Lions plan severe weather discussion

The Clarendon Lions Club will host a Severe Weather presentation April 21, which will feature a look back at the deadly 1970 tornado that struck what is now Howardwick.

Pantex Staff Meteorologist and former Amarillo weatherman Steve Kersh will describe the conditions that existed on April 18, 1970, when a deadly tornado ripped through the Panhandle and hit the former Sherwood Shores community at Lake Greenbelt, killing 17 people.

The presentation will feature a tribute to the storm's victims, and the Lions are asking for anyone with personal stories of survival from any tornado to share those by calling Lion Mary Green at 580-380-8069 for a brief interview.

Kersh will also describe what weather conditions to be on the look-out for; how to prepare for severe weather; and what this year's storm season might bring.

Admission to the event is free, and the Lions will be giving away Storm Preparedness kits as door prizes.

Tax renditions due on Monday

Almost everyone with personal property in the Donley Appraisal District has now been mailed rendition forms, and the deadline is fast approaching to get those turned in.

A "rendition" is a report to the appraisal district listing all the taxable property you owned or controlled on January 1 of this year. Deadline to file is April 15; however, the DAD office will be closed April 15, so the deadline for filing for 2022 will be extended through Monday, April 18.

All personal property must be rendered each year even if there has been no change from the previous year. You should include cars, pickups, trucks, RV's, motorcycles, travel trailers, and airplanes.

If you own a business, you should also render your business inventory held for resale and other business-related equipment. Separate rendition forms have been mailed to business owners. Business owners not filing renditions by the deadline will be assessed a penalty of 15 percent.

Renditions must be signed, and you may, although it is not required, list an opinion of market value. If you give your opinion of your property's value and the appraisal district believes the value is higher, you will be notified in writing of the higher value and told how you can protest that value to the appraisal review board.

File your rendition with the appraisal district at 304 S Kearney or mail to P.O. Box 1220, Clarendon TX 79226.

Harper, Artho win Jones 5K

A large crowd helped raise awareness of child abuse last Saturday, April 9, during the ten annual Chance Mark Jones Roar & Run 5K & Polar Bear Plunge last Saturday, April 17, at the Clarendon Aquatic Center.

More than seventy people registered for the event with about 37 actually running or walking the 5K. Dozens more volunteers, supporters, and spectators were also in attendance.

The top men's and women's finishers of the 5K were both in the 11-19 age group. Tyler Harper of Clarendon, age 16, had the best overall time of 21 minutes, 19 seconds, and was the first man across the finish line. Caroline Artho, age 15, had the best time of all women, coming in at 25:00.

This year's race started and ended in front of the Donley County Courthouse and led into the Clarendon Elementary Pony Parents' Community Easter Egg Hunt, which drew about 190 participants of ages up to 11 years old.

Complete results of this year's race are as follows: Top Men's

Time – Tyler Harper, 21:19; Top Women's Time – Caroline Artho, 25:00; 10 and under – 1st Matthew Newhouse 41:59; Ages 11-19 – 1st Harper 21:19, 2nd Artho 25:00, and 3rd Kutter O'Keefe 28:16; Ages 20-29 – 1st Shawn Sandy 25:10, 2nd Kae Hewett 54:20, and 3rd Bridie Lindsey 54:47; Ages 30-39 – 1st Michael Martinez 28:17, 2nd Kasi Gaither 28:44, and 3rd Cody Jones 48:38; Ages 40-49 – 1st Kim Tabor 30:26, 2nd Andrew Brown 30:27, and 3rd Alex Moon 30:28; Ages 50-59 – 1st Michelle Branigan 27:34, 2nd Kathy Goodwin 64:28,

Proceeds from this year's will help support the annual charitable activities of the Clarendon Lions Club, including eyeglasses for local school kids, Christmas food baskets for local families, scholarships, and hosting the area office of The Bridge – Children's Advocacy Center.

State officials warning of wildfire dangers

Extremely dry vegetation combined with above normal temperatures, low humidity and high wind speeds are creating the perfect conditions for dangerous wildfires across the state.

"Wildfires that ignite under these conditions can travel 20-30 miles in one afternoon due to the force of strong, hot and dry winds," said Brad Smith, Texas A&M Forest Service Predictive Services Department Head. "During these events, the forward progress of wildfires may not be stopped until the weather changes or the fire runs into a large barrier, such as an agricultural field."

Since April 1, Texas A&M Forest Service, Texas Intrastate Fire Mutual Aid System (TIFMAS)

firefighters, other state and federal agencies and local fire departments have responded to 212 wildfires that burned 30,231 acres.

