Officials warning of high wildfire danger

Donley County officials enacted a burn ban two weeks ago, and this week the Texas A&M Forest Service is also working to raise awareness of increasing wildfire potential in the Texas Panhandle.

"Our predictive weather services are showing for elevated wildfire conditions for this week of December due to heavy fuel loading, fuel dryness and high winds," said forest service spokesman Juan Rodriguez. "For the Panhandle we are getting ready for our winter fire season to start and want to try and educate the public as much as we can with the elevated fire potential."

The public is urged to use extreme caution with anything that might cause a spark or possibly ignite a fire at this time.

COVID cases still high in Donley Co.

Donley County had 85 total COVID-19 cases confirmed at the Clarendon Family Medical Center for the month of November, up from 37 in October.

The November total almost matched the September tally of 81, according to the clinic's information.

Active cases of COVID-19 have fallen off somewhat since last week with 25 reported Tuesday compared to 32 a week ago.

There have now been 629 positive cases of the virus since the pandemic began that have been treated at the local clinic. Those numbers do not reflect local residents who were diagnosed with elsewhere, such as facilities in Amarillo, Pampa, or Childress.

Eighteen residents of Donley County have died from COVID since the pandemic began last year, according to the Texas Department of State Health Services.

The Moderna vaccine is available at no charge at the local clinic for everyone ages 18 and over. The Pfizer vaccine is available in Amarillo for children ages five and over.

Franks 'Xplodes' for 2nd place

By Ted Harbin

LAS VEGAS – It's 920 miles from Cole Franks' place in Clarendon, Texas, to the bright lights of Las Vegas, but he's feeling very much at home during this year's National Finals Rodeo.

He's placed in four of five bareback riding rounds and was just a spur stroke away from winning Monday's fifth round, scoring 90 points on Calgary Stampede's Xplosive Skies to finish second. He pocketed $21,336 for his eight seconds of work.

"That horse is all there for sure," Franks said of Xplosive Skies the 2021 PRCA Bareback Horse of the Year. "He blows out of there really hard. He leaves like a train and hits you like a train. You don't have time to think. It's going 100 miles an hour, and it's all directed at you."

It was a very energetic ride, with each side throwing punch after punch. The young cowboy came out the winner in the end, pushing his NFR earnings to $59,095. He sits 10th in the world standings with $136,489.

"Looking back on it, I would call that one fun," he said. "It was a little bit different (than the 'Eliminator Pen' on Saturday night). It was a totally different kind of feeling than any other kind of horse. I was having fun knowing what I was doing (Monday) night. It was just bare down and let the past year's work take over."

The fifth round featured the most electric bucking horses in bareback riding. When he saw the draw after Sunday's fourth round, Franks knew he had a good shot to earn big points on Xplosive Skies.

"When I saw the draw, I kind of teared up a little bit because of the excitement of it all," Franks said.

"I didn't sleep a whole lot last night, just imagining riding that one. It was just pure excitement, ready to get it going."

He's the rookie of the year, but he looks like anything but a newcomer to ProRodeo's grand championship. Each ride has provided him with superior experience. Moreover, each money-making score provides more confidence.

"(Doing this well) pumps you up a little more," he said. "The last four rounds have been pumping me up for this, and this pumps me up for the next five rounds. It's just a big balloon getting inflated."

Just as he would if he were working at home, he has his entire family around to keep him motivated and focused. That's big for the young cowboy, but it's something he's experienced for a long time.

"My family is super supportive of everything I've done, from playing Little League baseball to this," Franks said. It's awesome having them here, knowing they're sitting in the stands. I can look up and wave at them when I'm putting my rigging on or doing something on the back of the chutes, so that's awesome."

Going into Monday he had placed in three of the first four rounds of the National Finals Rodeo and pocketed $37,759.

On Sunday night during the fourth round, the Clarendon man rode J-Bar-J's Blessed Assurance for 86 points to finish in a four-way tie for third place, worth just shy of $10,000.

Franks is actually one of three cowboys competing at ProRodeo's grand finale that were part of the Clarendon College rodeo team coached by Franks' father, Bret. Cole Franks and saddle bronc riders Wyatt Casper and Tegan Smith have all been in the money. Smith won the third round, and that set off a spark in the others.

