Early voting starts Monday in runoff

Early voting begins Monday, June 29, for runoff elections for Texas Democratic and Republican party primaries.

Locally, the biggest focus is on the Republican race to be the candidate for the 13th Congressional District. Josh Winegarner received the most votes in the March primary but failed to get more than 50 percent of the vote to avoid the runoff. He will face Ronny Jackson to determine who will carry the Republican mantle in the November election.

Also of local interest on the Republican ballot, is the race of the Justice of the 7th Court of Appeals. Incumbent Larry Doss narrowly defeated challenger Steven Denny during the March primary. However, the race was left off ballots in Collingsworth and Cochran counties, so a court ordered the race be put in front of the voters again during the runoff election.

Early voting by personal appearance will be conducted at the Donley County Courthouse Annex through July 10. The annex will be closed on July 3 for the holiday weekend. The primary runoff elections will be held July 14, 2020.

Garden tour to benefit Christ's Kids

Folks with or without green thumbs are invited to join the Donley County Garden Club's first annual Tour of Gardens this Sunday, June 28, from 3 to 5 p.m. to benefit the Christ's Kids Ministry.

A total of six family gardens are on the tour for this inaugural event, and Judy Thomas says she and her fellow club members have two main goals with the benefit tour.

"First, we want to help support the Christ's Kids, and second, we want to educate folks on what you can do with gardens," she said.

The club just got started this year and has between 20 and 25 members, most of whom live in Donley County but gardeners from Memphis and Amarillo have been active as well.

Thomas said the Tour of Gardens will be self-guided with people being able to start and stop with which ever spot on the map they choose. Each location will have a donation bucket for the Christ's Kids.

As it looked for a way to not only foster more interest in gardening but also to serve the community, the garden club felt that Christ's Kids Ministry was a natural fit with its mission to feed local kids both spiritually and physically.

"It's an outreach that ultimately feeds kids who may not get good nutrition otherwise," Thomas said.

The Tour of Gardens will feature different styles of gardening. Thomas and her husband Gary utilize mostly raised beds in their garden where they grow tomatoes, peppers, onions, garlic, cilantro, zucchini, strawberries, and more.

"Raised beds are easy to care for and demonstrate what you can do in a small space," Thomas said.

Gardening is not that difficult and used to be much more commonplace than it is today, Thomas said. Her own interest in the hobby was bolstered by a desire to be more self-sufficient in terms of the food supply.

"It's not as much work as some people think," Thomas said. "It's also important to realize that you're going to have fails, but don't give up."

Garden tour locations in Clarendon are at the residences of Gary and Judy Thomas at 508 W. Barcus Street, Che and Linde Shadle at 1013 W. 8th Street, Russell and Scarlet Estlack at 621 S. Collinson Street, and B.J. and Jennie Owens at 518 S. Bugbee Avenue as well as outside of town at Dale and Amanda Askew home at 4240 S. Hwy 70 and Bill and Deanna Cornell's home at 4166 CR 13. A map is located on the back page of this week's Enterprise.

Preparations continue for July 4 celebration

Barbecue tickets are on sale, parade entries are coming in, and vendors are signing up for the craft fair for the 2020 Saints' Roost Celebration next weekend July 2, 3, and 4.

The schedule is mostly unchanged from last week, although it wouldn't be 2020 without something changing. It had been previously announced that the Whistle-Stop Trade Days would re-open for this season during the celebration weekend. Unfortunately, last week the Whistle-Stop officially announced it would not be open for July.

There is still a full slate of activities for all Clarendon's area neighbors looking for a place to celebrate American Independence.

Clarendon Outdoor Entertainment Association's Junior Rodeo scheduled for Thursday night, July 2, and the Ranch Rodeo on Friday and Saturday nights, July 3 and 4.

The big day will be Saturday, July 4, beginning with the Arts & Craft Fair on the square at 9 a.m. sponsored by the Donley County 4H. Booths must be reserved through the Donley County 4H by calling 806-874-2141.

The Chamber of Commerce's Old Settlers Reunion and the Kids' Bicycle & Tricycle Parade, sponsored by Shelton & Shelton Attorneys and Mike's Pharmacy, will also begin at 9 a.m. The Kids' Parade will line up at 8:30 at Keith Floyd's shop at Third and Sully.

All parents are asked to register their kids for the parade online by using the form at <https://forms.gle/T9fx5K9mcMCoraMU9>. Line up for the Herring Bank Parade will also start at 9 a.m. with the parade taking off at 10:00. The theme for this year's parade is "Texas Strong – United We Stand," and entry forms are available in this week's Enterprise as well as at the Visitor Center.

