Wildfire danger is expected this week

Wildfire activity is expected to gradually increase throughout the week, as periodic critical fire weather occurs where very dry vegetation is present across West and South Texas.

As the ENTERPRISE went to press Tuesday, critical fire weather and above normal temperatures were expected to support the potential for large wildfires that are resistant to firefighters' suppression efforts near Amarillo, Lubbock, Childress, Sweetwater, San Angelo and Ozona where grasses are critically dry.

A prolonged period of accelerated drying Wednesday through Sunday will expand the area of dry to extremely dry vegetation across the landscape and will continue to support wildfire activity throughout the weekend.

Texas A&M Forest Service continues to monitor the situation closely and has positioned personnel and equipment across the areas of concern for a quick and effective response to any new wildfire ignitions.

For current conditions and wildfire outlook, read the Texas Fire Potential Outlook <https://bit.ly/3kemhbG>.

Community Palm Sunday service set

A Community Palm Sunday service will be held April 10 at 6 p.m. at the First Assembly of God in Clarendon. The service is provided by the local Ministerial Alliance.

Lions plan severe weather discussion

The Clarendon Lions Club will host a Severe Weather presentation April 21, which will feature a look back at the deadly 1970 tornado that struck what is now Howardwick.

Pantex Staff Meteorologist and former Amarillo weatherman Steve Kersh will describe the conditions that existed on April 18, 1970, when a deadly tornado ripped through the Panhandle and hit the former Sherwood Shores community at Lake Greenbelt, killing 17 people.

The presentation will feature a tribute to the storm's victims, and the Lions are asking for anyone with personal stories of survival from any tornado to share those by calling Lion Mary Green at 580-380-8069 for a brief interview.

Kersh will also describe what weather conditions to be on the look-out for; how to prepare for severe weather; and what this year's storm season might bring.

Admission to the event is free, and the Lions will be giving away Storm Preparedness kits as door prizes.

Jones 5K, Easter Event to be held Saturday

A 5K walk/run and a Community Easter Event will be held at the Donley County Courthouse this Saturday, April 9, as the Clarendon Lions Club and the Clarendon Elementary Pony Parents team up for two fun events.

The morning will start off with the tenth annual Chance Mark Jones Roar & Run 5K at 8:30 a.m.

The race seeks to raise awareness of Child Abuse and is held in honor of the late Chance Mark Jones, who passed away in January 2011 as a result of abuse.

Registration for the Roar & Run 5K are open through the day of the event for $30.

Race and plunge registrations are available at the Clarendon Visitor Center at the Mulkey Theatre, at the Enterprise, or online at <https://bit.ly/2Qp85IE>.

For more 5K information, contact Lion Roger Estlack at 806-874-2259.

Following the 5K awards presentation, the Pony Parents' first Community Easter event will also be held on the Courthouse lawn beginning at 11 a.m. and continuing until 1 p.m.

Free egg hunts will be held for kids ages 11 and under with two free bicycles being given in each age category.

The Easter event will also feature carnival games and bounce houses that can be enjoyed by the kids with the purchase of a wristband.

Skelton wins top Chamber honor Brussard, Pittman, Dockery also recognized

The Clarendon Chamber of Commerce recognized Sandy Skelton with the 2021 Saints' Roost Award for his lifetime of service and commitment to the community during the annual Chamber Awards Banquet last Thursday, March 31.

Man of the Year honors went to David Dockery, and Kathryn Brussard and Devah Pittman were named the Women of the Year. The Clarendon Family Medical Center was named the Business of the Year.

The Saints' Roost Award is the highest honor given annually by the Chamber to recognize a lifetime of volunteering and community service.

Skelton was recognized for going above and beyond in his service as our mayor. Working with an anonymous benefactor and helping raise money for the Clarendon Aquatics Center was a major accomplishment that has been a huge and lasting benefit for our community. He has also done an outstanding job communicating the city's priorities to the community, involving the community in the city's decision making, and keeping citizens informed through columns in the local newspaper, public meetings, and letters. In addition to his work with the city, he has been an extremely valuable member of the Saints' Roost Museum Board and has worked tirelessly to help make the museum a first-class attraction. He also donates his time to the Courthouse Lighting project, volunteers to deliver meals on meals, and is a supporter of a wide variety of good endeavors in our community.

