City sales tax dips in November report

Clarendon sales tax revenues dipped slightly when Texas Comptroller Glenn Hegar delivered November sales tax allocations to local cities last week.

The city's allocation of $44,221.15 was a drop of 2.39 percent from the same period in 2018. The city's calendar year-to-date revenue is up 0.89 percent compared to one year ago at $392,932.62.

Hedley's revenue for the month was up 17.51 percent at $1,516.94, but that city's year-to-date tally is still behind 17.57 percent down to $9,520.98.

Howardwick moved up 9.04 percent this month to $798.77 and is 1.59 percent for the year at $13,373.43.

Statewide, Hegar delivered $849.6 million in local sales tax allocations for November, 4.0 percent more than in November 2018.

These allocations are based on sales made in September by businesses that report tax monthly, and sales made in July, August and September by quarterly filers.

Honoring our veterans

Cold weather didn't dampen the enthusiasm Donley County residents showed for America's veterans during ceremonies held here over the last few days.

Clarendon High School's Bronco Band and members of BSA Troop 433 saluted those who have served in the military with a special halftime music and flag show during the Broncos' football game Friday night.

Outdoor ceremonies planned for Monday morning were moved inside in both Clarendon and Hedley. The American Legion and Hedley school services were widely praised and did an outstanding job of honoring veterans' service. The school also continued its tradition of serving a thanksgiving meal to the veterans and their families.

In Clarendon, about 25 people assembled in the VFW Hall with Post Commander Nathan Floyd serving as master of ceremonies. The service included a patriotic singing and a wreath presentation by Civil Air Patrol Cadet Tyler Paul in memory of fallen veterans and those listed as prisoners of war or missing in action.

In a speech, Floyd said veterans were just ordinary people until they left their homes to defend the country and he urged Americans to do their part in protecting freedom.

"Vote. Speak out against injustice. Teach children," he said. "Live in the freedom they protected."

A service at Clarendon College Monday night was keynoted by Dick Bode of Alanreed, who spoke about his experience as a young boy while his father worked against the Nazis in the Dutch underground resistance. Bode, who later moved to the United States and served in the US Air Force, talked about the greatness of America and pronounced that he is "an American by choice."

Clarendon Elementary closed out the services honoring veterans Tuesday afternoon with a program at the Bronco Gym. In addition to special music sung by kids in grades first through fifth, veterans received handmade gifts from the students and were treated to a meal following the service.

The VFW Auxiliary asks for volunteers to help pick up flags at Citizens Cemetery on Monday, November 18, at 4:30 p.m.

Dental office expands service

Donley County area residents are benefitting from expanded dental services thanks to Dr. Ed Vlosich and Clarendon Dental Associates.

Now in its second week of service, the new practice has picked up in the same office at Five Medical Drive where Dr. Richard Sheppard left off after 15 years of service to the community. The office itself has a new look with new flooring and a fresh coat of paint, but familiar faces still great clients. Office manager Jana White and hygienist Tiffanie Word have been serving local patients since 2004, and dental assistant Emilee Evans has been in the business for five years.

"Routine family dentistry is what we do here," Vlosich said Monday.

The Carlsbad, New Mexico, native earned two ag degrees from New Mexico State University before graduating with a degree from what is now known as Texas A&M College of Dentistry in Dallas in 1984. He then worked in Midland before moving to Amarillo in 1988.

Now joined in his practice with his son Spence Vlosich, DDS, and with another son, Drew, about to graduate from dental school, Dr. Vlosich wanted to expand when Dr. Sheppard was looking to scale back his practice.

"We were looking for something with Drew finishing dental school," Vlosich said. "My partner bought a practice in Dimmitt. We first looked at Plainview before coming here [to Clarendon]."

The Vlosichs will soon be offering digital radiography imaging to better serve local customers, and the office, which is currently only open on Mondays, will expand its hours for Tuesday appointments as well.

Dr. Vlosich says his focus is the on value of prevention when it comes to dental health. Preventive sealants for children and fluoride treatments are available from his office.

"Routine maintenance is so important," he said.

Through his years of experience and his Amarillo practice, Vlosich has a network of specialists he can refer patients to if their situation requires it. Local patients will also be able to benefit from visiting the Vlosichs' Amarillo office if an emergency situation arises that needs

SBA: Serving our Veterans

By Justin Crossie

This week we recognized veterans who are vital to ensuring the United States remains safe and free and for their role in strengthening the nations robust economy as entrepreneurs. On Veterans Day and throughout the year, the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) says “Thank you for your service” by connecting our veterans with critical business-building resources to start, grow, and create jobs.