Texas A&M Forest Service continues to monitor the situation closely and has positioned personnel and equipment across the areas of concern.

Fully staffed task forces and additional suppression equipment are staged in Alice, Amarillo, Beeville, Brownwood, Burk Burnett, Childress, Edinburg, Fort Stockton, Fredericksburg, Lubbock, McGregor, Merkel, Mineral Wells, Pleasanton, San Angelo, Smithville and Victoria.

Fireline supervisors, command staff and incident commanders with advanced qualifications are strategically placed across the state to respond. Additionally, 103 personnel from 12 states are currently in Texas to support wildfire response efforts.

Thirty-six aviation resources are currently staged in state, including three large air tankers, 15 single engine air tankers, six air attack platforms, two lead planes, five type 1 helicopters, two type 3 helicopters, two Blackhawks and one multi mission aircraft.

Eight strike teams are mobilized via TIFMAS and are strategically positioned across the state to provide wildfire incident support.

"Three outbreak events have occurred this fire season, producing wildfires that forced evacuations and burned through a community," said Wes Moorehead, Texas A&M Forest Service Fire Chief. "These wildfires greatly impacted Texas communities and we anticipate similar levels of activity this week. Texas A&M Forest Service encourages residents to be cautious, be prepared and listen to warnings from local officials."

Texans are encouraged to make evacuation preparations in advance of the expected wildfire activity.

Prepare multiple evacuation routes in case one is compromised by heavy smoke.

Assemble a go-kit that can be grabbed easily and includes the following items: Supplies for both people and pets. Prescription medications or other necessary medical equipment. Papers and important documents such as insurance and identification documents. Personal needs including food, water, clothing, money and a first aid kit. Priceless items such as photos, family heirlooms and any other irreplaceable or valuable items.

Listen to local officials and, if necessary, evacuate early to get yourself out of harm's way.

Nine out of 10 wildfires in Texas are caused by humans and their activities. Texas A&M Forest Service encourages the public to avoid outdoor activities that cause a spark while warm, dry and windy conditions are present.

Stay wildfire aware. If a wildfire is spotted, immediately contact local authorities.

New voter cards going out Friday

Voter registration problems that hampered last month's primary elections are believed to be fixed now, according to Donley County Tax Assessor/Collector Kristy Christopher.

Speaking at Monday's regular meeting of county commissioners, Christopher said her office had done a review of all precinct lines and she believes all problems have been resolved.

New voter registration cards were printed Tuesday morning, Christopher told the Enterprise. Her office will go through each card to assure that person is listed in the correct county precinct, school district, and municipality where applicable. She then plans to have the cards in the mail to voters by this Friday, April 15.

"If you see anything wrong with your card, please call me immediately and let's get it fixed before early voting starts," Christopher said.

Early voting in the Clarendon city and school board elections will start April 25. The tax assessor/collector's office number is 806-874-2193

In other county business, commissioners met with Randy Bond, who is the Republican candidate for constable in Precincts 3&4. With no opposition on the November ballot, Bond will be elected and subsequently take office in January. County officials met with the candidate to discuss his plans and expectations for the office as they begin work on the FY 2023 county budget.

According to Judge John Howard, Bond stated he expects a salary similar to that of a sheriff's deputy, a county vehicle, and county health insurance.

The constable's office has been vacant since the end of January 2021 when former constable Doug Wright resigned. The current FY 2022 county budget has a salary for the office of $100 per month and a $50 per month car allowance.

Commissioners also agreed in principle to granting right-of-way access for a gas line on County Road P from the intersection at FM 2695. County officials want to see more details from the company making the request before giving formal approval, Howard said.

A resolution authorizing a grant application for courthouse restoration funds from the Texas Historical Commission was approved. The grant would address continued stone spalling around the base of the 1890 Courthouse and other issues identified by the county's architect.

Motions were approved to combine and consolidate voting precincts 301 and 303 for the May 7 and May 24 elections where appropriate.

Looking back on censorship

One of the hot news stories is the bill in Florida banning discussion of sexual orientation or gender identity in elementary schools. The bill is called “Parental Rights in Education Bill” but has been dubbed the “Don’t say gay” bill. This, of course, has led to a national debate about censorship, decency, and age appropriateness. This is not the first of this discussion as schools are passing similar laws against issues like “Critical Race Theory” and taking books off school library shelves deemed inappropriate. As always, this column does not propose to answer any of these debates, but, historically speaking, censorship is not new and looking at historical examples may help us make more informed decisions today.