Wyatt Casper gaining NFR momentum

By Ted Harbin

LAS VEGAS – With every nod of is head at this year's National Finals Rodeo, saddle bronc rider Wyatt Casper is gaining confidence.

He rode Korkow Rodeo's Onion Ring for 88.5 points during Monday's tough fifth round. That score would win most rodeos, but not the "TV Pen" of bucking horses at the NFR; Casper settled for sixth place and a paycheck worth $4,354.

"It was a crazy round of bronc riding tonight," said Casper of Miami, Texas. "It was a crowd-pleaser. Being the fourth man out at 88.5 and winning it, then getting bumped down to sixth, the last hole (for payouts) ... it hit the heart pretty good. Every time I've been on him, I have won first, The American and at the NFR last year."

Onion Ring is pretty special. He was named the 2021 PRCA Saddle Bronc of the Year, an honor selected by the cowboys that ride them. But two-time world champion Ryder Wright was 91 points to win it, and his brother, Stetson Wright, was 90.5 to finish second. It's no wonder Casper and Onion Ring were pushed to the bottom spot among all placers.

"He is what every bronc rider dreams of getting on," Casper said of the South Dakota horse. "He does his job every time. He was honest. He is a good-built horse. I just like him."

Through five nights of ProRodeo's grand championship, he has earned $35,691, the biggest portion of which came with Sunday's second-place finish. He's pushed his season earnings to $120,638 and sits eighth in the world standings.

He started slow, but he's heating up at just the right time.

"I feel like, most importantly, the thing about getting focused is having good rides," he said. "I feel like in these last two rides, everything has felt good, and we are just trying to build on that."

"We are going to keep hoping we draw good. I'm just going to try to keep riding good and let it all come together in the end. I don't want to mess with anything, and I want to keep moving forward."

This is Casper's second straight NFR but his first time competing in it at Las Vegas. Still, he and his family built a routine a year ago in Arlington, Texas, that he's continued this year. After all, no cowboy earns his way to the City of Lights without a supportive team behind him.

"My parents come all 10 nights; my wife and kids come all 10 nights," Casper said "Every night before the round, we go out there and take a picture. We are just building memories. It's kind of a tradition, I guess."

City delivers final verdict on old house

The City of Clarendon Building Standards Committee met last week and took action on a dilapidated home that has bothered city officials for seven years.

The old Neece home, now owned by Linda Lewis, located at Sixth and Bugbee as been the subject of several city agendas and complaints.

During the December 2 meeting of the committee, Jerry Lewis asked the city again for more time and promised to make repairs to the roof of the house within two months. The committee did not agree to that. After listening to the testimony of Code Enforcement Officer Gret Betts and Fire Marshal Jeremy Powell, the committee declared the house as a dangerous structure and ordered its removal within 30 days. If the owners do not demolish the building, the city will take bids to do so and bill the owners.

In other city business, the city council met November 11 for its regular meeting and a short agenda.

Aldermen approved casting the city's votes for the Donley Appraisal Board for Alderman Jacob Fangman and also approved a motion to reappoint Brandon Frausto, Taylor Shelton, and Jarod Bellar to the Clarendon Economic Development Corporation Board.

The council also approved a request from the Chamber of Commerce to close Third Street between Sully and Kearney for holiday events on November 27.

Aldermen also heard from City Administrator David Dockery with reports on the USDA project and the aquatic center.

Candidates start filing for county office

Citizens interested in running for county offices have until Monday, December 13, to file and secure a place on the Republican or Democrat primary ballots.

Donley County positions up for election next year include judge, treasurer, clerk, commissioners in Precincts 1 and 2, and justices of the peace in both precincts 1 and 2 and precincts 3 and 4.

As of Tuesday morning, the following incumbents had filed for re-election as Republicans: Judge John Howard, Treasurer Wanda Smith, Clerk Vicky Tunnell, Precinct 4 Commissioner Dan Sawyer, and Precinct 2 Commissioner Daniel Ford. Two new candidates have also filed for the Justice of the Peace Precinct 1 and 2 position currently held by Pam Mason. Those candidates are Ashley Savage and Kristen Taylor.

Citizens interested in a JP position or commissioner position must live in the precinct served by that office. Other offices are countywide.

The Finish Line: Retention and Persistence

By Walter Wendler

One of the negative impacts of the pandemic on universities is the significant increase in undergraduates who drop out or “stop out” whilst pursuing academic degrees. Two important progress indicators, retention and persistence, are frequently confused.