The Al Morrah Shrine Club barbecue will include a curbside pick-up of barbecue plates on Jefferson Street for those who prefer to avoid the crowd on the Fourth.

Tickets will be $15 per plate and are available at the Enterprise or may be purchased on the square.

Henson's Turtle Race will take place at 1:30 p.m. And the Ranch Rodeo will close out the day at the COEA Arena beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Accreditation committee visiting Clarendon College

The Clarendon College Board of Regents met in regular session Thursday, June 18, at the Bairfield Activity Center.

The board approved motions to accept Specialty Insurance Solutions for the college's athletic insurance and Attigo for student loan default prevention services. Technology security policies were also adopted as presented.

Regents met for more than an hour behind closed doors to discuss the president's contract. The board previously named Tex Buckhaults as the lone finalist for the position of president on May 21, which started a 21-day waiting period before he could formally be named president.

Following the closed session, the college's attorney will look over the proposed contract. The regents will meet again Monday, June 29, on that topic, Buckhaults said this week.

Regents Susie Shields, Darlene Spier, and Ruth Robinson were appointed to a special committee to look at repairs and other things for the president's house at 518 S. Cottage. That committee posted an agenda and met Monday.

The board accepted the resignation of Dale Askew as the Ranch & Feedlot Operations Director, acknowledged the retirement of math Associate Professor Linda Rowland, and approved the renewal of Aracell Carreon-Jimenez as a cosmetology instructor.

The board also approved the reassignment of Leah James as the Supervised Independent Living Coordinator. James will oversee the college's effort to serve students in the state's foster care system. Foster children qualify for state assistance for college if they agree to stay in the system through age 21, Buckhaults said. Under this situation, the college essentially serves as the student's foster parent, living in the dorms year round and taking classes. Buckhaults said there are currently 15 to 20 students in the CC service area who could qualify for this program.

In his president's report, Buckhaults said the SACS-COC committee will be on campus Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The Southern Association of Colleges & Schools – Commission on Colleges, which is the college's accrediting body, determined last summer that CC had "failed to demonstrate compliance" with a core requirement and three standards set by the agency.

At that time, the agency said the standards in question expect the college to: "(1) have a governing board that is not controlled by a minority of board members or by organizations or institutions separate from it; (2) have a governing board to ensure a clear and appropriate distinction between the policy-making function of the board and the responsibility of the administration and faculty to administer and implement policy; and (3) the institution's governing board defines and addresses potential conflict of interest for its members."

Buckhaults said the committee will interview all the members of the board of regents individually, except for Regent Carey Wann who was not a member of the board during the initial SACS-COC investigation last year.

Buckhaults also reported on the athletic honors and team GPAs. Among all of CC's teams, 30 athletes were named to the first honor team for their respective sports and 32 were named to the second team.

City council to hold town hall July 13

The City of Clarendon will host a town hall meeting to discuss the status of the USDA water infrastructure project, streets, and other issues Monday, July 13, at 6:30 p.m. at the Mulkey Theatre.

Mayor Sandy Skelton set up the meeting this week in response to citizens' concerns, and the city looks forward to addressing those.

The City Council met in called session last Tuesday, June 16, to consider several agenda items.

The council suspended the special rules for utility billing that had been in effect since April 1 to offer relief to city customers in terms of late fees and disconnects. Customers who are now past due on their accounts will again face late fees and disconnection of services.

Aldermen approved the recommendation of the Clarendon Economic Development Corporation to name Jarod Bellar to the CEDC board following the resignation of CEDC President Robert Riza.

A series of change orders were approved to the aquatics center project regarding water lines, tiling, and electrical work as well as expanding the fenced in area around the pool to allow for an additional 2,000 square feet of space for chairs and lounging.

The council approved a resolution reducing the number of city meetings from two per month to one per month. Beginning in October, the council will meet on the second Thursday of the month at 7 p.m.

A new policy was adopted allowing periodic residents of the city to have their utility accounts placed on hold and suspend billing for the times of year they are not present. A form will be available to fill out for that option and a penalty will be in place if an "on hold" account activates their own water instead of having the city do it.

Aldermen approved a motion to add 55 days to the contract on the USDA project so that the contractor is not penalized for the time the city put the project on hold during the COVID-19 crisis. City Administrator David Dockery says even allowing for that time period the contractor is still more than 200 days over term and has used 145 percent of the time called for on the project.