Actual laws allowing for censorship are in no way new. President John Adams signed the Alien and Sedition Acts into law which fined or arrested anyone speaking out against the government. President Woodrow Wilson signed a similar Sedition Act. Lincoln did not sign a sedition law. He just locked everyone up who spoke out against him, claiming it as a war measure. Yet, I want to focus on a particularly difficult time when censorship was rampant and consider how one particular President handled the situation.

The year was 1950 and America was embroiled in the Red Scare, where we were suspecting communists were hiding under our beds and in our closets. Granted, this was not just paranoia, as communists had infiltrated American agencies and organizations. Before 1950, The House Un-American Activities Committee had already held trials to stamp out communists in the movie business and created the infamous blacklists. In this same year a little-known senator from Wisconsin gave a speech in West Virginia, claiming to have a list of communists who were working for the State Department. Overnight, Joseph McCarthy became famous, and McCarthyism was born. McCarthyism is often compared to a witch hunt, especially after the release of “The Crucible,” but there is one stark difference: there were no ghosts in Salem but there were communists in government. However, what McCarthy did was greatly exaggerate the situation for personal gain and created a frenzy in this nation to rid all aspects of communism from everywhere.

One area where McCarthyism focused its attacks were libraries, especially the State Department’s overseas libraries. In April 1953, two of McCarthy’s chief staffers, Roy Cohn and David Schine, took a tour of Europe, attacking the books in the libraries and the State Department officials who ran them. After the tour, the State Department issued a list of which books were appropriate and which were not. While some of these books were overtly communist, most were not. Some were banned simply because an author who was not a communist would not publicly reject communism.

President Eisenhower was in a tough position. He did not agree with McCarthy, but they were in the same party and McCarthy held a great deal of power. Eisenhower refused to tangle with McCarthy publicly, as it was his policy not to debate any opponent publicly, possibly his greatest character trait and one I wish modern presidents could mimic. Yet finally the President had had enough. On June 14, 1953, while speaking at Dartmouth College, he took up the idea of censorship. After speaking about having fun and joy in life, he spoke about courage. He ended that part of his speech with:

“Don’t join the book burners. Don’t think you are going to conceal faults by concealing evidence that they ever existed. Don’t be afraid to go in your library and read every book, as long as that document does not offend our own ideas of decency. That should be the only censorship.

“How will we defeat communism unless we know what it is, and what it teaches, and why does it have such an appeal for men? Why are so many people swearing allegiance to it?”

“And we have got to fight it with something better, not try to conceal the thinking of our own people. They are part of America. And even if they think ideas that are contrary to ours, their right to say them, their right to record them, and their right to have them at places where they are accessible to others is unquestioned, or it isn’t America.”

When asked about his statements a couple of days later at a press conference, Ike added, “When I talk about books or the right of dissemination of knowledge, am I [not] talking about any document or any other kind of thing that attempts to persuade or propagandize America into communism? Indeed, our courts found 11 communists guilty of practically traitorous action; they pointed out that these men were dedicated to the destruction of the United States form of government by force, and that they took orders from a foreign government. So, manifestly, I am not talking about that kind of thing when I talk about free access to knowledge.”

As an academic, I agree with President Eisenhower that information should not scare us. He went on to say that if more Americans had read Mein Kampf, we might have been better prepared to stop Hitler, so reading more about why people were attracted to communism might not be a bad thing. But notice that Ike did make two exemptions: those that “offend our own ideas of decency” and those that “persuade or propagandize.” For myself I would add “age appropriateness.” Think about our movie ratings. Most things that are PG 13 movies are not bad but are not age appropriate for younger children to learn about yet or without parents’ approval. I know this is a difficult subject. We have been fighting it for years. when it comes to our children, we will probably never stop fighting it. Eisenhower warned us against censorship, but he also believed there were certain things that should not be read.

Rio Grande RR builds into Rollinsville

Celebrations were usually in order whenever a railroad built into an existing town, and the Denver and Rio Grande’s 1904 entry into Rollinsville, Colorado, was no exception. The arrival of a railroad meant prosperity for a frontier town, and it meant another measure of accomplishment for the railroaders. The Rio Grande’s work crew had built up through rugged Boulder Canyon, had fought snowstorms and snowdrifts, and had crossed the Continental Divide by tunneling under it. They overcame incredible difficulties, and they maintained their schedule while doing it. When they arrived in Rollinsville, they were ready to celebrate.

The last spike was scheduled to be driven on a Saturday evening, but when the Rio Grande crew learned that two barrels of whiskey were on hand and that twenty ladies of “assorted ages” had arrived from Denver, they got renewed energy and the work schedule was suddenly accelerated. With their renewed vigor, they hammered the last spike into place six hours early. Taking the town by surprise, the brass band hired for the occasion was not ready, the whiskey was locked up somewhere, and most of the town’s men were still at work in the mines. But the celebration began anyway, and it was a celebration to beat all celebrations.