Kathryn Brussard and Devah Pittman were named Women of the Year for working tirelessly for the community and more especially for the health of its citizens during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Brussard joined the local clinic in 2018, and saw an average of 4,000 patients last year, about thousand more than pre-covid. Kathryn has put in untold hours during the COVID-19 pandemic, and one patient said of her: "I'm pretty sure without her dedication, I would have at least been hospitalized. Not to be too dramatic, I believe Kathryn saved my life." Another patient who sought treatment here from out of town also said they "cheated possible death that day by the grace of God and by Kathryn's dedicated attention to my illness" and said their "sister and brother-in-law traveled from our city and were subsequently treated by Kathryn with as much attention to their patient care as I was given."

Pittman has worked at the clinic for 14 years now and has made a lasting impact on the community. She was described by a co-worker as having taken charge of COVID when the pandemic started. She researched protocols and treatments every night, sacrificing time with her families; and like Brussard, Pittman also saw about 4,000 patients last year, 1,000 more than usual. One nomination read, "I have personally witnessed her with as much love as she has in her soul, sit beside a patient, tenderly grab her hand, look into her sick eyes, and tell her that she has done all that she can do within her power, but the hospital is inevitable. Knowing the faith of her patient, they tenderly prayed together with tear-filled eyes."

The Man of the Year for 2021 is David Dockery, who, as city administrator, has overseen the completion of the Clarendon Aquatics Center and a massive USDA grant that has improved the water infrastructure system in Clarendon. While doing this, he has also helped secure additional grants for our community that in a few months will see our downtown further revitalized and will fund other infrastructure improvements for our community. Beyond his city role, he is also an officer and leading volunteer in the Clarendon Lions Club, where he can be counted on to contribute his time and talents for whatever worthy project the club is engaged upon. The District Governor of Lions recognized him with the "Backbone Award" for all his behind-the-scenes efforts for Lionism. He also supports Scouting projects and many other worthy endeavors in the community.

The Chamber of Commerce named the Clarendon Family Medical Center as the Business of the Year for 2021. For more than 20 years, Dr. John Howard and his clinic have cared for the community's sick and strived to not only treat those who are ill but also encourage ways to improve the health of its patients through prevention. But in the last two years, the Clarendon Family Medical Center and its employees have been called upon to help our community and the surrounding area during the greatest health crisis in the last hundred years. The COVID-19 pandemic revealed Dr.

CC holds community service day

Students, faculty, and staff from Clarendon College participated in a service day to benefit the Clarendon community on Wednesday, March 23, 2022.

Morning classes for CC were suspended to make way for a UIL competition; and in turn, the college hosted a day of community service. There were 194 students, faculty, and staff who volunteered to undertake several projects throughout Clarendon.

Some of the projects included:

Adopt-a-Highway, where roadside cleanup along a two-mile stretch of State Highway 70 was completed.

Cleanup of Citizen's Cemetery.

Worked with members of the Clarendon Lions Club to prepare US flags for proper retirement by our local Cub Scouts.

Helped with the Donley County Senior Citizens Center to prepare vehicles for home delivery of meals.

Cleanup of the train tracks area behind Lowe's, Western Skies Motel, Dollar General, Pizza Hut, Sonic, and Best Western Plus Red River Inn.

Cleanup of the CC welding center on First Street.

Shrub removal and cleanup of flowerbeds on the Clarendon College campus.

Painted bulldog paw prints along College Drive.

"I'm very proud of our students, staff, and faculty for taking a day to give volunteer service to the Clarendon community," CC President Tex Buckhaults said. "It's an excellent mark of citizenship to be of service to the community, and Clarendon College wants to show that mark of excellence. We are thankful for the support of the Clarendon community, and this is a nice way to give back to show our thankfulness."

Ken McIntosh, who headed up the Adopt-a-Highway effort stated, this was a good thing for both the college and the community because it allows the college to show, and the community to see, that we care.

Kamryn Patterson, a student from Kim, Colorado, stated that she volunteered for the service day because she was raised to believe in the value of community service through 4H and wanted to continue showing those values here in Clarendon.

There are plans to make a service day an annual event.

CASA focusing on supporting families in April

April is National Child Abuse Prevention Month, and CASA of the High Plains is raising awareness of the need for more dedicated members of the community to step up and become CASA volunteers, and help end child abuse and neglect, through supporting children and their families.

CASA volunteers, or Court Appointed Special Advocates, are everyday people from all walks of life who are recruited and specially trained to advocate for children in foster care and provide a consistent, reliable adult presence for them during a difficult time in their life.