Military veterans own nearly 2.5 million small businesses in the country, employing five million workers and generating over $1 trillion in sales. The latest census data shows about 215,000 veteran’s own businesses across Texas. The SBA is ready to help even more live the American dream that they so fearlessly fought for.

Recently, Chris Pilkerton, head of the SBA and advocate for the nation’s 30 million small businesses as a member of President Trump’s Cabinet, travelled to Texas to meet with U.S. Army veterans John Hoen-shelt and Wayne Ostrander and tour their company, Taiga Coolers, LLC, in Mesquite. The owners manufacture customizable, heavy-duty coolers made in Texas, and were able to grow and expand with an SBA backed loan. They have created 12 jobs and are now increasing their market footprint by selling internationally. The hardworking, savvy owners have also developed an on-demand kiosk system for store placement.

Chris said, “What impressed me most about this was that the Taiga team not only built the kiosks but taught themselves how to code to program its operations. A true demonstration of the resourcefulness of our veteran business community!”

I know teamwork is a strong component of any military member’s experience. As a marine veteran, I know how important it is to rely on others in your group for success. Now as a part of the SBA Team, I want our veterans and spouses to know if you decide to take the leap into small business ownership, the SBA is a committed part of your team. We want you to know that running a business is not a solo mission.

Most missions need funding to be successful – and this is especially true when it comes to starting a small business. But did you know that veterans looking to start, grow, expand, or recover a business typically need less than $50,000 in capital? In fact, 51% report using $25,000 or less for startup or acquisition.

There are a variety of existing resources that can help you no matter where you are in your entrepreneurial journey. Whether you’re looking to start, grow, or expand your business – the SBA has a training program to fit your needs:

Service-Disabled Veteran Entrepreneurship Training Program (SDVETP): SDVETP is the perfect program for service-disabled veterans who are interested in starting their own business. This program allows you to translate your service-connected disability into the skills you need to become a successful business owner. Join SDVETP to kickstart your entrepreneurship journey and experience immersive, personalized, and hands-on training in all things business.

Veteran Entrepreneurial Training and Resource Network (VETRN): VETRN is a training program for existing veteran small business owners who are eager to build connections in the business world. This peer-to-peer program is designed for veterans and their family members – and it provides skills, resources, mentors, and networking to help you grow your small business.

Veteran Federal Procurement Entrepreneurship Training Program (VFPETP): Do you have a veteran-owned or service-disabled veteran-owned business? If you’re interested in pursuing or already engaged in federal procurement, then VFPETP is the program for you. VFPETP’s entrepreneurship training tips and resources can help you take your business to new heights. Plus, the international program provides training for VOSBs and SDVOSBs looking to enter the export arena.

Women Veteran Entrepreneurship Training Program (WVETP): WVETP is a specialized program that provides entrepreneurial training to support women veterans, women service members, and military spouses as they navigate through their business adventure.

The tradition of honoring our veterans began more than 100 years ago to commemorate the 11th hour on the 11th day of the 11th month in 1918 when an armistice was signed to end World War One. More than winning the war, we believed it is important to celebrate the heroes who sacrifice their lives to uphold our American liberties. Today, our commitment is that when their military service ends, SBA’s services to these heroes begin. To learn more about the SBA’s Veteran education and training programs, check out www.sba.gov/vetbiz today.

When the clocks go unwatched

OK, I admit it. My memory of clever ads and lots of other stuff dates back to the early years of World War II. One I recall simply won’t dislodge.

It promoted what the world has long described as being “an adult beverage.” I’ll not call it by name.

For all I know, the trumpeted “distillery process” may have been about the same length as others, but it always bragged about not “watching the clock for seven long years.”...

I’ll give no further mention to what forebears named “the devil’s brew,” except to identify some folks who haven’t watched CALENDERS for seven DECADES, and even more. They ploy on.

One is a national figure known for his “hands on” service to Habitat for Humanity and teaching Sunday School since his teen years; the other is a minister friend who remains “on call” for Sunday preaching invitations, or any other time of the week for that matter.

*****

The other is Dr. Jimmie Nelson, whose tenure of Christian service is nearer 80 years than 70, and he’s still preaching. He spent a couple of decades as a pastor and almost three decades “professorially” at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, where he was first director of the Doctor of Ministry program.