Retention tallies the number of students who return to the same institution the following year to continue their studies. For universities, this is important. Governing boards, including the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board, view retention data as one measure of institutional effectiveness. The simple principle: if a university carefully admits students who should complete a degree program successfully (enrollment) and provides the opportunities and assistance for them to do so (engagement), then retention rates should be high (success). A university with a 75 percent retention rate would be viewed as more effective in serving students and utilizing resources than a university with a 65 percent retention rate.

On the other hand, persistence tracks those students returning to any institution to continue study regardless of affiliation. Both retention and persistence are typically measured for first-time freshmen. In the fall of 2019, 2.6 million first-time U.S. freshmen entered college and 67 percent or 1.7 million continued in the fall of 2020. These are the lowest rates in nearly a decade. Data shows that after eight years of collegiate enrollment, one in three students have earned some course credit but no degree. They “stopped out.” Although the pandemic shines a bright light on these indicators, they are only the tip of the iceberg regarding the rapidly shifting nature of higher education. Students are evolving, families are evolving, and universities must respond accordingly.

The famous, or infamous, Colman Report – a Civil Rights Act of 1964, Office of Education, LBJ inspired study from Johns Hopkins University, found that one of the most powerful success indicators for primary and secondary education was the nature of family life. Some sociologists and social scientists dismiss the Colman Report, its methods and findings. However, I can find no scholarly or rigorous study willing to claim that family life and family ecology are irrelevant to academic achievement. Not one.

As an advisor to hundreds of students in the College of Architecture at Texas A&M University in the mid-1980s, I found that students with a sudden decline in academic performance were frequently experiencing some form of domestic plight. This is, to be sure, anecdotal evidence. In fact, my observations during this same period also revealed that many other students in challenging family circumstances, who should not have been flourishing, were, in fact, achieving success. In hindsight, I attribute that success unscientifically to “personal spit.” A combination of personal determination and drive is difficult to measure, but is essential for accomplishing diverse pursuits, including completing a college degree.

Overvaluing my anecdotal observations might lead some to incorrectly deduce that universities are helpless. We can’t manufacture “spit.” However, opportunities to assist students in working diligently towards degree completion do exist. Effective universities are first and always committed to student success, but no support scaffolding exceeds the power of determination by students to focus and finish, even in the face of overwhelming odds.

My advice? Students and families ought to seek universities that value the finish line.

First: Universities should openly share retention and persistence goals and data. These provide a historical perspective. Each type of university admits different students, with different challenges and different retention rates. By sharing this data, universities can shed more light on trends and provide more transparency to better match potential students’ unique learning preferences and needs.

Second: Palpable mileposts of progress will also assist students in retention and persistence. Discernable breaks in programs, such as the distinction between the pre-professional and professional program for the Bachelor of Science in Nursing, create a completion marker between the sophomore and junior year. Near-term targets provide attainable goals. Many professional programs, such as business, architecture and engineering, for example, naturally offer similar indicators.

Third: Effective online courses allow students to continue progressing towards the degree even in the face of life-demanding breaks in the study. Over one-in-three students depart universities with no degree for financial reasons – singularly the most cited reason for leaving. Online courses allow simultaneous work and study, and if thoughtfully configured, will benefit both.

Fourth: Most importantly, human dimensions of “membership” are paramount while nearly immeasurable. A single faculty member in a productive advising and mentoring relationship with a student can dramatically impact a student’s likelihood of completion. Human capital is developed through human relationships. High-quality faculty, such as at WT’s, are at the center of all positive university experiences. Caring for people breeds commitment.

I recommend students and families look to universities that value the chemistry of student and family individuality, with faculty committed to assisting students to complete degrees and attain aspirations: reaching the finish line.

Japanese picture brides come to Texas

One of the fundamental differences between the Japanese and the Chinese had to do with marriage and family relationships. When Chinese men went abroad to work, they typically left their wives and family at home, and they would return home for family visits at regular intervals. Sometimes the intervals would be measured in years. On the other hand, when Japanese men went abroad to work, they would send for their wives and families as soon as possible after getting established in their new environment. For the unmarried Japanese men, brides would be recruited. In many cases, the potential brides would be shown photographs of the unmarried men, and they would be matched with their spouses-to-be on that basis. In that manner the young women, called “picture brides,” would agree to marry men they had never seen.