"Our volunteers' first priority is to keep families together whenever safe and possible," said Alissha Jeffers, executive director of CASA of the High Plains "Foster care is only a temporary solution to the problems at hand. We need to create long term support networks that work to care for families, make reunification a possibility, and help break the cycle for the next generation."

CASA volunteers are assigned to one child or sibling group to advocate for their best interest in court, in school and in other settings. They get to know the child and everyone involved in their life, such as their parents and other family members, foster parents, therapists, caseworkers and teachers, in order to develop a realistic picture of the child's unique situation. They engage those important to the child and family in order to build a network of support around them, so that the family has access to support and resources after the case ends. They make recommendations to the judge overseeing the child's case, with the goal of ensuring that the child is safe and the family has the resources, support and healthy relationships needed to heal.

Locally, CASA of the High Plains served 179 children in the foster care system in Donley, Gray, Hansford, Hemphill, Lipscomb, Roberts, Ochiltree and Wheeler counties in 2021, but there were still 49 children who were in need of someone to advocate for them. This April, consider stepping up to make a difference by becoming a CASA volunteer.

"There is always a need for more CASA volunteers," said Jeffers. "By becoming a volunteer, you can take your efforts beyond just awareness, and do your part to help support children and families in crisis right here in our community."

When reunification is not a possibility for the children they serve, CASA volunteers work to find others that can provide a positive, healthy and loving environment. These can include relatives, friends or other adults that are important in the child's life - keeping a child connected to their home community.

"We at CASA of the High Plains always hope for the day when CASA, foster care and a national month dedicated to child abuse prevention are no longer needed because all children are growing up safe, secure and supported with their families," said Jeffers. "Until then, we will continue to seek more members of the community to join our growing movement so that we can provide a CASA volunteer for every child who needs one."

April is National Child Abuse Prevention Month. If you see abuse, report it to 1 (800) 252-5400 or go to www.txabusehotline.org. If a child's life is in danger, call 911. For more, visit www.BecomeCASA.org.

Chamber banquet hits right notes

The annual Clarendon Chamber of Commerce Awards Banquet was a resounding success March 31; and if you weren't there, you missed quite a party fitting of The Roaring 20s theme.

From the speak easy to the silent auction to the jazz / big band music of "Sticks & Tones," the whole affair at the Bairfield Activity Center was the bee's knees or possibly even the cat's pajamas! Chamber officials had set the scene just right, decorating the place like it was something straight out of The Great Gatsby. The partygoers did not disappoint, getting into the spirit with appropriate attire. Daddys came in with their flappers all decked out in their glad rags. Former Howardwick mayor Greta Byars probably had the most authentic outfit – a lovely green dress that her mother wore back in the 1920s.

As usual, the table decorations were a point of conversation. MC Dusty Green and his wife gave honorable mention to the ENTERPRISE table, decorated with 1920s front pages with Chamber-related headlines, but the Best Dressed Table was hands down the Saints' Roost Museum with its authentic collection of 1920s hats. History, after all, is what the Museum is all about.

Despite all the glitz and glamour, the real stars of the show were the award winners – the men and women who were duly recognized for the outstanding service they have rendered to our community. Two big news stories from the last year loomed large in the honors presented – the construction of the Clarendon Aquatic Center and COVID-19.

There is no understating the impact the pandemic had on our community and the world. The Chamber banquet was canceled in 2021 because of the virus, and the most recent Omicron variant of the virus delayed this year's banquet by more than a month.

Green opened the banquet by reading a breaking news item from the Enterprise's Facebook page dated March 31, 2020, and noting that it was two years ago to the day that the first case of COVID-19 was confirmed in Donley County. "What a two years it's been," he said.

A lot can be said about the pandemic. In many ways, it highlighted some of the great shortfalls of humanity – rampant ignorance, apathy, and rudeness. But above all that, other people rose to the occasion to help their fellow man and woman, to care for those who were sick, and to spread facts that would help keep people safe and healthy. And to that end, it was no surprise that the Clarendon Family Medical Center would be named the Business of the Year.