He lives down the road a couple of miles, and is a valued friend. Since his retirement from full-time seminary service in 1998, he has continued occasional teaching and frequent preaching.

In his “retirement,” he has been an interim or guest preacher for most Sundays each year, including 2019. This year, he’d already logged some three dozen engagements by October’s end. And he’s coming up on age 92....

*****

These men – and several persons of my acquaintance – personify the old lesson provided by the tomato vine. We are instructed to strive to emulate green tomatoes.

As long as we’re green, we grow. It’s when we think ourselves to be “ripe” that we start to rotten....

*****

I’m convinced that as long as one has reasonable health, there are many reasons to “press on,” avoiding occasional temptation – however enticing – to “watch the clock.”

And the same goes for calendars. Working with senior adults at our church, I am privileged to see folks each week who inspire....

*****

Currently on my radar are a widow

the idle american by don newbury

and widower who have arrived at “item” status. I’ll use their first names, Jackie and Andy. I’ll not reveal her age, but their average age is nearly 90.

He’s been a motorcyclist for most of his adult life. Currently, he owns a three-wheeler.

She’s an accomplished artist, never having thought she’d be riding on such a conveyance in twilight years. But she is. Recently, the pair rode the ‘cycle from Burleson to Waco – a distance of some 70 miles – to have lunch at “one of Andy’s favorite fish places.” Street construction loomed as they neared the café, so they ate at Cracker Barrel instead. They could have done so back in Burleson, of course, but maybe it was too close....

We should all “press on,” despite momentary setbacks.

I’ve had “faux pas” tendencies for decades, but have pressed on. I recall a years ago speech when I mentioned poet Robert Browning’s famous words to his beloved wife Elizabeth. “How do I love thee? Let me count the ways.” I saw a scrawled note being passed my way from a back table. On it, a friend had written, “Don, he didn’t say that to her; she said it to him!”

I read it aloud, and we all laughed. I, like green tomatoes, haven’t arrived. We press on....

The Perry Manson is ready for guests

Some people say Terlingua has the brightest moon in Texas. “You can read a book by the moon out here,” says Bill Ivey, owner of the Terlingua Ghost Town. “At times you can almost read a book by the stars. I’ve seen people walking to their car at night, stop and look up. They’ve never seen the Milky Way.”

Things are booming in Terlingua. Bill says land values are increasing. “We’ve become the last best place in Texas and maybe the United States. Folks have discovered the Big Bend in general. This place has its own spirit and people coming here can feel it. The word gets out that this is a pretty cool place to be and now we’re seeing an influx of folks that like it so much they want to move here.”

Bill’s dad, Rex Ivey, bought Terlingua in the 1940s after the mines had shut down. “It was after World War 2 and he bought it for salvage. Building materials were scarce, so he tore down a lot of the structures. Now I’m trying to put them back together. When my dad came down to see what he had bought they handed him a 3-pound coffee can full of keys and said ‘it’s yours.’ Everything was just like they left it.”

A man by the name of Howard Perry owned the mercury mine in Terlingua. “He was from up east. When he found out what he had won in a poker game he came out here and found people mining mercury. His mine became one of the largest mercury mines in the world. He built a town. There wasn’t anything here before and it ended up being the largest town between Del Rio and El Paso. Terlingua had a population of around 3,000. It had the first ice cream parlor in West Texas. It had Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts. It had a Cavalry Post for a while, tennis courts and 3 schools. It was very much a thriving community in the early 1900s.”

Mr. Perry built a mansion on top of a hill so he could watch over the activities at the mine. The mansion is where Mr. Perry had a meeting with Bill’s dad. “They sat and visited in this very room. It’s what we call the Great Room. It was never closed in with windows. And sit-

stories of texas
by tumbleweed smith

ting right in the middle of this room was a Gatling gun. Mr. Perry was scared to death Pancho Villa was going to raid his town and he wanted to protect it.”

Bill, who bought Terlingua 30 years ago, has restored the Perry mansion using the same techniques used when it was originally built nearly 100 years ago. “We made the adobes right outside here and put them in place. Hauling those 40-pound adobe bricks up two stories was a tiring job. We didn’t use any heavy equipment. When we started it was just a ruin. Hadn’t had a roof since the 40s. No windows or doors. Never had water or electricity. One of the back adobe walls was starting to come loose, so we had to act fast to save it. We spent a year just on the outside. Some of my kids and I spent another year detailing the inside. We’re building a fountain outside.” The mansion opened as a bed and breakfast on March first of this year. “We had a full house last night.” Terlingua has been listed on the National Register of Historic Places for 25 years. “We want to keep it a ghost town. I want to preserve the culture and the history. There are few jobs here so people live here because they want to.”

