School safety to be state priority, King says

State Rep. Ken King

Public education took center-stage when State Rep. Ken King (R-Canadian) addressed constituents at the Bairfield Activity Center last Wednesday, November 2.

King briefly discussed the new boundaries of his House District 88 before getting into what he would be the two biggest priorities of the Legislature when it convenes in January - balancing the state budget and funding public schools.

"There's a $26 billion surplus, and everyone has an idea how to spend it," King said.

Education takes up about 70 percent of the state budget, and King said school safety will be a top priority following the shooting in Uvalde earlier this year.

King sees three main factors with school safety - Hardening schools but with local control, mental health, and funding.

"I'm not for unfunded mandates," King said. "If we're going to tell you what you have to do, we need to provide the money for it."

King also says the state needs to address truancy and believes truancy laws will be reinstated.

Schools will likely see their base funding allotments increase to help offset inflation, the representative said, virtual education, special education, and community college funding will all receive attention by the Legislature. Virtual education will become more important as the teacher shortage grows.

Moving to other issues, King said property tax reform needs to pay attention to appraisals.

"If you want true property tax reform, you have to appraise differently," he said.

Beyond taxes, King sees the upcoming year as a "infrastructure session."

"We ran the Republican gamut last time on social issues," he said. "Now it's time to do something for the state. Let's fix things that need fixing."

Rural broadband will be an important issue, King said, and the state can reap the rewards of using state funds to leverage federal money. Results will take time, but King likened it to planting a tree that provides shade in the future.

"I think you're going to see billions of dollars to bring broadband infrastructure to places like Donley County, but it's a ten-year plan," King said. "Does it solve your immediate need? No, but we have to start somewhere."

Answering questions about public education and community college funding, King gave his support to local authorities and also advocates giving support to teachers.

"We can't let the inmates run the asylum," he said

He also said he believes teachers who carry weapons should receive a significant stipend and also should have required continuing education not just on using that weapon but for mental health issues related to possibly using that weapon against a student.

Broncos head to playoffs

Clarendon's Lyric Smith handles back-up quarterback duties during last week's loss to the Wellington Skyrockets. The Broncos will take on Gruver for the Bi-District title this Thursday, November 10, in Amarillo at Dick Bivins Stadium. See page six for more game details.

Political trends come around time after time

An article came out this week from conservative writer George Will in the Washington Post that called for President Joe Biden and V.P. Kamala Harris not to run in the next presidential election. Will, who has opposed Trump from the beginning, basically said that the Republicans might make the mistake of running a man who has proven to be unequalled for the highest office and the Democrats need to protect the nation and not follow suit. Will, who voted for Biden in 2020, believes Biden is too old as seen in recent gaffs. It seems odd to not nominate a sitting president and Americans have become used to most of our presidents serving a full eight years. Only once in the 20th or 21st centuries has a party not nominated a sitting president and over the past forty-two years only two presidents have served only one term. Yet there was a time in our history when this was quite common. A time when the nation experienced a string of subpar presidents and went for twenty-four years without having a two-term president or even nominating a sitting president.

Looking back at presidents, you can see times when parties had long runs in power. Thomas Jefferson's Democratic Republicans basically held power from 1800 to 1828, a twenty-eight-year run. The Republicans then held the White House, with only two interruptions from 1860 to 1932, a seventy-two-year run. Democrats came back with their own run and only one interruption from 1932 to 1968, a thirty-six-year run. It gets harder to tell after that. There could be a mini-run of Republicans from 1968 to 2008, a forty-year run with two interruptions, or maybe Clinton started a Democratic run in 1992 till today, a thirty-year run with two interruptions. The other possibility is that we are mimicking the one time we skipped when there were no runs. The parties went back and forth. The time between Andrew Jackson and Abraham Lincoln, 1836 to 1860, when only one sitting president was renominated and there were no two-term presidents.