In Texas in the early 1900s, a number of Japanese immigrants were carrying on successful rice farming operations at Webster in Harris County. On one of these farms, Rihei Onishi had eight unmarried Japanese laborers working for him, and they wanted brides. So in 1909, Onishi, armed with photographs of the eight unmarried workers, made a recruiting trip to Japan, and he succeeded in finding eight women who were willing to come to Texas as picture brides.

The trip, however, was not as easy as it might have been. Immigration officials at San Francisco were suspicious of one man accompanied by so many young women, and they refused to let the group enter the country. So Onishi and the brides sailed down to Mexico where they were able to come ashore. Making their way across the mainland of Mexico, they entered Texas at Eagle Pass. Then after another long overland journey across south Texas, they finally arrived at Webster. The picture brides were tired, but they and their new husbands were happy. George U. Howard Payne’s winning debate team

Speech and debate are big deals at Howard Payne University in Brownwood.

“We’re one of the few colleges or universities in Texas or other states that guarantee scholarships for our competitors,” says Dr. Julie Welker, who heads up the university’s Department of Communication. “Our students must go through an audition process to be on our debate team.”

Julie coaches the speech and debate teams and last year was recognized as the Texas Intercollegiate Forensics Association Educator Of The Year. She is a HPU grad and has taught there 22 years. She has been coaching the speech students since 2005. Her teams have been competing all over the nation and yearly in Oxford, England. She recruits just like coaches of athletic teams. As a result, her students have won outstanding awards.

“Last year was an interesting year because of Covid. All our tournaments were online, which changed the atmosphere of each tournament. Instead of being in a room and having that face-to-face interaction they were all virtual. I was pleasantly surprised at how well the interaction occurred between the students and judges, too. However the situation with the pandemic allowed us to compete at different schools in different parts of the United States, which made us a lot stronger because each region has its own style of debate. We got some really great practice tournaments in and last fall we won the Texas Intercollegiate Forensic Association’s debate sweepstakes and overall sweepstakes, which was something that had never even done at Howard Payne. This past spring we won debate sweepstakes overall and have done tremendously well on the national scale as well.”

The debate students have to be well versed in a variety of subjects.

“In the team debate the topic is announced and the participants are given just 15 minutes to prepare. Teams are assigned either affirmative or negative.”

Her students are involved in at least half a dozen tournaments every school year.

“For the past 11 years prior to Covid we have been going to Oxford and competing. We hope to be able to go back soon depending on whether England is open to foreign travelers. Those events are not just open to undergraduates. They are open to schools all over the world and some students have 8 years of eligibility. We are competing against students who are in PhD programs, law programs from Yale, Cambridge, Oxford, you know the biggest universities in the world. So for our students to be able to compete in that arena, it’s a great experience. After the debate competition we go to parliament and watch debates between the House of Lords and the House of Commons. That’s where the style of debate we use originated. It’s just fun to watch and sometimes there are famous people there and that’s even more exciting. We do some sight-seeing, too. It’s just a great cultural experience for the students. They’re gregarious and meet people well. They are good ambassadors.”

Fun By The Numbers
Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Advanced

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Work on medieval villiage is rewarding

Last week, my friend Mason and I got a project for our World History class, and we decided to be partners. Our project was to research and recreate the layout of a medieval villiage.

The original project required us to create a two-dimensional model of a villiage, but our teacher gave us an option to create a three-dimensional model for up to 50 bonus points. We started on Tuesday after school and worked until midnight and were able to finish the terrain and the castle. The next day after school we finished our research paper and began to work on the rest of the villiage. We were able to finish half of our houses that night and we decided to take a break.

by benjamin estlack

So, we took Saturday off but that night I decided to keep working on it. I stayed up until 4:00 in the morning working on it and then went to bed. The next day, Mason came back over, and we kept working on the project and we were able to finish it by about 10:00. The next day we took it to school, and we got our 50 extra bonus points.

It was an amazing project, and I hope we get to do more projects that are as fun as this one.

Remembering Pearl Harbor Day

The US Naval base at Pearl Harbor in Honolulu, Hawaii, (then a US Territory) was attacked by the Japanese the morning of Sunday December 7, 1941, at 7:48 a.m.