Donley County was a statistical anomaly within a month of that March 31, 2020, headline, reporting more positive cases of the virus per capita than most of the state and indeed the US. Our community wasn't really any more sick than other places; it was a simple matter of Dr. John Howard and the Clarendon Family Medical Center being very aggressive with testing for the disease with other communities were not. That pro-active approach was also seen as the clinic began researching and treating COVID-19 patients with great vigor. Our local clinic soon gained a reputation and drew many patients from the surrounding area for treatment. Not counting those from out of town, the clinic treated more than 900 local patients who tested positive for COVID-19.

In accepting the Business of the Year Award, Dr. Howard – a man perfectly positioned in this crisis as our county judge and local doctor – gave credit not only to his employees but also to the people of Donley County, who supported the clinic's mission with donations of money, food, medicine, and more to help those suffering from the disease.

While Judge / Dr. Howard fought the pandemic on the medical and the governmental fronts, back at the clinic the ladies who would be named the Women of the Year were busier than they had ever been. Nurse Practitioner Kathryn Brussard and Physician's Assistant Devah Pittman each saw about 1,000 more patients than they typically would in a year's time. The recommendations and letters from patients were glowing for these women and rightly so.

In happier headlines, the new aquatic center led to two more awards. The Man of the Year was City Administrator David Dockery, who had many long hours and dedicating in overseeing the development and construction of the new facility. Working alongside Mayor Sandy Skelton, who was himself the recipient of the Saints' Roost Award, Dockery deserves praise for bringing a new crown jewel to downtown Clarendon and fulfilling the dream of generations of local kids – a public swimming pool! Both men have dedicated themselves as community servants outside their city roles, but what they accomplished – meeting the half a million-dollar challenge of an anonymous donor and creating a great new venue for our city – was nothing short of historic for our community.

In all, the Chamber of Commerce deserves great credit for last week's banquet. The event successfully did what the Chamber does best – put Clarendon in the best possible light and trumpet all that is good about our community.

Meanwhile...

In combing through the archives for the Enterprise's Chamber table decorations, we came across this gem from January 21, 1926. You know the old saying, the more things change.... Read now the words of Editor Sam Braswell:

"Tonight, the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce is observing its annual banquet and get together meeting for the purpose of reviewing the work of the organization for the past year and to lay plans for the coming twelve months. ... There will be citizens who will not attend the meeting and who have been saying, just as they will continue to say, that the chamber of commerce "isn't doing anything," that it isn't worth anything to the town, and all that sort of talk. The News lays down this challenge – that not a man who talks that way has helped during the past twelve months to do anything in this line with the program of the body, they have paid very little or nothing, they have not tried to inform themselves as to its activities and they will not in 1926. Just look them over and see if they don't fit all those items. The helpful citizen is the critic who works for the advancement of his town, who thinks of methods that could be improved, who says so, and keeps working whether or not his suggestions are adopted. That sort of man is a real citizen."

Dowling defeats the Union at Sabine Pass

In the southeast corner of Texas the Sabine River, which constitutes the border between Texas and Louisiana, empties into a large lake which in turn empties through Sabine Pass into the Gulf of Mexico. During the Civil War, Sabine Pass was a major port through which the Southern states sent their cotton to Europe and through which they imported arms and munitions. Thus Sabine Pass had great strategic importance. It was important to the South to keep it open, and it was equally important to the North to have it closed.

Near the mouth of Sabine Pass the South had established Fort Griffin, a small earthwork post with six cannon, to fend off Northern attempts to block the outlet to the Gulf. Knowing that a superior force was approaching, the Confederate force that had garrisoned the fort left. After all, discretion is the better part of valor. But Richard (Dick) Dowling, who operated the Bank of Baccus saloon in Houston, saw the opportunity to do that which the Irish do best – fight. Enlisting in the Confederate army and equipping themselves with a ample supply of whiskey, Dowling and forty-one Irish followers boarded a train for Port Arthur. They called themselves the Davis Guards, and twenty-year-old Dick Dowling was their lieutenant and commander.

From Port Arthur Dowling marched his men down to Sabine Pass, and they occupied Fort Griffin. By means of a narrow dirt road connecting the fort to the nearby community of Sabine Pass, Kate Dorman, owner of the Catfish Hotel in Sabine Pass, managed to keep Dowling's troops supplied with food.

Late in the evening of September 6, 1863, Dowling observed the signal lights of a Union invasion force approaching in the Gulf. Just a few weeks earlier two Union gunboats had succeeded in blockading the pass but were driven away by two Confederate ships sent from Houston. It now appeared that the Union was going to try again.

Dowling immediately awakened his men and ordered them to get ready. "Wake up boys," he cried. "There's something brewing, and we had better go to work."

