major League umpiring until their retirement in 1999.

The pair’s plaque-filled walls in their homes are testimonies to their remarkable professional achievements.

When they stepped up to the plate in retirement, however, their volunteer service to others provided them with the most satisfaction. Who knows what motivated them? The late Durwood Merrill, from Hooks, TX, and Larry Barnett, from Nitro, WV, insisted on “giving back.” Some might think their theme song should be, “Thank God, I’m a Country Boy.” Combined population of their hometowns is less than 10,000....

Merrill, who died in 2003, was consumed by a local charitable event he founded – perhaps by providence – in 1979. He learned of a single mother with three children who faced a barren Christmas. There was no food in the house – let alone presents – when Merrill visited the home on Christmas Eve. He rounded up a Christmas tree, gifts and a bevy of food.

He always claimed this to be the greatest Christmas he’d ever experienced. He added two more families the next Christmas.

The project kept growing, thanks both to Merrill and Hooks merchants and friends who likewise found it more blessed to give than to receive. In subsequent years, teachers identified children with greatest needs. The campaign usually has provided gifts and food for 200 children, and sometimes more. Merrill dug deep into his pockets to fund the project, and wasn’t bashful about digging into others’ pockets, too. Though he died in 2003 at age 65, his Christmas campaign continues....

Merrill wrote an autobiography, You’re Out and You’re Ugly, Too.

I want to read more about this man who – after late deliveries on one Christmas Eve – saw a woman at the side of the road pleading for “anything he might have left from his rounds.” He scrounged around, finding only a few boxes of Jello. It was raining hard, but the woman and her two children were grateful.

“You mean we can have Jello tonight?” the oldest child asked. “This is great, Mama.” (Needless to say, Merrill found some more gifts for the family.)...

Barnett’s “retirement” has been equally gratifying. When he put away his umpiring gear after the 1999 season, he looked forward to staying close to home. He was tired of flying, and sick of hotels. (For umpires, all assignments are “away games.”)

The retired ump remained “hooked” on visiting patients in VA hospitals, as has been his custom – along with umpiring – since 1976. He has made more than 3,200 hospital visits, adding to his travel travails. All told, he umpired for nearly 38 years and has visited vets for 43 years.

Now 74, Barnett is “retiring” from what has become essentially a second career. It should be noted that he is winding up his long association with the Disabled American Veterans’ Association on its 100th anniversary. The DAV Association was created by Congress in 1919....

The “travel travails” referenced a few lines back bring to mind a couple of “travel stories,” one of which happens to be true.

One can’t make up what happened on the Greyhound bus that left Dallas headed for Phoenix the other night. At the Abilene terminal, the driver announced a “20-minute break,” urging promptness, of course. Trouble was, everyone got back on the bus except the driver, who never returned. The 20-minute break became a nine-hour lay-over before Greyhound found another driver. By the time they got to Phoenix, they were weary! (Had this “goof” occurred a few decades earlier, Glen Campbell might have added another verse to this popular song.)

Finally, the old train joke. The conductor, upon delivering a baby, mentioned to the mother that she shouldn’t have boarded the train in such a condition. Her answer? “When I got on this train, I wasn’t in this condition.”...

Western Union’s bicycle delivery boys

When Bill Cole of Midland was in high school in Abilene, he delivered telegrams for Western Union.

“They wouldn’t hire anybody under 16,” says Bill, “so when I turned 16 I knew Western Union was hiring messenger boys so I went to work. I’d start about 4 o’clock, soon as I got out of school and work until about 7. On every shift they’d have maybe three or four messengers. We’d cover the whole town on our bicycles delivering telegrams. Course Abilene wasn’t as big as it is now.”

The telegram was a major means of communication during the 40s and 50s because not everybody had a telephone.

“They’d give us several telegrams to deliver and give us sort of a route to take. Usually they’d give each messenger 10 to 12 telegrams at a time. When we’d deliver those, we’d come back and get some more.”

The delivery boys didn’t have any special uniforms.

“We had a little pin that said Western Union on it and we’d pin it on our shirt.”

The telegrams came into the Western Union office by Teletype. They’d come in on narrow strips of paper that were then pasted onto square sheets of yellow paper that had the words Western Union at the top. Then the manager would put the message in an envelope.

“We’d deliver it to where it was addressed. When they came to the door I’d have them sign a form that said they received it. Delivery boys never saw what was written on the telegrams.”

Lots of businesses used telegrams.