This was characterized as a sneak attack because no state of war existed between the Japanese and the United States prior to the attack. As a result of the attack, 2,403 Americans (2,335 military and 68 civilians) were killed and 1,178 were injured. Four battleships were destroyed, four others badly damaged, 188 aircraft were destroyed and 159 damaged. The Japanese lost 55 airmen in the attack. However, the Japanese goal of crippling the US Navy was not achieved. None of our aircraft carriers were in port or damaged.

The United States declared War on Japan the next day. Three days later, Japan's allies, Germany and Italy, declared war on the United States. Throughout America, the country was instantly united against the Axis Powers. Men and women walked off their jobs and joined the military. Although Pearl Harbor Day is not a national holiday, the American flag is flown at half-staff from sunrise until sunset on December 7.

The Texas Panhandle War Memorial is home to one of the largest pieces of steel plate and wooden decking (800 pounds) from the USS Arizona in the world. Acquired in 2018, it was transported from Hawaii by UPS and is now housed in its own building in our Memorial Park because of its large size. It represents the 1,177 Sailors and Marines who were killed on the USS Arizona that day during the attack. Only 355 crew members survived. Many of those Sailors and Marines who were killed are still entombed in the USS Arizona Memorial in Hawaii.

The public is invited visit the Museum Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Hedley Owls beat Kress, Memphis

The Hedley Owls picked up two big wins last week, defeating Kress and Memphis.

The boys travelled to Kress December 3 and brought home a 65-35 victory.

A strong first half put the Owls in a great position as they racked up 20 points in the first quarter and 19 in the second compared to Kress’ six and six. Kress tried to gain some momentum after the break and out-scored Hedley in the third quarter 10-13, but Hedley battled back with 16 points in the final period compared to Kress’ 10.

Josh Booth was the top scorer for the Owls with 27 points, and Hayden Alston added 20. Also scoring were Cody Bond 9, E. Booth 7, and B. Bond 2.

Earlier in the week, the Owls faced Memphis on the road and got a 72-17 win.

Hedley had a 46-2 lead at the half and continued to outscore Memphis in the final periods.

J. Booth again led the Owls on the scoreboard with 24 points. Also scoring were C. Bond 13, E. Booth 12, Alston 11, B. Bond 5, Booth 5, and Clark 2.

The JV Owls did not fare as well against Memphis, suffering a 24-41 loss. The teams were tied 11-11 at the half, but Memphis turned up the energy in the second half to win the game. Scoring for Hedley were N. Clark 13, M. Clark 4, K. Booth 3, Hinton 2, and Valles 2.

Lady Colts win big over Shamrock

Both Lady Colt teams were successful in getting the wins over the Lady Irish in their games at home a week ago. The seventh grade Lady Colts won 34-4 and the eighth grade won 65-8.

The Lady Colts were the stronger teams in both games and Shamrock could do little to stop them. The seventh grade Lady Colts held the Lady Irish scoreless for the first half of play. Leading scorer for the Lady Colts was Cambree Smith who finished with 16 points, and Jayla Woodard followed with eight. Kinslee Hatley put in seven, and Anna Balogh helped with three. Smith and Hatley each hit a three-pointer in the game.

Kenidee Hayes led the way for the eighth grade Lady Colts with 12 points, and Kashlyn Conkin and Presley Smith put in 11 points each. Conkin nailed three three-pointers. Whitney Williams hit three of four from the free throw line and finished with nine points as did Berkley Moore. Gracie Ellis put in six, Madi Benson had five, and Elliot Frausto added two.

The Lady Colts will travel to Panhandle on December 13.

Colts lose to Shamrock on the road

The Clarendon Colts A and B teams traveled to Shamrock last week and the B team came home with a 15-11 win. Braylon Rice played solid basketball and put in 11 points in the game and Kendon Hanes helped with four.

The Colts held a slight lead after one quarter but stepped up their scoring before the break. Defensively, they were strong, and the Irish struggled to get anything going. A good scoring third quarter allowed the Colts the cushion they needed to get the win after a scoreless final quarter of play.

Missed free throws hindered the Colts on offense as they hit only three of eleven.

The Colts A team played hard but fell short at 10-31. Shamrock was able to grab the early advantage scoring 12 points while holding the Colts at zero in the opening quarter of play. Hayden Moore finished with five points, Caleb Herbert hit one three-pointer, and Parker Haynes added two free throws.