Dockery also reported on work on the pool, security cameras being installed at the airport under a RAMP grant, and efforts to secure a contract provider for sanitation services. He said all city employees have taken cyber security training and said aldermen need to take it also.

The history of US using the military domestically

If you read this column, then you know my goal is not to persuade to a particular belief but to merely inform with historical knowledge. Such is the case with many online comments I have read over the past few weeks. With protest marches widespread, President Trump has threatened to use military action to stop the violence. I read recently that if the President uses military action against American citizens, then this country as we know it is over. I am not saying that we should use the army, and am hoping it is not necessary. However, historically speaking, it has been done before and actually our Constitution was created because of it.

As always first things first, something we don't always use as much as we should. The Preamble to the Constitution lays out the five main roles of the federal government. The government is to establish justice, provide defense from our enemies, promote the welfare of its people, secure our liberty, and of course ensure domestic tranquility. In other words, one of the principle functions of the government is to protect us from internal threats.

In the first century of our nation, those functions meant very different things. This was the century where the federal government had little role in people's lives. One area the government took seriously was domestic tranquility, especially when it came to strikes. As labor unions grew and began to strike, the American government always took sides with management. If the companies and their people could not break strikes themselves, then state militias and even the federal government was always willing to step in. Arguably the most famous of these strikes was the Pullman strike.

In 1894 the American Railway Union went on strike. It started at the Pullman company town outside Chicago. Among the many complaints was that the Pullman Company reduced wages but not rent on the homes employees were forced to live in. When railway workers across the nation struck, President Cleveland called out the Army to put it down.

As I said in the beginning, the idea of using federal forces helped lead to the Constitution. When men like Alexander Hamilton called for a stronger federal government at the Annapolis Convention in 1786, they did not receive much support. However, shortly after they adjourned, Massachusetts experienced Shays' Rebellion. As always, my space is limited, so suffice to say a group led by Daniel Shays, upset with treatment from the Massachusetts government, marched on Boston. Governor Bowdoin called out the militia, but Shays' men were veterans and many were part of the militia. Bowdoin was forced to collect private funds to raise a private militia. Under the current government then, there was no federal support. Shays' Rebellion scared the other states who were having similar incidents and worried what might happen with rebellions in their own areas. Shays' Rebellion was one of the incidents that motivated leaders to meet at the Constitutional Convention to secure federal protection against domestic insurrection.

It did not take long for the new government and Washington to use the army. In 1794 when western Pennsylvania farmers protested a new tax on whiskey, Washington sent out the U.S. Army to squash the protesters and show the nation that there was a new sheriff in town, or at least a new government. He even led the army part of the way, the only time a president marched at the head of the U.S. Army.

Washington was not alone. In fact, three of the four presidents respected enough to make Mount Rushmore used the army domestically. Most people know Lincoln used the army to maintain martial law in the south, but he also used it to influence domestic affairs in officially union states, like Missouri and Kentucky. The army even arrested the Democratic candidate in the 1863 Kentucky governors' election. Teddy Roosevelt did not end up using the army, but in 1902 during the Anthracite Coal strike, when management refused to negotiate with the union, he threatened to use the army to take over the mines.

Throughout the rest of the 20th century, presidents continued to use the army in domestic affairs. When WWI vets marched on Washington to collect their promised bonus in 1932, President Hoover called out the army to disperse them. Then of course there are all the events during the Civil Rights Era. In 1957 when Governor Faubus of Arkansas blocked the Little Rock Nine from entering Central High, President Eisenhower called out the 101 Airborne Division. There were several riots in 1967 and 1968, especially after the death of Dr. King, and while National Guard units handled most of the violence, in some episodes the army was called out.

I am hoping the army is not needed in the protests and that the message is given without violence. You can also share your opinions of whether the President should or should not use the army on civilians. Make your arguments for both sides, but make them correctly.

The namesake of Kornegay Hall

"We've never done it that way before." The expression was well worn before the pandemic came along. Lately, creative juices have been milked dry for new ways to conduct commencements, weddings and funerals.

The late Roy Kornegay, a church leader who died recently in Amarillo, might well have observed, "So what?"... *****

Not much fazed this multi-talented theologian who often "found new ways."

When softball nudged against worship, he wore his uniform under his suit.

Ever humble, he kept "first things first," though, "quick-changing" only when necessary. Surely his humility was challenged when--at age 14--he pitched for the San Antonio Pony League team which won the first-ever World Series Championship (Washington, PA, 1952).... *****

He loved the Bible, music and opera, as did the former Janette Sewell--his wife of 61 years. They met as students at Howard Payne University.