Hedley puts on impressive service

As a member of the American Legion post in Hedley I attended the Veterans Day memorial at the Hedley School. A school in a very small town, but WOW! How impressive were the students who presented the program!

It was evident to me that the school teachers, principal Eric Alston, and Superintendent Garrett Bains were leading the students in learning their books.

In addition, they were respecting of our visit and served us a Thanksgiving lunch.

Their musical songs were patriotic and well done by the Pre K and 5th graders. The program was guided by the older students Perla Carreon, Kadee McCleskey, Cara Lambert, Esteban Carreon, Collin Monroe, Mica Alvey, Zach Wells, Leandra Mestas, and Emma Lambert. Judge Messer told a moving story about his first court trial. I’m sure many of us had a tears in our eyes.

How fortunate we are living in Donley County with the fine schools to teach leadership and respect. This appreciation is from a Texan by choice.

Art show

Among those attending the fall art show presented last Thursday by the Les Beaux Arts Club were Miranda Godwin, Karly Keen, Albagail Keen, Kate Williamson, Lilly Keen, and Zandria Keen. The show, which was attended by about 80 people, was the culmination of a six-week program sponsored by the club during which volunteers worked on art projects with Clarendon Elementary students.

The Clarendon Lions Club held its regular Tuesday noon meeting November 12, 2019, with Boss Lion Scarlet Estlack in charge.

We had ten members and Sweethearts Kira Weatherston and Mattee Johnson this week.

The Boss Lion thanked everyone for helping with the Pancake Supper, which was very well attended.

Lion Tex Buckhaults reported there are 19 days left in the fall semester at the college, and Lion David Dockery updated the club on the pool construction and other city projects. Lion Landon Lambert reported on the county.

The Sweethearts said the Broncos are playing Ralls this Friday night in Tulia in the first playoff game of the season.

The Boss Lion said the college will be performing "A Charlie Brown Christmas" again this year.

There being no further business, we were dismissed to spread Lionism and good cheer throughout our fair county.

1926 Book Club holds meeting

The 1926 Book Club had its monthly meeting with business, refreshments, fellowship, and laughter recently.

The book review given was "Dearest Dorothy, Are We There Yet?" written by the very hysterical Charlene Ann Baumbeck.

The book's setting takes place in Partonville, a circle-the-square town in the northern part of southern Illinois, where families and friends find that sharing the highs and lows of life's wild rides with one another make the highs more exhilarating and the lows more bearable. The town's Dearest Dorothy, an 87-year-old former bandleader, who marches her way right into the hearts of all Partonvillers, silently face difficult decisions – decisions that will change their lives and perhaps even change the town forever.

Shaking things up is what Dorothy does best. However, she has competition in Maggie Malone, owner of La Faminique Hair Salon & Day Spa, who cannot wait to show off and see the looks on everyone's faces when she displays what she has been up to at the latest hair conference in Chicago.

Thankful for our Veterans

Sunday I went to church. I chose the First Baptist Church of Howardwick. I had that freedom of choice because the veterans we are honoring this week fought for my freedom to make that choice.

My heart was ready to burst when Bro. Fox asked the veterans to stand, and I was sitting between my son and husband as they both stood. I thought of the eight generations of my family who have fought for my freedom to make the choice of that little Baptist church, beginning with John Lloyd and the French and Indian War.

If the French had won, I would have had little choice in my church, probably Catholic. If the Revolutionary War would have been lost, it would have been the Church of England. Thank you, James Lloyd. In WWII with Germany, I don't know which church I would have attended yesterday or if I would have survived.

Because of men like my husband and son, Americans are free to choose their church, have a lively discussion about the Trump administration, free to travel and see our beautiful country, to eat and work as we see fit, and, most of all, to vote.

Thank you, veterans. Without you we would not be the United States of America but instead a number of small, poor countries trying to keep the population fed. I salute you all.

Weekend offers family fun time

My family and I had a fun weekend. On Friday night, we helped with the Lions Club Pancake Supper and my sister, my cousin Daniel, and I helped with a veterans salute at the football game. We wore our Scout uniforms and carried flags while the band played.