The week before the Colts traveled to Wellington and both teams were defeated. The final for the A team was 19-47 and the final score for the B team was 6-50.

Shane Hagood put in five points for the A team and Kyler Bell added four, which included on three-pointer. Haynes, Moore, and Caleb Herbert each added two points.

The Colts play at home on December 13 against Panhandle.

Lady Bronco JV drops game to Silverton Varsity

The Lady Bronco junior varsity took on the Silverton varsity team last week at home and were defeated 33-12.

The Lady Broncos struggled on both ends of the court and fell behind early in the game. Offensively, the ladies could not find the hoop and played hard on defense, but could not get the stops they needed.

Tandie Cummins put in four and Kennadie had three. Avery Sawyer and Kimbrasia Ballard put in two points each while Gracie Clark added one to Clarendon's point total.

The Lady Broncos will travel to Quanah on December 14 and Canadian December 17.

Bronco JV narrowly lose to Borger

The Clarendon Bronco junior varsity put up a tough fight against Borger at home last week. Despite playing hard, the Broncos fell short at 46-50. They will travel to Texline on December 14 and Canadian on December 17.

Clarendon was on top in the first half, but the Bulldogs were right on their heels even as they turned the corner into the second half of play.

A huge third quarter with Borger hitting three three-pointers boosted their confidence to overtake the Broncos on the scoreboard. Kaleb Bolin played hard offensively and went to the bonus line six times in the third and made half of them to finish with nine points. The big push by the Bulldogs in the final minutes of play left the Broncos hustling to make something happen but were unable to answer back before time ran out.

Jaxan McAnear had a big game to lead the way with 14 points, and Mason Sims finished with 12. Colton Caudle had five, Grant Haynes had four, and Reagan Wade helped with two.

Bronco varsity opens season at home

By Sandy Anderberg

The Clarendon Bronco varsity team dove into basketball after a very successful football season. They took on 4A Borger at home last week and defeated them 76-73.

Junior Jmaury Davis was on fire and finished the game with 27 points and hit three out of five from the bonus line.

The Broncos held a slight lead after the first eight minutes, but the Bulldogs came back and had a successful offensive run outscoring the Broncos by nine points to take the lead into the locker room. Overall, the Broncos converted eight of thirteen free throws for 62 percent. Borger shot 73 percent from the charity stripe.

Trailing by three points at the beginning of the fourth quarter, the Broncos dug in offensively and started to hit some shots.

They were able to outscore Borger by six points in the final period to get the win.

Joining Davis in double figures was Cayden D'Costa with 19 points, which included hitting two big three-pointers and hitting 75 percent of his free shots, and Lamarus Peniger, who ended the game with 10 points. Lyric Smith put in six, Tyler Harper and Anthony Cenicerros each had four, Harrison Howard hit a three-pointer, and Levi Gates added two.

The Broncos participated in the Nazareth Tournament last week and went up against Sanford Fritch in the first round of play defeating them 65-49.

The Broncos were able to put together a solid offense to take the early lead and were strong on the defensive side keeping their opponent off the scoreboard. Peniger pumped in 25 points in the game going three for three from the bonus line and hitting three three-pointers. Davis joined Peniger in double figures with 18 points.

Smith added seven, D'Costa and Harper added six points each, and Cenicerros hit a three pointer.

They drew up against Nazareth in the second round and held on to get a 59-50 win.

Clarendon jumped out early with two solid quarters of play and took a 12-point lead into the break. However, the Swifts were able to come on strong in the second half to narrow the gap, they but could never overtake the Broncos. Davis was one of three that had a huge game as he put in 27 points along with D'Costa who finished with 18 and three three-pointers, and Harper who helped with 12, which included two three-pointers. Peniger and Cenicerros had five points each.

The Broncos battled with Shal-lowater in the third game and were edged out 53-61. The game was nip and tuck in the first three quarters of play when it was tied at 45 all. The Mustangs gained a little momentum in the final period of play to snatch the win. Free throws plagued the Broncos in the loss as they shot just under 50 percent. Peniger had another 25-point game and hit five three-pointers in the loss and Davis finished with 12. D'Costa put in eight, Smith and Cenicerros had three apiece, and Harrison Howard helped with two.