She and their three daughters--Kari, Karla and Kathy--faced planning his graveside services--the first for Amarillo's Cox Funeral Home when rigid COVID-19 rules began.

Dr. Howard Batson, FBC pastor, presided. The 45-minute service included recorded remarks by the late Winfred Moore, on whose FBC staff Roy served for 15 years as Minister of Education, and Roy's stirring solo rendition of "The Holy City," a recording he made years ago.... *****

Graveside seating was limited to eight persons--including Janette, the children and sons-in-law--plus his dog, Lucky. Grandchildren--ages 23-34--recounted memories of their "Big Daddy" through car windows.

As a train passed nearby, loved ones smiled, recalling his "railroading" dad and granddad, and Roy's specific instructions for burial near the tracks.

Also remembered were Roy's "on-the-train" references during his final week battling Alzheimer's. His family prefers remembering his lucidity and joyful spirit evidenced during their final visit permitted two weeks before his passing March 6.... *****

Serving six churches after receiving two master's degrees from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Roy was the Amarillo Area Baptist Association Director of Missions for his final 17 years.

His life was a "book," not a column. Honors and memberships would fill several pages.... *****

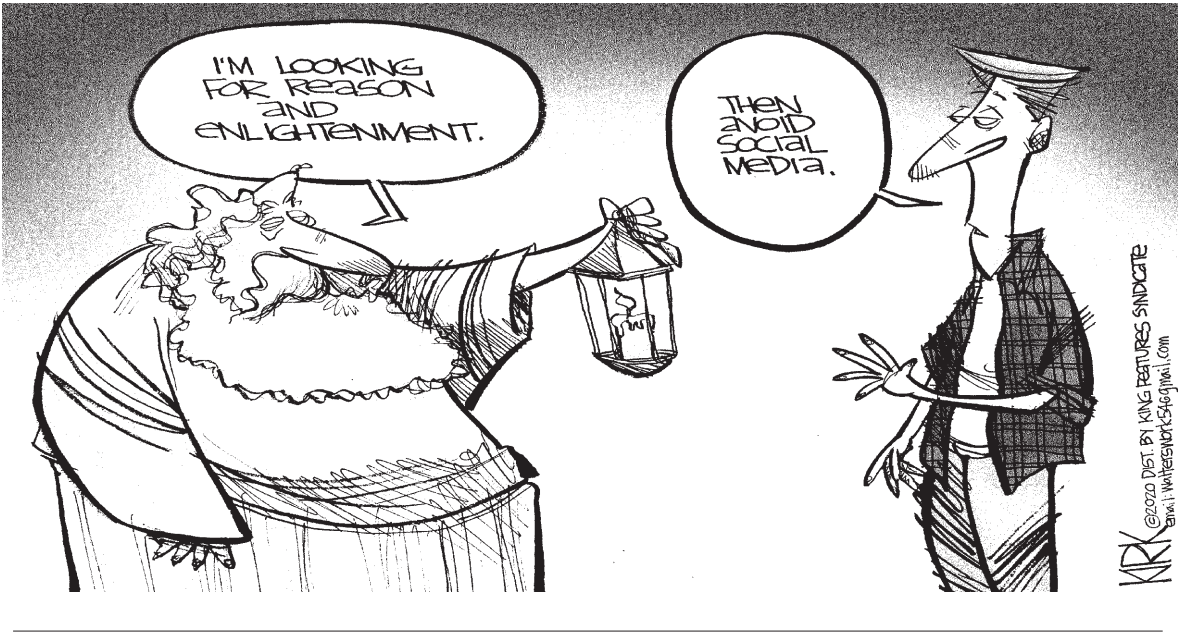

He valued nothing more highly than missionary opportunities. (Vacation Bible schools were a close second. At one attracting 1,000+ youngsters, he claimed to be "principal of the biggest elementary school in Amarillo.")

Collecting pins from 64 countries visited on every continent, he attached them to his big orange hat. Soon, he was known worldwide as the "man in the orange hat."

He and Janette made dozens of trips to the Holy Land, where he delighted in giving away "fake money" for more than 40 years....

Gorman Falls a challenging spot

Water cascades 70 feet down a steep bluff at Colorado Bend State Park south of San Saba. The area is known as Gorman Falls and has more than one stream. There is a narrow rush of water just a few feet away from the tall one. The water moves fast down a crevice between a tall bluff and a caliche hillside. It's a shady spot with an observation deck overlooking the Colorado River. The waterfalls never quit flowing and provide a pleasing sound to enjoy while you recover from your hike to the falls.