Saturday, we went to Amarillo to get me some basketball shoes, and then I went and bought some new paints and canvases. I had to buy these because I'm going to be selling some paintings in like two or three weeks.

A n y w a y when we went to buy paints, I saw my cousin Gage, and he was there to pick up some paints for his school painting project. We got to talking, and we invited him to come and spend the night with us so I could help with his painting. I got to teach him how to paint the sky and how to paint snow covered mountains. I thought he did a good job, and I'm glad I could help him with his school project.

I had a lot of fun this weekend, and I think Gage is going to be a really good artist.

TxDOT urges drivers to 'end the streak' of daily deaths

AUSTIN – Julian Ekpanya will someday smile while reeling in his first fish. He will experience the joy of hitting his first Little League homerun, learn to ride a bike and eventually take a prideful walk across a graduation stage. But his father won't be there for any of it.

Julian's father, Endy, was a Pearland police officer responding to a call on a Sunday morning, when his patrol car was struck head-on by a wrong-way, drunk driver. He died on the way to the hospital. He was 31.

"Julian is five now, and he's started asking me, 'When is Daddy coming home? Where is Daddy?'," said Lucy Lugo Ekpanya, Endy's widow. "I tell him that Daddy is on a very important mission, he is protecting us, he is our hero and he lives in our hearts. He is in Heaven."

November 7, 2000 was the last deathless day on roadways in Texas. That means for 19 years straight, at least one person has died every single day. Texas Transportation Commission and TxDOT officials held a press conference in Houston today, launching the annual #EndTheStreakTX campaign that asks all Texans to join the effort to end this deadly 19-year streak.

An average of 10 people die every day in crashes in the state, prompting Texas Transportation Commissioner Laura Ryan to issue a public challenge at today's press conference. Announcing her "Texas Tag 10 Challenge," Ryan urged the crowd to tell 10 people about #EndTheStreakTX, and then have each of those 10 tell another 10, causing a wave of commitment and a surge of support for ending the fatal trend.

"I want to challenge everyone here to tell 10 people right now about #EndTheStreakTX," Ryan said. "Take out your phones and let them know that you need their help to #EndTheStreakTX. Text them this message or share it on social media and tag at least 10 people. Challenge them to share the message with 10 of their friends, and so on. Let's not have a 20th anniversary next Nov. 7th"

TxDOT is asking people to share personal stories of loved ones lost in car crashes on their social media pages using photo and video testimonials with the hashtag, #EndTheStreakTX. The agency also will post statistics for the public to repost on social media outlets to help share this important message.

"We all have the power to end the streak of daily deaths on Texas roadways," Ryan said. "And while we are committed to invest in the best engineering practices to make our roads safe, we also need drivers and passengers to act more responsibly and help us end the streak of daily deaths on our roads to reach our goal of zero deaths by 2050."

TxDOT will dedicate an additional $600 million for more safety improvements along Texas roadways over the next two years. The effort includes widening some roads and adding rumble strips that alert drivers if they are veering out of their lane or off the road. We will also add reinforced shoulders and select turn lanes, and deploy new technology that will increase safety on the entire system of roads.

In May, the Texas Transportation Commission approved a goal aiming to end all fatalities on Texas roads by 2050, with an interim goal to reduce them by half by 2035. Texans can play a major role in ending fatal crashes with a few simple driving habits: wear seatbelts, drive the speed limit, put away the phone and other distractions, and never drive under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

"It's heartbreaking to know that every day for the past 19 years someone has lost a spouse, child, friend or neighbor on our state's roadways," said TxDOT Executive Director James Bass. "Ending this daily death streak is a shared responsibility. While we are committed to continue making improvements to our highway system, we all must work toward ending preventable crashes caused by drivers including distracted driving, speeding and drunk driving. Let's make it a priority to be safe, focused and responsible behind the wheel. Let's end the streak."

Since Nov. 7, 2000, fatalities resulting from vehicle crashes on Texas roadways have numbered almost 67,000. The leading causes of fatalities continue to be failure to stay in one lane, alcohol and speed. To decrease the chances of roadway crashes and fatalities, TxDOT reminds drivers to: Buckle seatbelts – all passengers need to be buckled; Pay attention – put phones away and avoid distractions; Never drink and drive or do drugs and drive – get a sober ride home; and Drive the speed limit – obey speed limits and drive slower when weather conditions warrant.