Only three gallons of whiskey could be found, but that was enough until the two barrels could be located. The work crew lined up and politely passed the jugs from mouth to mouth, but the politeness didn’t last much longer than that. They broke into singing and dancing, speech-making and yelling. One of the crew, John Christiansen, wanted to do a parachute jump, so he climbed a 50 foot precipice behind the saloon and with a yell, leaped into the air. Although he was not critically injured, his fellow celebrants hauled him to Dr. Baughman’s in a wheelbarrow for temporary repairs. Every celebration needs explosions, so the work crew located the gunpowder supply, and in a couple of hours there was not an ounce left in town. Then someone thought of the gasoline, and in spite of its scarcity, two drums were set off with appropriate ceremony.

Darkness finally came, and fireworks from Denver were set off to finish the day. For fifteen minutes the air was filled with displays of all colors. But not very many of the work crew were in any condition to appreciate the sight.

The Denver Post summed up the celebration as follows: “The rails are laid and the casualties can be summed up as follows: One man in hospital. Eighty-seven men who should be there. All the liquor in town consumed. Not an ounce of powder to explode and probably all the gasoline gone up in smoke.” Rollinsville had had its celebration.

The big business of raising yucca

Hoven Riley spent ten years as a wildlife guide in Alaska. “I took people on an eight-hour tour, showed them grizzly bears, wolves, moose, elk and whatever else we were lucky enough to see, including the largest mountain in North America which is McKinley Peak.”

He returned home to some family land southwest of Fort Stockton and started raising yucca, something he got involved with while studying landscape architecture at the University of Arizona.

“I’ve always had a passion for yucca,” he says. “I remember going out with my brother and digging up a yucca that we used as a Christmas tree one year when the family was short on money. Then we dug up some more and I just fell in love with yucca.”

He searched and found a good strain of yucca in Mexico and started planting seeds. They’re smaller than watermelon seeds.

“This is the yucca rostrata and it takes about eight years from the time you plant the seed until harvest.”

In 2003 he planted 10,000 seeds. Then he panted 20,000 more. He took me to his yucca field and we looked over his single largest planting of 25,000 seeds. Hoven has had a wholesale yucca business for years.

“Our customers are nurseries and landscapers. They come in with big semi trucks and I load them up and send them out. I’ve rigged up a loading area to make it easy to put the yucca plants into the trailers. I’ll do that all summer long and into the fall. November is usually when I stop harvesting the yucca.”

He has just started selling yucca online to the general public through his business, The Big Bend Yucca Company.

stories of texas
by tumbleweed smith

“I will be shipping directly to customers, something I could never imagine, putting a full grown yucca in a box and mailing it. Crazy. People buy them, of course for landscaping purposes. They are planting them in Chicago now, up in New Jersey, over in Seattle. I was in Miami recently and what do I see decorating the driveway to the hotel? Yucca. They were eight feet tall and beautiful.”

The leaves on his yucca plants are soft and flexible. No upward pointing sword-like leaves. He says yucca is low maintenance.

“This plant, which is native to the Chihuahuan Desert, can actually handle a temperature down to a negative 20. Of course they’re heat and drought tolerant and require little water. They have a blossom that is absolutely stunning. It’s a real show-stopper.” Hoven has a herd of mule deer that helps with weed control.

Staying busy and having fun

Recently my life has been very busy, and I just wanted to talk about some of the things I had been doing over the last couple of months.

For starters I've been playing a couple of sports, including tennis, golf, and track. Those have taken up a lot of my time with my favorite being golf. It was the hardest to learn, but it was the most fun to play, and I was able to make a huge improvement from the end of the year.

Another thing I have been doing is UIL. I was on the mathematics team, the Science team, and I was an alternate for Number Sense. We got to move on in Science and Number Sense, and I'm very excited for regionals, the cub reporter

by benjamin estlack

and I hope that we are able to make it to state.

The next thing I did was go to a press convention where my Dad was entered into the Hall of Fame of the Panhandle Press Association.

And finally, the last thing I did was volunteer at the annual Chance Mark Jones 5K. I got to help set up all the water stations, and I ended up working one of them.

In all, it has been an amazing last couple of months.

Area Tourism Council to hold lunche & learn

The Donley County Area Tourism Council will hold a Lunch & Learn tourism meeting at noon on Thursday, April 14, at the Burton Memorial Library. Bring your lunch and share ideas for marketing the area.