The men cleaned their guns, they piled powder and balls, and the fort's engineer went from gun to gun making sure they were ready. The doctor prepared himself with a supply of splints and bandages. Then they waited.

As the sun rose, nothing had happened. Somewhat disappointed about losing sleep and having to work all night for nothing, the defenders did some scowling and muttering. Dowling consoled them and got them back on track, though, by telling them, "Never mind, boys. Never mind. There is surely something brewing, and let us prepare for whatever may come."

And come, it did. That evening the masts of the invading fleet came into view. Four gunboats, twenty-two troop ships, and fifteen thousand soldiers were approaching. Trouble was surely brewing for Dick Dowling and his forty-two Irish defenders from Houston.

Captain Frederick Odium, in the village of Sabine Pass, sent word to General John Bankhead Magruder in Houston. In response, Magruder suggested that it was an impossible situation, and that Fort Griffin should be abandoned, but he left the final decision up to Odium and Dowling. At the fort, Dowling assembled his men and asked their opinion. "What do you say, men? Shall we retreat, or shall we stay and fight it out?"

"No, no, no!" they shouted back.

"Fight, fight, fight!"

"Then to your guns," cried Dowling. "See that everything is ready. But don't fire until I give the signal."

Into the night the ships approached nearer and nearer, and at daybreak (September 8) the Union gunboats began firing on the fort and on the road connecting the fort to the village. Dowling restrained his men from returning fire.

"Not yet, boys. They are too far off, and we haven't a ball or a pound of powder to throw away."

tales of the old west
by george u. hubbard

The slow and steady Union approach continued, and the pounding of the fort and road continued. Then at three o'clock in the afternoon, when the ships were close enough for the voices of the Union soldiers and sailors to be heard, Dowling fired his cannon.

"Load and fire at will!" he shouted.

With that as the signal, the other Confederate guns roared into action.

Masts were ripped off the leading ships. A loud explosion sent one ship, the Sachem, into the air as a ball exploded her boilers. Another ship, the Clifton, raised the white flag after a severe pounding. A third ship, the Arizona, was wounded and backed away out of cannonball range. She was so damaged that her crew threw horses, provisions, and everything else they could overboard to lighten her weight. The remaining ships turned and left the scene of action.

As the battle ended, Dowling and his men had captured two Union gunboats and crippled a third. They took 350 prisoners, thirteen cannon, and much ammunition and provisions. Among the prisoners was Lieutenant Frederick Crocker of the Clifton who asked to see the Confederate commander. He could hardly believe his eyes as Dick Dowling, a young, dirty, twenty-year-old boy presented himself. Crocker was even more amazed when he saw the mere handful of Texas Irishmen who had beaten the large armada. "Four gunboats and fifteen thousand men beaten by this boy and his forty-two Irishmen," he muttered. "It is something unheard of."

It truly was an accomplishment, and the young Dowling and his men had achieved one of the South's greatest victories.

Returning to Houston following the war, Dowling reopened his saloon, The Bank of Baccus. He died, however, shortly thereafter at the early age of twenty-nine. In 1880, the Texas Legislature presented a posthumous medal of valor to Dowling's daughter. An impressive monument at Sabine Pass now commemorates Dowling's victory.

South Africans find home in Texas

A restaurant in Winnsboro serves the traditional menu items like steaks, seafood and smoked chicken but also serves some South African dishes. Jackie and Phillip Strydom have the restaurant called Liefie (Lee-Fee) a popular Afrikaans word meaning sweetheart. They came to the US in 1999 after running a successful real estate business in Johannesburg, a city with a high crime rate. The Re-Max Company invited them to Dallas for training with the idea of going back and opening Re-Max offices in South Africa. They considered the offer. "We were young and ambitious and our kids were small so we thought it was a wonderful opportunity," says Jackie.

They got to the US after a 21-hour flight. "We landed in New York with two babies and eight suitcases and we were really tired. We found out the plane tickets to Dallas were eight hundred dollars apiece. And if you convert that into South African money, that's a lot of money. We took the Greyhound bus to Dallas and enjoyed the trip because it gave us a chance to rest and see the countryside. It was a beautiful ride."