We had made arrangements to meet Debbie Hicks, the interpretive resource manager of the park. I'm glad we did because the drive to the park is long enough for you to think you'll never get there. But the highway has lots of curves and passes through some beautiful hills and valleys.

"We are definitely off the beaten path. The road got paved 6 years ago. Before that it was a caliche road so it was a long time getting here. You had to drive between 10 and 15 miles per hour. Once the road got paved that opened up the public even more. Our visitation last year was 78,000 and included visitors from Iran, Peru, Spain, Norway, Australia and New Zealand. Also, when you pass that first cattle guard in the park, this is open rangeland. No Fences. Cows are on the highway."

Debbie told us that the trail to get to the falls is challenging. That didn't scare us since my wife Susan and I are in good shape. I'm glad she warned us because it is a treacherous journey to the falls. We climbed into Debbie's pickup and drove to the falls' trailhead. Debbie told us we had a mile and a half hike ahead of us.

"There's very little shade out there," she told us. "And the last 45 yards of that trail is at a 45-degree angle. There's cable to hold onto but the rock is so slick from all the foot traffic it's like walking on glass."

 Once in Egypt, his family arranged for his "counterfeiting arrest," even though the fake bills clearly included an introduction to the four spiritual laws leading to salvation.

The security guys played along, and Roy thought he was "hoosegow bound."

He even extended his wrists, ready for handcuffs to be attached, as the Apostle Paul did. Soon, though, Roy learned it was a joke. (He led hundreds to the Lord over the years with his "fake money.").... *****

He will be long remembered by many, including Dr. Richard Jackson, on whose staff Roy served at North Phoenix Baptist Church. "I know absolutely no one who didn't love and respect Roy," he said. "His brilliant mind and commitment to ministry were off the chart."

Roy's extensive theological library was given to the association for use by area ministers and Sunday school leaders.

Don't expect to utilize the Dewey Decimal System. He didn't use it, developing his own.... *****

In 1995, a tornado heavily damaged the High Plains Retreat Center. He led ongoing restoration efforts.

Now, guests arrive at "Kornegay Hall," recently named in his memory. There'll be folks joking about their "appearances at Kornegay Hall."

Farewell, my friend from college days. Thanks for punching so many tickets on the glory train, and for always keeping "the main thing the main thing." *****

Perfect Father's Day together

What a nice weekend we had! It began Friday afternoon with my son bringing out a brisket to smoke for Father's day. This is a 24-hour operation, and what do you think Mother Nature had planned for Howardwick but a good soaking rain for Friday night and Saturday morning.

We were blessed with three inches of rain at our house; and after a good stirring of the coals in the smoker, the brisket was cooking again. For the first time since Christmas, all my children were here and things felt almost normal. The brisket was perfect and everyone went home with a full tummy.

We didn't wear masks, but if I go out, I will because, folks, this COVID-19 is not finished with us. Memorial Day weekend was a month ago and the hospitalized patients with COVID has increased by two percent in Texas. Please, please, take all precautions and don't bring it home.

Thank you, Lord, for the rain. Keep up the good work.

Birthday party shenanigans

Last Friday, I was invited to go to my friend Jaythan's birthday. We started by going swimming at the Country Club. Then a storm started brewing, so we left for his house to cook some burgers.

When we got there, the storm had slowed down, so we went on a hike to the creek where we found two cars that were really old. As we were walking back, it started raining hard, so we ate some burgers and had chips, queso, guacamole, and hot sauce.

After the rain stopped, we went on another hike into these trees on the other side of the creek, and, like the cub reporter

by benjamin estlack

before, we had to go home because it started to rain.

We watched the movie "Spider-Man: Far from Home" and then we made s'mores. We ended up watching two more movies before we decided to go to sleep.

I just would like to say Happy Birthday to Jaythan, and I would like to thank him for inviting me to his house for his party.

Wear Blue for AMC June 30

Arthrogryposis Multiplex Congenita Support, Inc., is encouraging everyone to “Wear Blue” for AMC Awareness Day on June 30.

Tristan Nash, the great grandson of Evelyn Mann of Clarendon, has AMC and will turn two years old in September.

AMC is the name for a person who has multiple joint contractures present at birth, according to the group’s website. A joint contracture is a joint that lacks normal range of motion or the joints are stiff and stuck. While there is no cure for the condition, there are treatments and most people with AMC are independent and successful.

To learn more about AMC, visit amcsupport.org.
