Clinic reports 38 active COVID cases

COVID-19 cases are coming down in Donley County, according to the Clarendon Family Medical Center.

The clinic has tested 14 positive cases of the virus in the last week and reported 15 active cases under its care Monday.

January saw a total of 199 positive cases. With this week's total's, the clinic has confirmed a total of 902 cases of the virus since the pandemic began.

Numbers reported by the clinic do not include residents who test positive outside of Donley County or who test positive at home.

Countywide burn ban still in effect

The Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department is reminding everyone that there is still a Burn Ban in effect for Donley County.

CVFD asks that everyone use common sense when performing any action could result in a wildfire. Recent snows have done little if anything to lessen the wildfire danger.

While the Donley County Burn Ban attempts to prevent wildfires by banning burning on the worse days, a day the burn ban is not in place is not an indication that conditions are safe for an individual to conduct a burn.

If you do plan on welding or performing any burning, make sure you have a method of fire suppression at hand and clear the work area of fuels such as grass. Check the weather forecast and pay close attention the wind.

If in doubt, contact any of your local fire officials for advice. Do your part to keep your local fire departments in the station.

District court hears pleas in three Donley County cases

The 100th Judicial District Court heard 33 pleas, among which were three cases from Donley County, when it met in Wellington on January 31 for virtual and in-person hearings.

District Attorney Luke Inman, along with Assistant District Attorney Harley Caudle, prosecuted the cases for the State of Texas, with the Honorable Judge Stuart Messer presiding.

Jason Roy Cipolla, 40, from Childress, Texas, was sentenced to two, 14-year-sentences in prison for two separate second degree felony offenses of failure to comply with sex offender registration. Cipolla's sentences will run consecutively, therefore he will have to complete his first 14-year-sentence before the next sentence begins.

Cipolla was originally arrested in Donley County on September 30, 2021 for possession of a controlled substance. Following his arrest, an investigation was conducted by Trevord Dillard with the Texas DPS Criminal Investigations Division.

After the investigation was completed, Cipolla was indicted on two separate offenses. Cipolla pleaded guilty to both offenses and was placed on probation on July 22, 2021. The State filed a motion on December 30, 2021, asking the Court to revoke Cipolla's probation based upon his violation of certain conditions of his probation.

At the hearing Cipolla admitted to violating probation, and Messer sentenced him to two, consecutive 14-year-sentences in prison.

"I hope all the other sex offenders out there are paying attention," said Caudle. "Move on, as you are not welcome here."

Long Hoang Ngo, 34, from Cypress, Texas was placed on two years' probation for the Class A Misdemeanor offense of unlawful use of a criminal instrument. Ngo was arrested in Donley County on February 27, 2021.

Ngo was also ordered to pay a $4,000 fine to Donley County, $458 in court costs, $180 restitution, and complete 100 hours of community service. If his probation is revoked, Ngo faces up to 180 days in County Jail.

Kevin Benjamin Spinney, 22, from Arlington, Texas, was placed on two years' probation for the Class A Misdemeanor offense of unlawful use of a criminal instrument. Spinney was arrested in Donley County on March 15, 2021.

Spinney was also ordered to pay a $4,000 fine to Donley County, $458 in court costs, $180 restitution, and complete 100 hours of community service. If his probation is revoked, Spinney faces up to 180 days in County Jail.

4-H members win Ft. Worth

Donley County 4-H members Brenna Ellis and Laney Gates were part of the horse judging team that placed first at the Ft. Worth Livestock Show and Rodeo Horse Judging Contest.

They each received a $1,000 scholarship and have qualified to compete at the AQHYA World Show in Oklahoma City this August as well as the AQHA All American Quarter Horse Congress in Columbus, Ohio, this October.

Donley County 4-H member Brock Hatley also showed the 8th place Polled Hereford Steer in Ft. Worth Stock last week.

Primary voting starts Monday Candidate forum set Feb. 10

Early voting begins Monday, February 14, in Texas Republican and Democratic Primaries, and the Donley County Republican Party will host a Meet & Greet with the GOP candidates on this Thursday, February 10, from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. at the Bairfield Activity Center.

Voters of both parties can cast early ballots at the Donley County Courthouse Annex. County Clerk Vicky Tunnell reminds everyone that voter's registration cards have not gone out but says voters do need to bring their driver's license or other form of identification with them to vote.