This time period started off with the one president that was renominated. Martin Van Buren won as a Democratic in 1836 but his presidency fell into shambles the following year with the Panic of 1837, one of the largest depressions in American history. The same holds true in 1837 as it does today. Americans vote first with their wallets. Van Buren did get the Democratic nod in 1840, but Americans blamed him for their economic woes and voted in the Whig, William Henry Harrison, good old Tippecanoe and his VP Tyler too. Harrison gave a long-winded inaugural speech in the cold, got sick and died a month later. It was no longer "Tyler too," but now Tyler alone. He really was alone. He had been a Democrat his entire life but had switched to the Whigs to balance the ticket. He was never supposed to be president and was shunned by both parties. When his term ended, he threw a party and announced to the crowd, "They cannot say now that I am a president without a party." Clearly the Whigs had no interest in him running for a second term.

In 1844 both parties ran new candidates. The Whigs ran their founder and champion Henry Clay, while the Democrats ran an up-and-comer who most reminded them of Andrew Jackson, James K. Polk. Being from Tennessee, Polk even borrowed Jackson's nickname and was known as "Young Hickory." Polk was responsible for arguably the most controversial war in American history, the Mexican War, one that divided the nation along section lines. His presidency was so stressful that he decided to not run again for health reason. It was a good thing, too, or else he would have been the second president to die in office as he did pass about a year after he left the White House.

In 1848 both parties ran new candidates once again. Whigs went with their favorite tactic of running a war hero, and after the Mexican War there was none bigger than Zachary Taylor. Democrats, trying to continue to keep the ghost of Jackson alive, ran his Secretary of War, Lewis Cass. Even Jackson's spirit could not help Cass, who lost to the very charismatic and popular Taylor. However, the Whigs retained their bad luck when, as with their last president, Taylor died, leaving the Whigs with the not as charismatic or popular Millard Fillmore.

Not impressed with the Fillmore presidency, the Whigs continued their trend and nominated the second most famous general of the Mexican War, Winfield Scott in 1852. The Democrats also ran a new name with Franklin Pierce, who won the day. Pierce got caught up in the Bleeding Kansas debacle and might as well have been radioactive in the 1856 election, the way the Democratic Party threw him under the bus. The party picked the least controversial candidate they could find, and it turned out to be possibly the worst American president, James Buchanan. As there was no Whig party to speak of, two other parties ran candidates. The Know Nothings, trying to get Whig votes, dug up and ran the corps of Fillmore, while the brand-new Republican party ran John C. Fremont. The Republicans had enough Whigs in the party to nominate a military hero. No surprise Buchanan won, being from really the only major party in the race although he would go on to do nothing but watch the nation crumble into Civil War.

What we can learn from this is that, if the pattern holds and if Biden decides not to run, the Republicans will take over. We can also see this as a warning. The years between 1836 and 1860 are some of the most turbulent years in our history. It was during those years that things were becoming so divisive that it led to Civil War. I can't say whether it was poor leadership that led to war or that even the best of our presidents could not have held us together during those years. However, I am leaning on the side of poor leadership. That means it's up to us now to choose leaders who can properly steer our ship of state and honestly try to unite us instead of playing politics. I am not saying that this is easy. Clearly, the last two presidents have failed, and I have no idea what candidate can truly bridge the divide. All I know is I hope we can find one soon and not suffer the same fate as they did the last time we saw this trend.

Barziza had a noteworthy name

Decimus et Ultimus Barziza was as noteworthy as his name.

It may be thought that Decimus et Ultimus was a rather unusual name to give to anyone. Having already used up all their fine Italian family names, Ignatius Barziza and his wife were at a loss as to what to name their newborn son. After listening to Ignatius lamenting his plight, a friend asked, "How many have you had already?"

"Nine."

"Is this a boy or a girl?"

"Boy."

"Then, damn it all, Barziza, name him Decimus et Ultimus, and make it so!"

And so it was done.

Descended from Italian and Virginian aristocracy, Decimus had an impressive ancestral heritage. The surname, Barziza, derives from Venetian aristocracy. On his mother's side, England's Samuel Boswell and Ben Johnson were close friends of earlier generations, and in America, Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin were among friends of later generations. George Washington, Light Horse Harry Lee, the Byrds, and the Burrs were Virginian relatives.