Howardwick VFD to hold Easter Egg Hunt

The City of Howardwick Volunteer Fire Department will hold a Easter Egg Hunt at McMorries Park this Saturday at 3 p.m.

Peter Cottontail will make an appearance, and one golden egg will be up for grabs and stuffed with two pounds of chocolate!

Meals will also be available for purchase for $5 each, your choice of Sheppard's pie, green chili stew and cornbread, or pulled pork sandwiches.

Blood supply falls below 50 percent

Coffee Memorial Blood Center has less than half of the blood supply needed, threatening a critical blood shortage for local patients, and creating an immediate need for blood donors.

The national blood supply has stayed near emergency levels for months, having never recovered from COVID-related challenges. The High Plains region's supply has faced similar challenges, as well as blood drive cancellations after multiple winter weather events in February and March. Hospital demand has surged past pre-pandemic levels, exacerbating the issues caused by lower donation levels.

In response to the current situation, Coffee Memorial Blood Center has extended its donor room hours to expand giving opportunities: Monday – Friday: 7:30 a.m. – 6:00 p.m. and Saturday: 7:30 – 4:00 p.m.

The Clarendon Lions Club held its regular Tuesday noon meeting April 12, 2022, with Boss Lion Landon Lambert in charge.

We had 15 members, Sweetheart Darcy Grahn, and one guest this week – Ben Estlack, guest of Lion Roger Estlack.

The Boss Lion reported on the success of the tenth annual Chance Mark Jones 5K and pairing it with the Pony Parents' community egg hunt. He encouraged the club to continue to find ways to partner with other organizations to serve the community.

Lion Scarlet Estlack reported on the college, which will hold an egg hunt for college students this week, and Lion Richard Green also reported on an egg hunt at 3 p.m. this Saturday in Howardwick at McMorries Memorial Park.

Sweetheart Darcy reported on high school activities, and Lion David Dockery reported on the city, which will issue several proclamations at this week's council meeting.

The Boss Lion reported the courthouse repairs are about 99 percent done. He also discussed upcoming Lions events, including the district convention in Canyon next weekend and the international convention in Montreal in June. The Boss Lion along with Lions Roger and Ashlee Estlack will be our district delegates, and Lion Ashlee will be our representative to the international convention.

Lion Mary Green reminded everyone of our upcoming Severe Weather Presentation next Thursday, April 21, at 6:30 at the Mulkey Theatre featuring meteorologist Steve Kersh.

Lion Ashlee also discussed having a float in the Saints' Roost Celebration parade on July 2 to mark our club's 100th anniversary, and the Boss Lion decreed that we will in fact have a float.

With no further business, we were adjourned.

English is named JV District Champion

Twelve Bronco and Lady Broncos competed in the District Tennis meet in Amarillo on March 28. The varsity players played the best of three out of six games in their divisions, and it was a single elimination tournament.

Avery English competed for the junior varsity and claimed the District Championship in girl’s singles. English defeated Tow of Panhandle 6-3, 6-4 before edging out Neuwirth of Panhandle 8-5. She then went head-to-head with Bixby of Panhandle 8-1.

Ben Estlack played varsity for the first time and lost to Robinson of Memphis, who went on to finish second in men’s singles, at 0-6, 0-6. Cate Word went up against Kane of Wellington, who also finished second in her division, and lost 0-6, 0-6. Laney Rummel played a very long hard-fought match against Ford of Panhandle and lost the first game 2-6, won the second game 6-4, and was defeated in the third game at 0-6. “She (Rummel) played as well as she could after turning her ankle in the second game,” coach Carrie Hicks-Linquist said.

Courtlyn Conkin and Anthony Cenicerros played in the mixed double division for the first time and lost to Harding/Miller of Panhandle 3-6, 1-6. The Panhandle pair went on to win the District Championship.

Several JV players did well in the meet. Gracie Wilkins played Bixby of Panhandle and lost 1-8. Daniel Estlack won second place in District in the men’s singles by defeating Espinoza of Memphis in the first round 8-4. He won his second match against Clarendon’s Koltyn Shields 8-2 and then lost to Roland of Wellington in the championship game at 2-8. Joe Gonzales played Roland of Wellington and lost 3-8.

Lauren Cenicerros and Sidda Thomas played in the girl’s doubles in a round robin with two other teams. They lost the first round 4-8 against Pierson/Lopez of Memphis 4-8 and then lost to Torres/Mespinoza of Memphis 3-8. “I am very proud of all of these athletes,” Hicks-Linquist said. “I can see a lot of potential in each of them. They gave it their all and everyone improved during their short tennis season. I can’t wait to see what they do next year.”