Overall, the Broncos hit 20 three-pointers in the three tournament games.

The Broncos will participate in the White Deer Tournament December 9-11 and travel to Texline on December 14 and Canadian on December 17.

Lady Broncos win Miami Tournament

By Sandy Anderberg

The Lady Broncos flexed their muscles in the Miami Tournament last week and brought home the Championship after winning four games. Overall, the ladies shot just over 60 percent from the free throw line and hit 26 three-pointers for the tournament.

The Lady Broncos easily got by Miami in the first game defeating them 51-30. The ladies played solid offense and clean defense as Miami struggled to get much going. The Lady Bronco defense only committed five fouls in the entire game, which help give them the edge they needed. Finley Cunningham led the way with five three-pointers for 15 points, and Aubrey Weatherton put eight points that included going four for four from the bonus line. Makenna Shadle and Hayden Elam put in seven points each and Jayde Gribble helped with six. Courtlyn Conkin and Madie Smith each added three points.

Highland Park was the ladies' next draw in the tournament, and they walked off the court with a 43-31 win. A huge second quarter aided the Lady Broncos in their win. Smith led the way with 14 and Shadle had nine. Elam put in eight and Cunningham had six. Conkin, Gribble, and Weatherton helped with two points apiece.

They faced off against McLean in the third round and breezed their way to a 59-25 win. Another huge offensive effort in the second half sealed the win for Clarendon. Cunningham had a big game with 26 and Smith added 16. Shadle had six, Tandie Cummins put in five, and Conkin, Gribble, and Kennadie Cummins put in two points each.

The win over the Lady Tigers put the Lady Broncos in the championship game against Miami and they were never contested in the game winning 60-29. An early offensive surge in the opening minutes of the game gave the Lady Broncos the momentum they needed to get the easy win. Smith finished with 15 and Shadle added 13. Cunningham had nine and Gribble helped with eight. Weatherton put in five, Elam had four and Conkin, T. Cummins, and Gracie Clark added two points each.

Earlier in the week, the Lady Broncos earned an overtime win over Valley at 55-51.

The Lady Broncos held a fairly good lead in the opening minutes of the game, but Valley was able to take advantage of mistakes and missed free throws and close the gap at the break. The Lady Patriots were able to turn a four-point deficit after the third quarter and tie the game at 50 all at the end of regulation. But the Lady Broncos stayed the course and played stronger in the final three-minute period to get the win.

Weatherton put in 17 points and Smith added 13. Cunningham also finished in double figures with 12. Shadle added six, Elam had four, and Gribble put in three.

The Lady Broncos will participate in the White Deer Tournament December 9.

Meet Ashley Savage

I was born and raised in Amarillo, Texas, and lived there all of my childhood. I attended Tascosa High School, where I was an officer in the FFA and showed and judged livestock.

Directly after 9/11, I enlisted in the US Army, where I served as a Nuclear, Biological, and Chemical Operations Specialist before being called back to the Panhandle for Recruiting Duty. I spent a total of 8 years working for the United States Army.

I now own The Savage Agency here in Clarendon. The Savage Agency is an Insurance Brokerage that specializes in finding the right fit for insurance in rural communities. It is my passion to educate and serve my community. My motto has always been “Even if you don’t leave my office with me as your agent, you will leave with a better understanding of your coverages.” Please join me at our Ribbon Cutting on Thursday, December 9, at 6:30. Our office is located next door to The Mulkey at 106 S. Kearney.

Since moving to Donley County early this year, I have become involved in some of the most amazing organizations, with even more amazing people. Service to country and community are extremely important to me, so becoming a member of the Clarendon Lions Club was a no-brainer. I have found so much joy serving this community by organizing things like the youth art contests and Christmas tree drive.

I have now officially filed for candidacy in the 2022 election for Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1&2. As your elected Justice of the Peace, I will commit to being fair and firm. Although, I am very active in the community and make it a point to be a part of it as much as possible, I have no former bias and would be able to make decisions based on facts presented to me. Also, having a military background, I will be able to execute all aspects of the office, with integrity and professionalism.

I am asking for your vote for Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1 & 2.

SUBJECT TO THE REPUBLICAN PRIMARY, MARCH 1, 2022. PAID FOR BY ASHLEY SAVAGE, PO BOX 217, CLARENDON, TX 79226.