The county positions up this year are all being sought by Republicans, and only two races are contested.

Three Republicans are running to be Justice of the Peace of Precincts 1 & 2 - Sarah Hatley, Connie Lane, and Kristen Taylor. Ashley Savage is also on the ballot but said last week that she had withdrawn as a candidate.

The JP office is currently vacant after Judge Pam Mason resigned her office in December.

The other local competitive race on this year's Republican ballot will be Precinct 4 Commissioner Dan Sawyer, who is being challenged by Brad Dalton.

Other local positions are uncontested, and those candidates are Judge John Howard, Treasurer Wanda Smith, Clerk Vicky Tunnell, Precinct 2 Commissioner Daniel Ford, and Precinct 3 & 4 Justice of the Peace Pat White.

Former Donley County deputy Randy Bond is also running for Constable of Precincts 3&4, a position that is currently vacant.

Early voting will continue through February 25. Election Day will be March 1.

Local board sign-ups continue

With less than two weeks remaining in the sign-up period, only one out of seven local governments has enough candidates to hold an election this year, and some positions have no candidates at all as of Tuesday morning.

The City of Clarendon has four people running for three seats on the city council. Incumbent Aldermen John Lockhart, Larry Jeffers, and Eulaine McIntosh will be joined on the ballot by former alderman Tommy Hill.

A full slate of candidates has filed for re-election in Howardwick without opposition thus far. Incumbent Aldermen Mary Grady, Terry Barnes, and Del Essary are all seeking new terms.

All incumbents on Donley County Hospital Board have filed for re-election, including Jan Farris - Place 4, Nikki Adams - Place 5, Mark C. White - Place 6, and Lori Howard - Place 7.

Hedley CISD also has candidates for both of its open board seats with incumbents Bruce Howard and Michael Metcalf both signed up.

Hedley Mayor Carrie Butler has filed for re-election with no opposition, and Sandy Wilkinson has filed to run for one of the two seats available on the city council. Aldermen Tom Carson and Danny Russell have not yet filed for re-election.

Historical sizes of egos of presidents

This week I intended to write about the jobs report put out by the White House and give a historical comparison. Biden claimed that he has the largest growth in jobs throughout history, and I thought surely that is not right, especially with the numbers FDR put out. However, when I checked the White House webpage, I decided to change my topic after reading the list of accomplishments released last week.

What I found interesting about the list was the Trumpian language used.

Of the 15 achievements, 13 of them are listed as the best of all time. Among the many points were the greatest or biggest. Two were the lowest, two were the most, one was more than any other, two were the first, two were the largest and, finally, one was the strongest. How is it that no one noticed these claims? Possibly we became used to hearing Trump proclaim he was the greatest president of all time or maybe it's just that in order to run for president you have to have an ego the size of the White House. What is also interesting is that Trump was accused of being an egomaniac for making similar claims. Yet no matter how bad Trump was or possibly Biden, historically speaking, neither tops the list of narcissists.

In 2013 the Pew Research Center ranked all the presidents in order of their narcissism. Pew did not list which presidents were narcissists and which were not. All presidents have egos. The report concluded that presidents are more narcissistic than average Americans. According to the survey, the most narcissistic presidents were, first, Lyndon B. Johnson; second, Teddy Roosevelt; third, Andrew Jackson; fourth, Franklin D. Roosevelt; and fifth, John F. Kennedy. The list includes some of the most famous presidents of all time and some of the most loved and respected. The oddball on the list is the top, LBJ; he is not as well known or respected as the others. Yet if you know anything about Johnson, you should not be surprised.

I wish I had room to discuss each of these fascinating presidents, but my editors are already upset with the length of some of my columns. I will have to keep this short. Between JFK's public and personal personas, he may be the most bi-polar of all the presidents. He was beloved by the masses, while hiding his womanizing and drug abuse. FDR is another of the most beloved yet was the first president to believe he was so important that he ran for four terms. Andrew Jackson believed he was so important that he vetoed more bills than all his predecessors combined. Teddy has one of the best quotes to show his arrogance. When speaking about the people in Cuba, he once said, "I am doing my best to persuade the Cubans that if only they will be good, they will be happy; I am seeking the very minimum of interference necessary to make them good." Yet all these presidents are nothing when compared to Johnson.