Jackie says in Dallas, they started a real estate business and after a few years the kids became thoroughly Texanized and spoke English fluently. "We just couldn't stand the thought of taking them back." At a South African Dutch oven cooking festival in 2009 they met a man with South African roots who invited the family to his farm near Winnsboro. "My kids had such a good time on the farm and in the little town. On the way back to Dallas my 15 year-old daughter said, 'Mama, you know we're gonna have to move there.' I told her I would love to but it's too far from Dallas where we make a living. She said 'Mama we just have to follow our hearts and God will provide.'"

They did move to Winnsboro in 2010, bought a home and a downtown building that they turned into a small mall. They set up a real estate office in the front of the building. "We went to Canton and solicited successful vendors with funky apparel, furniture and home décor to rent space in the mall," says Jackie. "Eventually we started serving wine and cheese plates. That just sort of morphed into the restaurant. We didn't plan to open a restaurant, it just happened. We added a kitchen and patio and Phillip got out his smoker and started smoking chickens. It's one of our best menu items. Phillip manages the cooking and our son Jet helps." They opened the restaurant in 2012 and don't plan to go back to South Africa. "What we do now is get enough money together and send it over to our friends and family. They come here and we all go places we have not been."

Liefie has been called the best restaurant in East Texas. It seats 44 inside and 44 outside. Musicians entertain on weekends. It's open Thursday thru Saturday from 11 AM to 9 PM. Reservations are recommended. (903 347-1111)

Jackie grew up in the Kalahari Desert where her mother had a large general store. In college, she waited tables. She and Phillip always liked the rural areas, preferring them over big cities. "Maybe God wants us here."

MAY 7 ELECT Donny HOWARD
For Clarendon CISD Board of Trustees

To the Residents of Clarendon and Howardwick,

My name is Donny Howard, and I am running for a position on the Clarendon Consolidated Independent School District's school board. I feel that most of you know me, but for those who do not, I am a life-long resident of Clarendon.

My wife, Markeeta, and I farm, ranch, and run several local businesses. You most likely have seen me at the Pumpkin Ponderosa where the students of CCISD attend annual field trips. These field trips are a tradition that we enjoy and look forward to each year. Watermelons and cantaloupes can also be associated with my name, and some of you may have been to my house to purchase vegetables during the summer months.

I am also a member of the First Baptist Church of Clarendon where Markeeta is the director of the youth and college ministry. Two of my sons are currently attending junior high and high school at CCISD.

I have spent my adult life following and supporting the students of Clarendon CISD, even prior to having my own children. Whether it be hauling kiddos to stock shows in Houston, watching or coaching t-ball and basketball, or attending a local performance of our One-Act Play, I strive to attend and support them any chance I get.

I am very proud of the education and experiences that I had at Clarendon schools and am committed to see that your students receive the same. I will always do what is in the best interest of CCISD's students, faculty, and staff, and not what I think is in the best interest of myself and my children.

When you go to vote in the May election, VOTE DONNY HOWARD!

Early voting will be held from April 25th-May 3rd at the Donley County Annex. Election Day will be Saturday, May 7th, and will also be held at the Donley County Annex. I would appreciate your support and influence as I strive to become your Clarendon Consolidated Independent School District's newest board member.

Howard and his employees for who they truly are... heroes and angels of healing. From the earliest days of the pandemic, the clinic was aggressive in testing, which led to early detection of the virus in our community and no doubt saved lives. In the last two years, the clinic has treated more than 900 positive local cases of the diseases and shown great success in keeping their patients out of the hospital with aggressive approach of treatment. The reputation of our clinic was widespread in its COVID treatment and drew numerous other patients from other area counties, who are not included in that 900 plus figure

The Chamber also recognized outstanding local youth.

This year's Chamber banquet followed a "Roaring 20s" theme with many in attendance dressing the part and was catered by Great Western Dining. Approximately 175 people attended the event, which was held in the Bairfield Activity Center.

Entertainment for the evening was provided by the jazz band "Sticks & Tones" of Amarillo, and Dusty Green was the Master of Ceremonies for the evening.

Chamber President Bob Weiss offered a tribute to former Chamber manager Bonnie Campbell, who passed away last month. Campbell first led the Chamber as president about ten years ago, worked to revive the organization, and recruited Weiss to the board.

"Without her vision and tenacity, I doubt we would be having this event this evening," Weiss said. "A lot of others have put in a considerable amount of time and effort since then to make the Chamber what it is today, but she really loved the Chamber and Clarendon."