Election:

Texans who voted to ensure that our great state will always be free of a state income tax. This ban on such a disastrous tax will keep our economy prosperous, protect taxpayers, and ensure that Texas remains the best state to live, work, and raise a family."

The other propositions were poised to pass easily. Proposition 5, which would stabilize funding for state parks, received overwhelming support. The proposition allows money accumulated from the existing sales tax on sporting goods to be used for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and the Texas Historical Commission. Current law allows the Legislature to allocate that money however it sees fit.

Proposition 10, which had the highest level of support, amends the state constitution to allow retired service animals, such as dogs or horses, to be adopted by their handlers or other qualified caretakers. These animals are currently classified as surplus property or salvage and can be "auctioned, donated or destroyed."

Proposition 6, which allows for an increase of bonds allocated to the Cancer Prevention and Research Institute of Texas received nearly two-thirds support, according to preliminary results from the Texas Secretary of State.

Voters were also overwhelmingly in favor of Proposition 8, which would set aside $800 million from the state's rainy day fund for flood mitigation efforts. The Legislature approved the amendment after Hurricane Harvey's devastation along the Texas coast. The proposition netted about three-fourths of the vote as of Wednesday morning.

Another Harvey-related item, Proposition 3, also passed easily. The ballot initiative allows the Legislature to provide temporary tax breaks for people with property damaged in governor-declared disaster areas. The Legislature approved the resolution unanimously earlier this year.

A majority of Texas voters must approve any changes to the Texas Constitution. Getting a proposed amendment on the ballot requires support from more than two-thirds of both chambers of the Legislature.

Broncos lose to Vega; stay in the hunt for playoffs

By Sandy Anderberg

The Broncos played their last regular season home football game last Friday night, which allowed them to finish third in District. They now head to post-season play on Friday, November 15, at Tulia against Ralls.

The Broncos were fired up against Vega but let the game slip away losing 23-42. Their rushing yards were lower than normal as they finished with 189 yards on the ground and 72 in the air.

Freshman Sylvester Ballard, who has been gaining 100 yards plus, was held to only 43 yards on 11 carries and one touchdown. Jmaury Davis had a stellar night with six carries for 130 yards and one score. Lamarus Penigar carried the ball four times for 12 yards, and Antwan

Bassett went four yards on two carries.

At the quarterback spot, Penigar had 72 yards on nine attempts and threw a touchdown strike to Nate Lee for 62 yards. Collin Butler also had a catch for 10 yards.

“We did not have a good showing,” head coach Clint Conkin said. “We gave up 431 yards rushing on defense and 17 passing yards.”

Lady Broncos play strong in season opener

By Sandy Anderberg

The Lady Bronco varsity team played a good game Saturday against Perryton and earned a 56-32 win.

Jade Benson led the ladies with 17 points which included going nine for eleven from the free throw line. The team finished the game shooting 63 percent from the line.

Clarendon jumped all over Perryton in the first quarter and took a 10-point lead. But the Rangerettes were able to grab a little momentum before the break. Good teamwork on both ends of the court was a positive for the Lady Broncos as they were able to find a rhythm and make things work.

Joining Jade in double figures was Kira Weatherton, who posted 12 points that included two three-pointers. Mattee Johnson also finished in double figures with 10 and made good on two three-pointers as well. Johnson also hit four of six free throws. Kaylin Hicks finished with six, and Ashlynn Crawford added five. Kailee Osburn, Madi Smith, and Madi Gay finished with two points each.

The Lady Broncos will host Claude at home on Saturday, November 16, at 11:00 a.m. They will play at McLean on November 19.

Lady Bronco JV grabs OT win

In their season opener, the Lady Bronco JV took on a good Perryton team and won 29-28 in an overtime win.

The Rangerettes struck early keeping the Lady Broncos scoreless in the first quarter of play, but a great offensive effort in the second quarter put the ladies right back in the hunt. Finley Cunningham got things rolling when she hit a big three-pointer and added nine more points that quarter to give the Lady Broncos a boost before the break.

The game remained tied in the second half, which put the teams in an overtime period. Cunningham hit another three and Kaitlyn Davis hit the front end of a two-shot foul to give Clarendon the win.

Cunningham finished with 16 points and Jayde Gribble helped with four. Makenna Shadle and Shania Brown each added three, Aliyah Weatherton put in two, and Davis finished with one.

“It was our first game of the season,” coach Kasey Bell said. “We saw all of the things we need to work on in practice. The girls played hard.”

They will play the Amarillo Flames at home next Saturday.