Today Johnson is somewhat overlooked. He was sandwiched between the most beloved and infamous presidents of all time, Kennedy and Nixon, both extreme narcissists. In many ways, Johnson is the first modern Democrat, but he has been shunned by the party because of his policies on the Vietnam War. Johnson and Trump have a lot in common when it comes to ego and crudeness. In fact, Johnson beats Trump when it comes to crudeness. Johnson was better in the public eye, or possibly fortunate, to not have Twitter. This is the president who in private circles became upset when people talked about Kennedy's sexual conquests. He insisted he had more sexual partners by accident than his predecessor had on purpose. Trump may have discussed his big hands, but Johnson was known to strip down to his birthday suit and show what he was made of. He once did an interview while skinny dipping in the White House pool. As for his ego, this was the president who was more concerned about being the first president to lose a war than he was about the war tearing the nation apart over Vietnam. He wanted to be a great president and he wanted everyone to know it.

The Pew Research Center rankings came out before either Trump or Biden, so they did not make the list. It is hard to think that Trump would not rank high. If he is, he would be in good company. He did declare himself "greatest of all presidents" on twitter. Later he did show some humility when he said "except for Lincoln." As for Biden, he is still only in his first year. When asked if he wanted to debate Trump, Biden said, "No... If we were in high school, I'd take him behind the gym and beat the hell out of him." However, historically speaking, it will be hard to ever beat Johnson. I saved my favorite of his quotes for last. When he was asked if he was born in a cabin, his response was, "You have me confused with Abe Lincoln. I was born in a manger."

Don't let your babies become cowboys

My aged Uncle Mort is bristling with disgust about the Dallas Cowboys. He cut his frustrations loose after the National Football League teams were trimmed to four, thus excluding Dallas.

"If I have ulcers, they're bleeding badly, but Maude thinks that whether or not I have ulcers, I'm doubtless a carrier," he jokes.

Anyways, as he watched the play-off games, he kept hearing the announcers referring to the quarterbacks "threading the eye of a needle" with their passes....

Each time the goldy-throats gushed about needle-threading, my 108-year-old kin said he thought of Dallas' Dak Prescott, who some think should be included among the great NFL quarterbacks. Mort thinks Dak probably falls into the "barely fair" category, remembering precious few passes this season worthy of needle-threading comparisons.

He stops short of joining leather lungs who claim that Dak "couldn't hit a bull's behind with a bass fiddle" or "a softball with an ironing board." Mort is amused by a like-minded neighbor who "doesn't believe Dak could throw a cantaloupe through a quilting frame."

Mort thinks the Cowboys' annual chant should be, "Wait'll next century," since this may be one of those centuries when everything goes wrong....

Do you grow weary of hearing "canned voices" thanking us for calling, expressing delight that we've called, and assuring us that calls will be answered in the order received? They usually reference their agents who are "busy assisting other customers." Finally, we are asked to "listen carefully, since menu options may have changed."

Apple—a company providing answers to almost every conceivable question on its website—has added a feature for us folks who'd rather speak to live persons.

Oh, it's likely that we'll first hear recorded music, often the kind played in elevators. Apple, however, provides options. Callers may choose from classical, jazz, or popular music. Most importantly, there's a fourth option: silence. It gets my vote. Mort says he uses the waiting time to consider state and national office seekers whose names he doesn't recognize. He thinks the time has come to give them a try. Mort says that Americans who screamed during the Revolutionary War that "taxation without representation is tyranny" would be mortified now to see what it's like with representation....

In the early days of Radio Shack, folks plumb worn out from "telephone holding" were offered a device I haven't thought about in decades. It was battery-powered, and when callers were put "on hold," they placed their phones on the amplifying device. When there was a live response, it could be heard all over the room. Phones were lifted, and conversations began.

I used the cigar-box-sized device regularly. Sometimes I'd carry on with my work for a half-hour or more before agents were finished assisting other customers.

If there is such a device available now, I'd like to know about it. Of course, it would need to be designed differently to accommodate smartphones....

While on technology, I want to provide a "thumbs up" for our new mattress. I no longer need to guess about the quality of my night's sleep.

I guess it should be called a "smart mattress," because when I wish to know how well I slumber, I simply press a button on my "smartphone." An app records details of my sleep quality. Plus, it offers numbered preciseness beyond my wildest dreams.