“Hotels and motels would get reservations by telegram. Floral shops got lots of their orders by telegrams. Businesses used Western Union to order supplies. Some had a way of contact Western Union that they had a telegram to pick up. They called them night letters. And of course we had things like singing telegrams every once in a while. Sometimes companies would contract with Western Union to put out samples of their products. I remember one time there was a contract with the people who make TUMS and the delivery boys would stand on street corners and hand out sample packages of TUMS.”

I asked Bill about those singing telegrams.

“If someone wanted to wish a relative or friend a happy birthday they’d contact Western Union and ask that one of the delivery boys go to the address and sing Happy Birthday. People that got them really enjoyed them.”

I asked Bill if he ever got a tip for delivering a singing telegram.

“I don’t remember any. I wasn’t a very good singer.”

Adams receives scholarship award

Funeral Directors Life Insurance Company has announced that the 2019 Memorial Scholarship Award will go to Kathrine Adams, a funeral assistant at Robertson Funeral Directors in Clarendon.

Adams began working at Robertson Funeral Directors as visitation hostess in 2015 and then, while away at college, she worked for Combest Family Funeral Homes & Crematory. "We have no doubt that Kathrine's future in the industry will be impactful," said Tonya Combest, Co-Owner and Funeral Director of Combest Family Funeral Homes & Crematory. Combest went on to say that Kathrine has a heart for people, attention to detail, and great pride in honoring a life well lived.

"In reviewing Kathrine's scholarship application, it was very apparent to our committee that this young woman was a prime example of the type of person who excels as a funeral director," said Ray Thompson, Scholarship Committee Chairman. "Working in funeral service is not an easy job, and it takes a lot of heart. I believe Kathrine has a sincere heart for service, and she will do an incredible job serving families."

When asked what led to her interest in the funeral profession, Adams stated, "I had interest in pursuing a career in the funeral home business because I have several family members in the field, but my passion for helping families really sparked when I started working at a funeral home." Adams also shared that she was very honored and humbled to be a recipient of the Memorial Scholarship Award.

Adams is attending the Amarillo College Mortuary Science Program in the fall of 2019. Previously, she graduated from Texas Tech University with her bachelor's degree in May of 2019.

Funeral Directors Life is proud to support future funeral service professionals through the Memorial Scholarship Fund. The Memorial Scholarship Fund is perpetually supported by Funeral Directors Life and by the generosity of donors. The mission of Funeral Directors Life is "to be known as the best, most-respected provider of service to the funeral industry."

H'wick under stage 4 water alert

Once again our little community is experiencing water problems with one of the wells down. Sunday we were without water for a number of hours, but the tank is slowly filling up again.

Red River Water authority has issued a stage 4 water alert which means no outside watering at all. None.

Well, I think you may be okay to fill the bird and animal watering dishes, but we must be very, very careful because we do not want to run out of water.

Oh, my! I will be so glad to have this water issue resolved, and that probably won't happen until

Ever since then, there has been a lot of talk about where it would be and when it might be opened.

The place they decided on is the big lot across from the post office. We were hoping that it would open the same time the Mulkey did, but the bids were

Salmon

Mackie Clark Salmon, 80, got his “angel wings” on August 16, 2019.

Services were held on Tuesday, August 20, 2019, in Robertson Funeral Directors’ Roost Chapel in Clarendon. Burial followed in Citizens Cemetery in Clarendon.

Arrangements are under the direction of Robertson Funeral Directors of Clarendon.

Mackie was born July 20, 1939. He grew up at Brice and went to school at Lakeview. At 16, he moved to Cedar Park near Austin where he spent most of his life. After retirement, he moved to Amarillo at Brookdale Senior Living then to Memphis Convalescent the past years.

As a child, Mackie was kicked in the head by a horse and consequently had a reading disability. He worked for the post office for more than 30 years. The post master wrote him letters of thanks for never being late nor absent from work for 20 years and 30 years. Mackie was “Mister Clean”. He was always neat and clean. He bought a home which he kept spotless with everything in place. He polished his vehicles after every ride. When he drove home he would wash, wax, and polish everyone’s vehicle and give us warnings that our vehicles would last longer if we took better care of them. Mackie loved to rollerskate and took his neighbor kids with him. He became like a father figure to some attending their ballgames, etc. Mackie liked the Dallas Cowboys, cars, and horses. He will be sorely missed by all.

Mackie was preceded in death by his parents, Roland and Henrietta Edens Salmon; a brother, Nolan Salmon and wife Sue Keever Salmon; a niece, Linnie Salmon Crosnoe; and a sister, Gaye Salmon Galvan.