After graduating from William and Mary College in Williamsburg, Virginia, in 1857, Decimus et Ultimus (Tenth and Last) migrated to Texas where, despite his name, he became a leading and influential citizen. Decimus fought as a Confederate soldier in the Civil War and rose to the rank of captain in Hood's Brigade. Wounded at Manassas and again at Gettysburg, Decimus was captured by the Union forces at Gettysburg and dispatched to a prison camp aboard a train loaded with prisoners. Jumping from the window of the moving train, he made his way to Canada, to Nova Scotia, to Bermuda, and finally back to Texas where he was received as a hero.

Back in Texas, Decimus obtained a law degree at Baylor University and then went into politics. Becoming a leader in the Texas Democratic Party, he was elected to the state legislature from Harris County, and he played a major role in resolving the Coke-Davis gubernatorial dispute in 1874.

Richard Coke had been elected governor of Texas, but the incumbent Governor, Edmund J. Davis, refused to acknowledge the validity of the election and refused to vacate the governor's office. Barricaded with armed guards on the lower floor of the capitol building, Davis was unapproachable. Decimus managed to establish communications with Davis and convinced Davis to let Decimus and a committee examine the election returns. The examination revealed Coke to be the true winner, and a joint session of the House and Senate met that afternoon and inaugurated Coke.

Decimus also led a minority movement to block a bill granting an illegal extension of time to the Texas and Pacific Railroad for complying with the requirements for a land grant. Speaking against the bill on the floor of the House, Decimus vowed to block the vote by continuing to speak until adjournment time. Being forced by the sergeant-at-

tales of the old west

arms to resume his seat, Decimus and others resigned from the Legislature. Leaving politics, Decimus began the practice of law.

Eloquent at pleading cases, Decimus became in great demand as a criminal lawyer. According to his nephew, Phillip Dorsey Barziza, "Uncle Dessie" was so eloquent and convincing in one case that the prosecutor withdrew, and the jury acquitted the accused without even leaving the jury box.

It was customary for the lawyers to gather at a bar or in a private home following the trials to celebrate their victories or drown their sorrows if defeated. Decimus participated in these gatherings with enthusiasm, and his wife frequently resorted to sending young Phillip as the only means of getting him to come home. Phillip would come in and say, "Uncle Dessie, it is time to go home." The invariable reply would be, "All right, little man, let's go."

Decimus et Ultimus died at his home in Houston in 1882 at the age of forty-three following a lingering illness. On his headstone in Glenwood Cemetery is the following inscription: "Although his career was brief, he was distinguished among his fellow men as a gallant soldier, a wise legislator, and a brilliant and learned lawyer. He possessed in the highest degree the grand qualities of human nature: Honor, Genius, and Enthusiasm." His portrait hangs in the Jury Assembly Room in the Harris County Civil Courts Building in Houston.

The fine art of buyer's remorse

Okay, I confess. I am – as many retailers know – a sucker of the first order. I've ignored pleas of loved ones and friends warning me about buying items at greatly reduced prices.

I want to do better but can't help it if adrenaline jumps into overdrive upon my noticing signs like "drastically reduced" or "75 percent off." You get the idea.

Someone said there are only two kinds of people – those who are impulse buyers and admit it, and those who are impulse buyers and deny it. Those balking at such a suggestion would rather endure Chinese water tortures than admit they are easy prey for stores' "come-ons." I've been a member of this group for some 70 years....

Again, I apologize for citing personal experiences, but they're the only kind I've had. Persons gray of head and/or long of tooth remember that in the early 50s, a movie about Davy Crockett ("King of the Wild Frontier") was a box office sensation. Crockett items soon were finishing second only to hot cake sales.

I'd seen the Crockett coonskin caps, but balked at plunking down $1.98 for one. I didn't know the Crockett mystique was soon to ebb, and during a visit to Fort Worth, found them on sales for 11 cents each at Leonard's Department Store.

I "closed them out," greatly denting a $5 bill for the three dozen caps in stock. My mind flooded with dollar marks as I thought of friends I figured would jump at the chance to purchase these items for 50 cents each. Why I'd have a profit of around $15, and bragging rights at Early High School. Alas, news of the Crockett bubble bursting reached our community before I returned from the city. I made zero sales, and during an attic-clearing session a few years ago, found a box full of coonskin caps. There were 35, but I really did enjoy wearing that 11-cent cap for a weekend....

the idle american
by don newbury

My wife has given me the stern look, reinforced with "when-are-you-ever-going-to-learn" mutterings. After 56 years of marriage, she is convinced that it will never happen in my lifetime. I lean on the "I-just-can't-help-myself" excuse, realizing that it is a mere "bleep" in a world where many stronger sounds abound.