Nightmares might ensue, though, if the app goes haywire or the Internet goes off. I doubt if the mattress would be so smart then, leaving me "up the creek without a paddle."....

Speaking of sleep, I asked Brenda if—in her wildest dreams—she ever expected to have a husband like me.

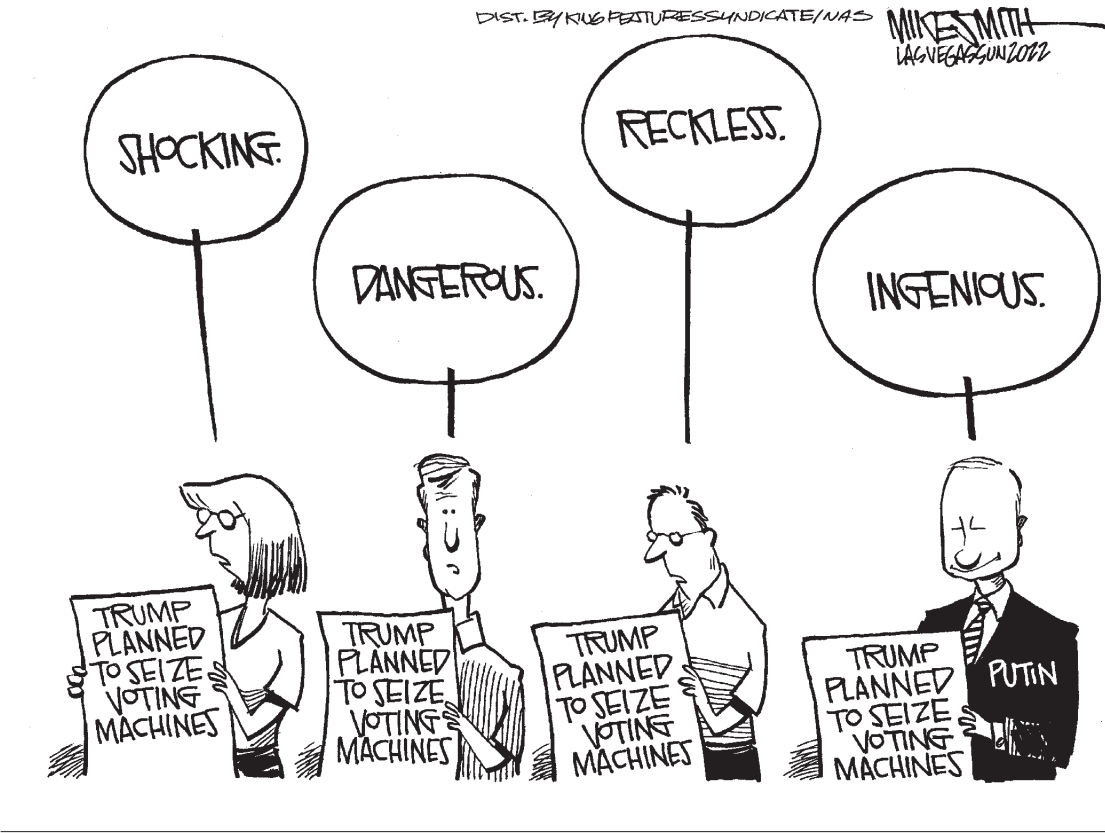

Unhesitating, she answered, "You weren't in my wildest dreams."

Then there's my favorite uncle's nightly reference to Morpheus, a Greek god. He was the god of sleep and dreams. G'night, Uncle Mort. Sleep well....

Student debt and the US economy

Sixth in a series on student debt.
By Dr. Walter Wendler

The decision to borrow in pursuit of a college education is personal, but 45 million borrowers eventually impact the US economy and therefore every American. The after-effects are persistent and pervasive, and result in economy-busting fairytales.

To poison the fountain of nourishment for a republican form of government, make higher education worth less. Encourage the view that education's cost is a pile of C-notes from a game of Monopoly, and everybody gets free parking to boot. Or, that everyone needs—and, more confounding, is entitled to—college attendance on the taxpayer's dime. Make common the idea that people still should be paying for college as retirees, as a multitude of Americans do. Financial literacy? A figment of somebody else's imagination.