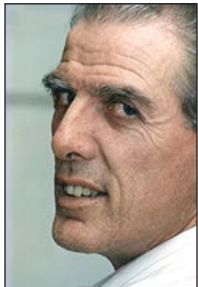

Mackie is survived by his sister, Sammie Salmon Goodwin Doering of Clarendon; a niece, Gina Goodwin Dilly and husband Tom and daughter, Lauren Dilly of Rockford, Michigan; a niece, Gail Galvan and nephew Greg Galvan of Atascadero, California; grand niece, Bailey Crosnoe and grand nephew, Brayden Crosnoe of Frisco; and a nephew in law, Steve Crosnoe of Frisco.

23 Texas cities were targeted in a “coordinated ransomware attack”

By Troy Closson, Texas Tribune

Additional reporting by Roger Estlack, Clarendon Enterprise

Cybersecurity experts have been deployed by the state to assess the damage from a “coordinated ransomware attack” that struck 23 Texas cities on Friday, state officials said.

Investigators hadn’t determined the origin of the attacks as of Friday evening and were still working to bring cities’ systems back online, according to a news release from the Texas Department of Information Resources.

The department believes, however, that the attacks came from a “single threat actor.”

Ransomware attacks involve a type of malware that accesses an organization’s files, locks and encrypts them until a ransom is paid to get them back.

The malicious software is often delivered through email attachments or links, and has cost cities across the country millions in damage to computer hardware.

The department declined to name the specific cities that were attacked, but said the majority were smaller local governments.

On Friday, Texas Gov. Greg Abbott ordered a “Level 2 Escalated Response” to the attacks, one step below the Texas Division of Emergency Management’s highest level of alert.

The designation means the emergency is beyond the scope of local responders.

The Texas ransomware incidents follow recent attacks in other states including Florida, Maryland and New York.

The City of Clarendon was hit by a ransomware attack two years ago. City Administrator David Dockery says the city now has a system of automatic off-site backups for its critical data.

Notice of Public Hearing on Tax Increase

The Clarendon College District will hold two public hearings on a proposal to increase total tax revenues from properties on the tax roll in the preceding tax year by 7.99% percent (percentage by which proposed tax rate exceeds lower of rollback tax rate or effective tax rate calculated under Tax Code Chapter 26). Your individual taxes may increase at a greater or lesser rate, or even decrease, depending on the change in the taxable value of your property in relation to the change in taxable value of all other property and the tax rate that is adopted.

The first public hearing will be held on Thursday, August 22, 2019, at 1:00 p.m. at the Bairfield Activity Center VIP Room.

The second public hearing will be held on Thursday, August 29, 2019, at 1:00 p.m. at the Bairfield Activity Center VIP Room.

The members of the governing body voted on the proposal to consider the tax increase as follows:

FOR: Tommy Waldrop, Dr. Bill Sansing, Ruth Robinson, Susie Shields, Darlene Spier, and Jerry Woodard.

AGAINST: None.

PRESENT: Tommy Waldrop, Dr. Bill Sansing, Ruth Robinson, Susie Shields, Darlene Spier, and Jerry Woodard.

ABSENT: Lon Adams and Edwin Campbell.

The average taxable value of a residence homestead in Donley County last year was $34,750. Based on last year’s tax rate of $.251149 per $100 of taxable value, the amount of taxes imposed last year on the average home was $87.27.

The average taxable value of a residence homestead in Donley County this year is $44,930. If the governing body adopts the effective tax rate for this year of $.21918 per $100 of taxable value, the amount of taxes imposed this year on the average home would be $98.48.

If the governing body adopts the proposed tax rate of $.2366 per $100 of taxable value, the amount of taxes imposed this year on the average home would be $106.30.

Members of the public are encouraged to attend the hearings and express their views.

Beef, dairy producers raise funds for SnackPack

The Amarillo area beef and dairy communities presented a check for $163,000 to the Snack Pak 4 Kids (SP4K) Beef Stik Program last week.

The money will provide 218,000 beef sticks to hungry students through the Snack Pak weekend hunger program. The check was presented at the first Beef 4 Kids Classic golf tournament.

The SP4K Beef Stik Program launched in October 2017. The program was designed to provide more protein for hungry children in the Panhandle. The program allows consumers to purchase Snack Pak Beef Stiks online or in convenience stores, and every stick purchased provides an additional stick for a child in need. But the program does not stop there.

Howell explains that the money raised through the B4K Golf Classic will provide an additional 218,000 beef sticks (1.9 million grams of protein).