Tables were sponsored by the City of Clarendon, Clarendon College, The Clarendon Enterprise, Donley County Courthouse, Donley County Senior Citizens, Herring Bank, Phelps Plumbing, Pilgrim Bank, Saints' Roost Museum, and Shelton & Shelton Law Offices. Green and his wife Nikki selected the Saints' Roost Museum table as having the best table decoration reflecting the banquet's theme.

This year's corporate sponsors were Best Western Red River Inn, The Clarendon Enterprise, Greenbelt Electric Cooperative, Inc., Green-Light Gas, Liberty Electric, and Budweiser.

Pantex aims to hire 200 production technicians

To improve production output and position the Pantex Plant to deliver planned future weapons work, Pantex aims to hire more than 200 production technicians by fall 2022.

“Pantex is a key integration point in the weapons supply chain, where parts and services come together from other sites and make up the final product that supports the nuclear deterrent. We have a significant volume of work ahead of us, and we need additional hands-on expertise to make production a reality,” said Diane Grooms, Chief Human Resources Officer.

This presents an extraordinary hiring opportunity for citizens in the Panhandle and nearby states with trades experience. Pantex is searching for those who can do the actual hands-on work to ensure the nuclear deterrent is safe, secure, and effective. Citizens with a background in at least one of the following areas are needed: manufacturing, machining, maintenance, welding, electrical, automotive/diesel, and instrument technology. A high school diploma or GED is required, as well as six months of verifiable hands-on work experience.

Production opportunities at Pantex have increased based on long-term strategic priorities outlined by the Department of Energy and the National Nuclear Security Administration. Although the last new nuclear weapon was completed in 1991, Pantex ensures the continuing effectiveness of the nuclear stockpile as the nation’s primary assembly, disassembly, retrofit, and life-extension center for nuclear weapons. While these efforts are familiar to Pantex, many weapons’ life-extension projects are being simultaneously phased in and out, creating an increased need for workers to meet multiple project deadlines.

“This is an opportunity to be part of a team that is dedicated to the nuclear security of our nation, but also provides a critical role in global security. We have the phrase, ‘Pantex Pride’ for a reason. We are doing the jobs that very few in the world can do,” said Pantex Site Manager Jeff Yarbrough.

Those hired can expect competitive pay and benefits, as well as contributing meaningful work to support the safety and security of our nation and the world.

Those interested in applying should visit pantex.energy.gov/careers/productiointech.

Friends of the Library plan activities for DEAR Day

The Friends of the Burton Memorial Library will celebrate DEAR Day with several activities next week.

Tuesday, April 12, is D.E.A.R. Day, an American Library Association event, which stands for Drop Everything And Read. This day is a reminder to make family reading a daily priority.

The holiday is celebrated on Beverly Cleary’s birthday, author of Ramona Quimby, Age 8, in which the character Ramona celebrates DEAR Day at school. Younger students may be required by schools to do daily reading, but how about us adults?

The parents of Clarendon’s Eulaine McIntosh had a close call last Tuesday when a big wildfire south of Pampa threatened the family home. McIntosh reported flames came within 12-15 feet on the north side of the property and within a few yards of the north corner of the garage. State officials are warning of continuing extreme wildfire danger this week as high winds, high temperatures, and lack of moisture persist.

Frausto blasted walk-off homerun

By Sandy Anderberg

Clarendon's Easton Frausto stepped up to the plate right after Harrison Howard slammed a home-run that matched Wellington's five runs late in the game. Not wanting to settle for the tie, Frausto took a pitch over the plate and smashed one to the fence for a walk-off homerun to give the Broncos the 6-5 victory.

Brock Hatley earned the win throwing, five of the seven innings allowing seven hits, for runs, and nine strike outs. Aiden Caudle came in for one inning to finish and allowed one run and two strike outs.

Offensively, the Broncos posted five hits, three RIBs, and six runs. As a team, the Broncos recorded six stolen bases which is something they have done all year long that has frustrated opponents. Lyric Smith and Jared Musick led the way with two stolen bases each, and Hatley and Jace Cottrell picked up the other two stolen bases.

Frausto added a double, RBI, and one run to his time at homeplate while Howard added two runs and one RBI. Hatley had one hit and one run, and Caulder Havens connected with a hit and run as well.

Overall, the Broncos were sharp and came through with a huge win over the 'Rockets that gives them an advantage in the district race at 3-1 (10-3 overall).