The dot-com and housing bubbles bedeviled our national economy for a decade. But they are a walk in the park compared to the looming threat of a third bubble – student debt. This debt debacle is the most debilitating in this trilogy of tribulations resulting in limp economic security. Most vexing is the accompanying loss of faith, confidence and trust in our republic. And trust, as Eamonn Butler has written, is the foundation on which a free society stands.

Some call for debt forgiveness. Hopefuls in the last presidential election proposed erasing as much as $50,000 in debt. Bernie Sanders championed a scheme to forgive all educational debt. But an omnipresent malignancy in our society is taking the easy way out, working to relieve too many of owning too little personal responsibility. Forgiving debt with the stroke of a bureaucratic pen is a growingly seductive election-cycle elixir, especially for twenty-, thirty-, forty-, fifty- or even sixty-some-things. But the cost is economic vitality while free moral agency is pilfered or mortgaged, pick your poison.

Absolution of personal obligation in a matrix of responsibilities causes purposeful citizenship to leach from individual to state, and states can't be citizens. There is flagrant finger pointing. In Salon, Jeffery Williams puts the blame on "the 1%." Some are an easy target to be sure. Alan Lord, who made his fortune as Sallie Mae chieftain in the student-loan industry, is low-hanging fruit for those wanting a scapegoat to diminish individual economic obligation. However, Williams is wrong. A college education carefully configured is a sound investment. According to a detailed study of 4,500 institutions by the Georgetown University Center on Education and the Workforce, the average career return on investment for a college education crests at $2.7 million. In 2019, those with a high school diploma averaged, after tax income, $40,500 annually, and, as educational levels stair-stepped up to a professional/doctoral degree, earnings increased to $120,500, according to the College Board. Absent debt, these are compelling numbers.

Rising student debt reduces consumer spending for 90% for 45 million indebted Americans, backs bowed, paying off education loans according to the FDIC. Over 10% are in default and may never be able to make good on their borrowing. This indebtedness impacts home ownership, after family the primary piece of the American dream. For younger borrowers with student loans, the Federal Reserve estimates that a 20% drop in home ownership over the past decade is attributable to student debt. Beyond the borrower, the carpenter down the street, code officials, retailers and mortgage lenders all gasp for air as the economy writ large asphyxiates.

The impact of overloaded student borrowing on the national economy is inarguable. These confounding circumstances dim cultural and economic hope: Many borrowers don't expect to retire student loans. Brookings estimates that by 2023, 40% of borrowers will be in default. All innocents in pursuit of the American dream? Important aspects of a fruitful life—home ownership, marriage, raising children, preparing for retirement—are put at risk for those whose backpacks bulge with promissory notes, often for a product of questionable utility. This is an economic foundation constructed on sand, not solid rock.

Free people decide to borrow, legitimacy of motivation aside. These personal decisions empower or impede national economic growth. Banking, industry and government at every level, including universities that dilute the gravity and sense of obligation in this labyrinth of decision-making, serve no one well. Abrogated responsibility mutates individuals into indentured servants. Free moral agency alone empowers a solvent democracy, the primary purpose of all education.

Anything done to diminish personal responsibility for education, by default or design, tears at the fabric of a free society and our constitutional form of government. Universities are in the position of providing hope, opportunity and aspiration. Costs absent responsibilities are an erroneous economic equation that does not compute leading to a measurable loss of value, for one and for all.

Coffee Memorial needs blood donors

Coffee Memorial Blood Center has an immediate need for blood donors to help rebuild the blood supply.

Blood drive cancellations caused by the recent winter storm have resulted in the loss of over 70 percent of anticipated collections, and more are expected to come. The demand for blood products is also above average, adding additional strain to the blood supply.

As the weather clears and road conditions improve, donors of all blood types, age 16 and older*, are urged to give at the donor center or nearest mobile blood drive as soon as possible. A secure blood supply is essential to ensure disaster preparedness and serve patients who depend on transfusions to survive.

“The need for blood is constant—someone needs a life-saving transfusion every two seconds,” said John Armitage, M.D., president and CEO of Coffee Memorial Blood Center. We are calling on all healthy Texans to take about an hour of their time to give blood for our friends and neighbors in need. Together we can rebuild the blood supply.”

To schedule an appointment to give blood, call 806-331-8833 or visit yourbloodinstitute.org to see a list of donor centers and mobile blood drives.