That is 5,500 kids who will receive an extra beef stick in their weekend bag at no additional cost to their local program or donors. Combined with the buy one, give one program, all 10,000 students served through Snack Pak will receive an additional stick.

Beef provides ten essential nutrients and vitamins, including protein, zinc and iron – three key nutrients that are essential for proper growth and development of children. The SP4K Beef Stik is made of 100 percent chuck roast and brisket, making it the most premium beef stick on the market.

And those are nutrients that hungry kids need the most, said Shane Redline, CEO of Jax Transport, a local cargo and freight trucking company that is one of the B4K golf tournament sponsors. For Redline, the need for kids to have access to consistent, high-quality food over the weekend hits all too close to home.

How can you help: Buy SP4K Beef Stiks at www.sp4k.org/beef-stik. Every stick you purchase provides an additional stick for a child in need. Share the Beef Stik info on your social media channels. Donate beef to the program. Sponsor your community or a local child. Give SP4K Beef Stiks at your company meetings, as gifts, etc.

PUBLIC NOTICE

On July 15, 2019, Southwestern Electric Power Company (SWEPCO) filed a petition with the Public Utility Commission of Texas (Commission) requesting Certificate of Convenience and Necessity (CCN) authorization to acquire an interest in three wind generation facilities (the Selected Wind Facilities) located in Oklahoma. The docket number and style of the case are PUC Docket No. 49737, Application of Southwestern Electric Power Company for Certificate of Convenience and Necessity Authorization and Related Relief for the Acquisition of Wind Generation Facilities. SWEPCO has approximately 184,000 Texas retail customers, all of whom are affected by this Application. SWEPCO has filed separate applications for certification of the Selected Wind Facilities with the Arkansas Public Service Commission and the Louisiana Public Service Commission. PSO has filed for approval of rate recovery for the Selected Wind Facilities from the Oklahoma Corporation Commission.

Through a Request for Proposals (RFP) process, SWEPCO and its sister company Public Service Company of Oklahoma (PSO) have contracted to acquire the project companies owning the following three Selected Wind Facilities, subject to receipt of regulatory approvals and satisfaction of other conditions:

Traverse	999 MW
Maverick	287 MW
Sundance	199 MW
Total	1485 MW

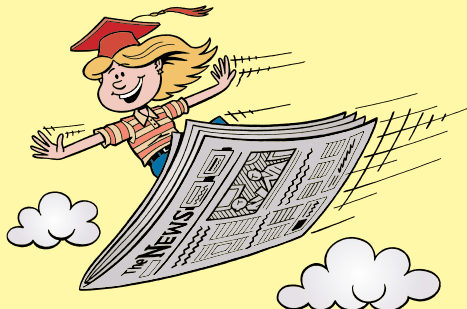

Each of the Selected Wind Facilities is owned by an affiliate of Invenergy LLC. SWEPCO has contracted to acquire 54.5% of each Facility, for a total of 810 MW, and PSO will acquire the remaining 45.5% (675 MW) share. In the event that approval is not received from all state regulatory commissions, SWEPCO requests approval in this application to acquire a larger share of the Selected Wind Facilities for the benefit of Texas customers.

The total price for the Selected Wind Facilities including all interconnection and upgrade costs, payable at closing, is $1.86 billion ($1,253/kW), of which SWEPCO's 54.5% share is $1.01 billion. Total project costs including PSA price adjustments and owner's costs are expected to be approximately $1.996 billion, of which SWEPCO's 54.5% share is approximately $1.09 billion. Closing is subject to regulatory approvals and other conditions, and there are no pre-closing progress or other payments.

Persons with questions about this Project should contact SWEPCO at 428 Travis Street, Shreveport, Louisiana 71101 or call toll-free at (888) 216-3523 during normal business hours. Persons who wish to intervene in the proceeding or comment upon action sought, should contact the Public Utility Commission, P.O. Box 13326, Austin, Texas 78711-3326, or call the Public Utility Commission at (512) 936-7120 or (888) 782-8477. Hearing- and speech-impaired individuals with text telephones (TTY) may contact the commission at (512) 936-7136. The deadline for intervention in the proceeding is September 30, 2019 and you must send a letter requesting intervention to the Commission which is received by that date.

A copy of SWEPCO's petition may be viewed on the Commission's webpage at <https://www.puc.texas.gov>. The Commission maintains an electronic copy of all filings on the "Filings/Filings Search" section of its webpage. The control number for this proceeding is 49737.