Later in the week, the Broncos earned another big win over Valley at 15-2. The Patriots struggled to stop the Broncos' offensive effort as they allowed Clarendon 12 hits with 12 RBIs.

Hatley accounted for three of those hits, four RBI, and one stolen base. Frausto and Howard posted two hits apiece and Britton Cottrell, Jodee Pigg, Musick, Caudle, and Smith each added one hit.

Howard was on the mound and got the win throwing for four innings and only allowing two hits and two runs, while showing 10 hitters the exit sign.

Lady Broncos grab two big victories

By Sandy Anderberg

The Lady Broncos' softball team earned a huge 15-4 win over West Texas High last week as they enter the last half of their regular season. The ladies had their bats going and posted eight hits with nine RBI and as many stolen bases.

Freshman Tandie Cummins, who pitched well, according to head coach Brad Elam, got the win for the five innings of the game allowing six hits, four runs, and posting four strike outs. Senior Jentrye Bellar was behind the plate for all five innings of the game.

Cummins, Bellar, and Kennadie Cummins had two hits each on the offensive side and racked up nine RBIs in the game. No triples or homeruns were hit in the game, but Bellar slammed a double in the win. Hayden Elam accounted for two runs and four stolen bases, and Bayleigh

Bruce had two runs and two stolen bases.

Gracie Wilkins had one hit and two runs, and Tandy Blacksher had a hit, two runs, and two RBI.

"We struggled a little offensively but were helped out with 12 walks," Elam said. "Tandie Cummins pitched well giving up only six hits, four runs (zero of them earned), and striking out four."

The Lady Bronco JV had a good win over Fritch at 15-1.

"Emma Roys and Bayleigh Bruce pitched four good innings," Elam said. "Laney Rummel had a good catch in center field and turned a double play. Maloree Wann had a good catch in left."

The ladies will take on Sunray at home on April 9th beginning at 1:00 with JV to follow. They will play Tulia at home on April 11 at 4:00.

Bellar set to move on to the Regional golf tournament

By Sandy Anderberg

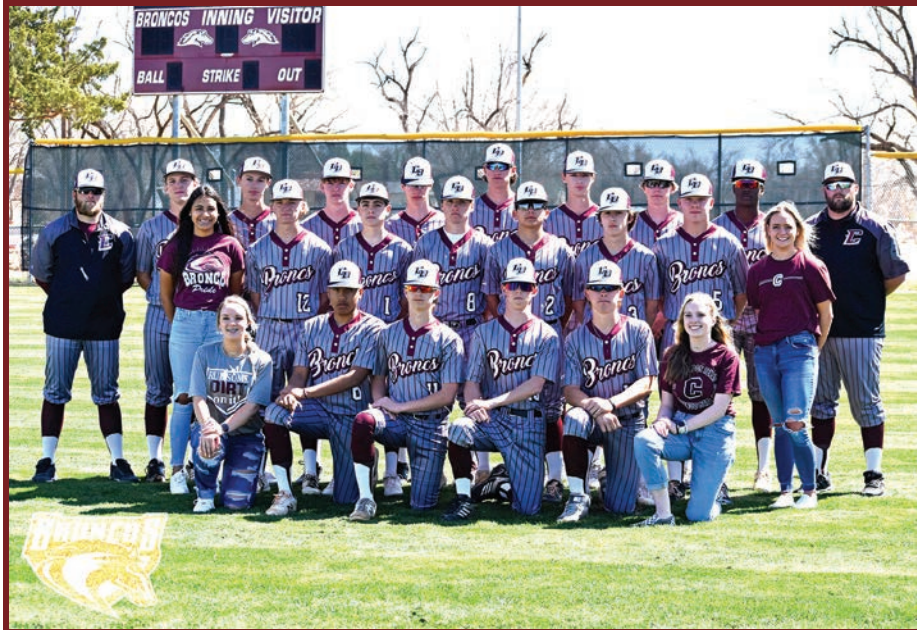

Clarendon senior Jentry Bellar made a statement in the District Golf Tournament held last week and qualified for the Regional Tournament to be held in Canyon and the Palo Duro Creek Golf Course on April 20-21, 2022.

Bellar took on Stoney Ridge in Childress and shot an impressive 97 on 18 holes on the difficult course. The second round of 18 was played at Comanche Trails in Amarillo where Bellar was even more impressive. She turned in a very respectable 91 that gave her the 2nd best score of all the lady golfers for an overall total of 188 for the two rounds.