Coffee Memorial Blood Center relies solely on volunteer blood donors to meet the needs of patients at major hospitals across the High Plains region. One donation saves up to three lives. More than 1,200 blood donors are required each day to ensure a healthy supply of life-saving blood is available on shelves when needed.

Modeling viruses for class

Recently in school, we have been doing a lot of projects, and I finally got a project that I could use my 3D printer on.

I got a 3D printer for my birthday back in October, and I've been using it to make some cool fidget toys and parts for a model rocket.

In biology last week, we got an assignment was to build a 3D model of a virus. We drew from a bowl which virus we had to model. I got RSV, which I was something I had when I was a baby. I got to work designing the virus off a few different pictures I found online. I finally was able to print it, and it ended up taking 22 hours to finish.

After it was done, I sanded it down and gave it a base layer of light blue spray-paint. Then once that had dried, I painted the outside with some different shades of blue and the painted the cut-away interior to look like the inside of the virus. I set the main body aside to dry and began to make the proteins on the outside of the virus.

I was going to print them, but my 3D printer didn't like having to print so many small pieces, so I decided to make them out of beads and pushpins. In the end it looked very good, and I'm very proud of the way it turned out, and I can't wait for my next project.

Jackson introduces legislation regarding border crisis

Representative Ronny Jackson (R-Amarillo) has introduced the Border Czar Accountability Act of 2022, which his office says will force "Border Czar" Vice President Kamala Harris to do her job.

The Border Czar Accountability Act will require any Cabinet member appointed by the President to lead efforts related to immigration or securing the US-Mexico Border to visit the border every 60 days. It also requires the Cabinet Member(s) to submit a report to the President and Congress no later than 15 days after each visit, explaining their findings and outlining solutions for improving the security and situation at the southern border. If the report is not submitted, then no federal funds will be given or expended to immigration efforts led by that Cabinet Member.

Jackson is a member of the Border Security Caucus.

"Biden's push for open border policies and amnesty for all illegal immigrants has created and continues to bolster the worst border crisis in history," Jackson told The Daily Caller.

House Border Security Caucus Co-Chairman Brian Babin (TX-36)

said: "If Vice President Harris is to remain President Biden's 'Border Czar,' it's past time she start acting like it. Rep. Jackson's bill will hold Harris accountable and force her to visit the southern border to see firsthand the catastrophe she has helped create."

Original cosponsors include Representatives Brian Babin (TX-36), Mike Carey (OH-15), Scott DesJarlais (TN-04), Randy K. Weber (TX-14), John Curtis (UT-03), Rodney Davis (IL-13), Steven Palazzo (MS-04), and Byron Donalds (FL-19).

Broncos grab two more District wins

By Sandy Anderberg

The Broncos traveled to Wellington last week and earned a big win over the Skyrockets at 41-33 and a 57-29 win over Shamrock. The wins gave the Broncos a big boost in the District race with limited regular season games remaining.

The Broncos had a slow start, and Wellington was able to hold a slight lead through the fourth quarter of play. The Broncos stepped up their game in the final period of play and were able to grab the lead and get the win.

Cayden D’Costa led the way with 14 points going five for six from the free throw line and hit one big three-pointers. Jmaury Davis helped with 11 points of his own and nailed a shot from the arc. Jordan Herndon finished with seven that included a three-pointer, and Lamarus Penigar added five and Lyric Smith helped with four.

On Friday, the Broncos traveled to Shamrock and earned the 28-point win. Clarendon was able to jump out to the early lead at 13-0 and maintained that lead through the break.

Herndon hit three three-pointers in the first quarter to lead the Broncos, and Davis went five for five from the bonus line in the second quarter to continue the Broncos’ dominance. With the lead they built, they were able to breeze through the second half to get the win. Five players accounted for nine big shots from the arc, and they shot 83 percent from the free throw line.

D’Costa had 19, Davis put in 18, and Herndon finished with 12. Smith put in five, and Anthony Cenicerros added three.

The Broncos will finish their regular season schedule with Panhandle at home on February 11 and travel to Wheeler on February 15.

Lady Broncos finish third in District

By Sandy Anderberg

The Lady Broncos earned a huge win over Shamrock last week as their regular season winds down.

The 47-31 win over the Lady Irish put Clarendon in a playoff game against Stratford scheduled for Monday, February 14, at 6:30 at Amarillo High.

The Lady Broncos jumped in and settled into a good offensive plan early in the game and gained a big lead going into the second half of play. Makenna Shadle and Madie Smith teamed up to pour in 33 points between them to lead the ladies on the scoreboard. Courtlyn Conkin helped with five and made three of three bonus points, and Hayden Elam put in five as well. Graci Smith finished with three, and Jayde Gribble had one.

Earlier in the week, the ladies took on Wellington and played a strong game despite losing 32-44. The Lady Skyrockets opened the game offensively strong and took a commanding lead. However, the Lady Broncos came back and were able to narrow the scoring gap, but time got away and they took the loss.

Finley Cunningham had the hot hand and dropped five three-pointers of which three came in the third quarter to finish with 16 points. Shadle was right behind her and finished in double figures with 10. Gribble, Smith, and Elam all added two to the score.

Bronco JV takes out Shamrock, falls to Wellington

The Bronco junior varsity took care of business in Shamrock last week as they defeated the Irish, 56-30.

The Broncos were able to hold the early advantage but fell off somewhat in the second period and allowed the Irish to get back into the game at the break.

The Broncos were able to bounce back in the second half and finish strong. Mason Sims finished with 12, and Kaleb Bolin and Jaxan McAnear helped with nine. Anthony Brown and Reagan Wade put in eight, Riley Wade and Darius McDaniel had four each, and Bryce Williams added two.

The Broncos traveled to Wellington earlier in the week and played hard narrowly losing at 40-48. The Broncos’ slow start in the first half of play put them down seven points at the break, but they worked their way back to take the lead after three quarters before losing the game in the last quarter.

McAnear had 12, and Brown put in 10. McAnear made five of six free throws and one three-pointer. Sims had nine, Grant Haynes and Colten Caudle put in three each, and McDaniel put in one.

The Broncos will finish their season the road home against Wheeler on February 15.

Lady Bronco JV earns big wins

The Lady Bronco junior varsity defeated two good teams last week to end their regular season. They defeated Wellington, 25-17, and Shamrock, 58-16.

The ladies had a great week of solid basketball and were focused in their wins. They stopped Wellington in the first quarter and did not allow them to score, leading by seven at the break. Defensively, the ladies were able to hold the Skyrockets out of shooting range and were strong on the offensive end. Kennadie Cummins put in eight points and Kimbrasia Ballard and Gracie Clark finished with six each. Elyza Rodriguez put in four, and Bayleigh Bruce added one.

The win gave the ladies the confidence they needed to go into Shamrock and finish the Lady Irish early in the game. Their lead was too much for their opponent to come back and they walked off the floor with an easy win. Ballard finished with 16 and Tandie Cummins had 11. Rodriguez put in nine, Maloree Wann had seven, Bruce, K. Cummins, and Clark had four each and Avery Sawyer helped with three.

The Clarendon Lions Club held its regular Tuesday noon meeting February 8, 2022, with Boss Lion Landon Lambert in charge.

We had 13 members and one guest – Michael Newhouse, guest of Lion Anndria Newhouse.

Lion Anndria Newhouse reported on the Pony Parents’ plans for a Community Easter Egg Hunt, and Lion Ashlee Estlack brought up holding the Chance Mark Jones Memorial 5K Roar & Run on the same day – Saturday, April 9. Plans are being made for this year’s Polar Bear Plunge on a separate date.

FVDG Roger Estlack reported on that an anonymous donor has committed to giving $100,000 to the Texas Lions Camp for a new cabin named for Lion Jack King. District 2-T1 is committed to donating an additional $50,000 over the next three years to finish the cabin campaign.

It was also reported that District 2-T1 is currently the number two district in the United States for growth in membership.

...dark chocolate is good for you.

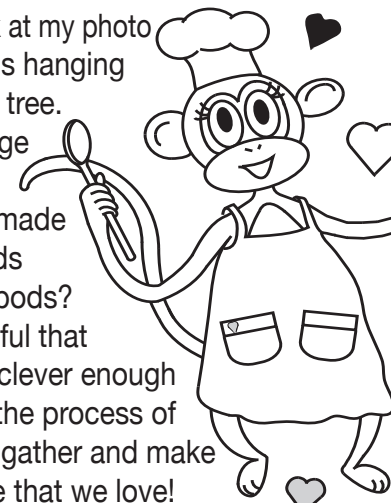

Kids: color stuff in!

I love to look at my photo of cacao pods hanging on the cacao tree.

Isn't it strange to think that chocolate is made from the seeds inside these pods?

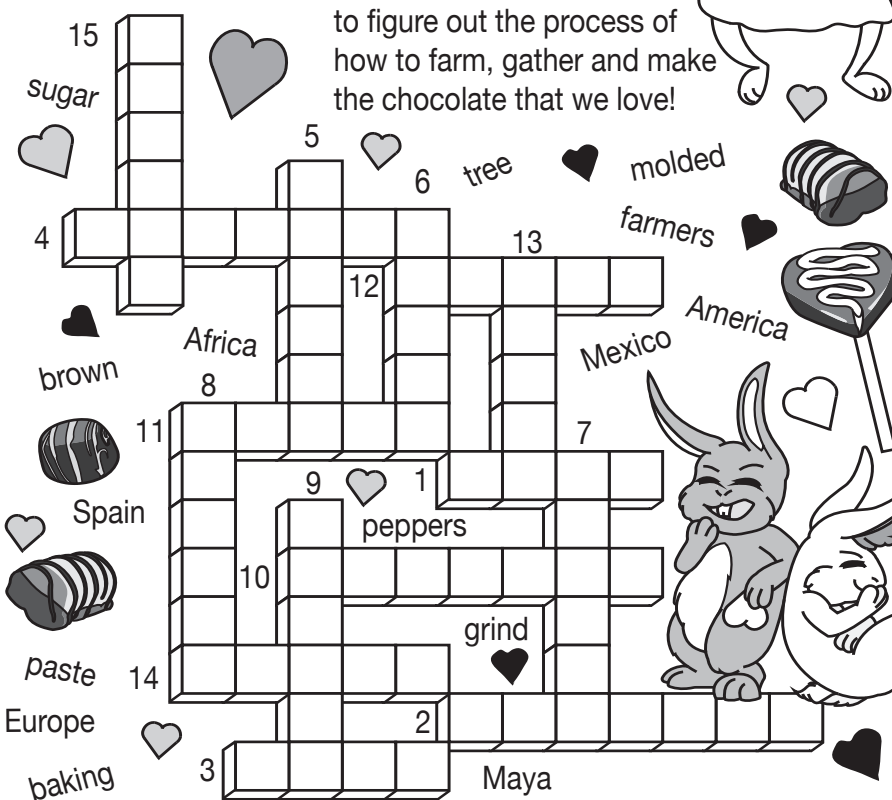

I'm so grateful that people were clever enough to figure out the process of how to farm, gather and make the chocolate that we love!

Happy Valentine's Day!

Read the clues and fill in the puzzle to learn how chocolate is made:

- Chocolate is made from the bean of the cacao _____.
- The trees were first found in rain forests of South and Central _____.
- The people of Mexico and Central America, which included the _____ and Aztec, were the first known to make chocolate.
- They made a chocolate drink that was not very sweet and sometimes had hot _____ in it.
- When the Spanish explorer Hernando Cortés came to _____, the Aztec Emperor, Montezuma, served hot chocolate.
- The Spanish brought the beans back to _____ where people made up new recipes using the chocolate.
- It took about 100 years for the chocolate drink to become a favorite throughout _____ - especially with sugar added.
- An Irish chocolate maker, John Hannon, brought beans from the West Indies to Massachusetts. With his partner, Dr. James Baker, he built the first chocolate mill and made chocolate squares for _____. You might still find some of this famous chocolate in your cupboard today.
- Today, cacao trees are farmed in many countries with warm and wet weather. _____ is the world's largest producer.
- Pods growing off the trunk of the cacao tree are harvested by hand by _____.
- The white beans from the pods are dried to a _____ color in the sun.
- The inside of beans (nibs) are gathered and crushed into thick chocolate "_____."
- The chocolate "paste" is mixed with _____, cocoa butter and vanilla.
- Next, the mixture is put into a conching machine to _____ the paste into tiny bits and create smooth, creamy chocolate to eat.
- The chocolate is _____ into our favorite bars by Hershey's, Mars, Cadbury and other companies.