I will spare you details of dozens of other lousy purchasing decisions. One made this very day, though, is worth mentioning, since I came out on top! Upon entering our Sam's store, a huge display within 20 feet of the entrance beckoned. Thereon were stacks of machines with suggested retail prices of $49.95 each, but for one day only, were offered for $12.95. The guy in front of me bought six.

I didn't want to make him look like a piker, so I bought just four. Not until arrival at home did I read the fine print about the magical machines. About all I knew was what I'd heard, something about the machines being worth the price if only for the "white noise" that helps many of us sleep....

I wasn't really prepared when Brenda asked, "What are these?"

Stammering, I mentioned how throngs at Sam's bragged about the magical machine. She wasn't buying that, proceeding to dismember me by reading the small print loud enough that passersby could easily hear. She said that we already have four white-sound machines.

The literature claimed the light rays greatly enhance yoga exercises. That was all I needed to hear. I returned to Sam's, explaining that I don't do yoga, and wasn't interested in a contraption whose white-noise feature might be trumped by yoga-enhancing lights....

Sam's purchasing agent must be catching "what for." He (she?) may have bought a train load of these machines, never thinking that white sound for sleeping and fancy lights for yoga exercises might be a lousy combination.

I suspect he (she?) may be named Walton, or once was.

Whatever, I'm going to try to do better....

An old-west shootout in Mobeetie

On January 24, 1876, 23-year-old Bat Masterson was playing a poker game in the Lady Gay Saloon in Mobeetie, known then as Sweetwater. Before he was the famous Dodge City lawman, Bat was a buffalo hunter and army scout for Col. Nelson A. Miles during the Red River War. Masterson was also present at the Second Battle of Adobe Walls in 1874.

Playing poker with Masterson, was a 4th Cavalry soldier stationed at Fort Elliott. His name was Corporal Melvin A. King. Masterson was winning big in the poker game, and the drunken, fed-up King angrily marched out of the saloon.

Later that evening, Bat was conversing with a saloon girl named Mollie Brennan.

Brennan had worked for a time with Kate Elder (a.k.a. "Big Nose Kate"), the mistress of Doc Holliday.

Suddenly, as Bat and Mollie were talking, Corporal King burst into the saloon and opened fire with a .45 revolver towards Bat's direction. Bat was struck in the abdomen, right before Mollie Brennan jumped in front of him. King fired a slug into Mollie, apparently by accident, and she fell to the floor.

The shot had knocked Masterson a few feet backwards, and then he returned fire towards King. He shot King twice, and King died the next day. Poor Mollie Brennan lay dead on the floor.

Bat was taken to the Fort hospital where the doctor, by his own

The Buffalo's Beard
by caylor monroe

account, said he saw Bat's intestines through the open wound, and that if he had eaten anything prior to the gunfight, he would not have survived.

It's unclear why Corporal King shot Bat Masterson. Some say he was angry at Bat's poker game success, and others say he was sweet on Mollie, and grew jealous of Bat. King was well known for being cantankerous and rowdy. Bat escaped prosecution, because he acted in self-defense. Bat Masterson had a limp for the rest of his life, and always carried a cane with him. Hence was born his nickname, "Bat," because he used his cane as a lawman to whack drunken, unruly troublemakers.

Mollie Brennan was buried in a spot outside of town that would become the Mobeetie Cemetery. You can visit her grave there today.

Water well screening to be held next week

Texas Well Owner Network (TWON) is hosting an educational meeting on Tuesday, November 15, from 4:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. in the Windmill Room at the Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District Office, 203 West Third in White Deer.

In addition to the educational training, landowners will have the opportunity to get their wells tested for a small fee.

TWON is an educational training for Texas residents who depend on household wells for their water needs. TWON is for private well owners who want to become familiar with groundwater resources, septic system maintenance, well maintenance, water quality and water treatment. This training is free to anyone who wants to participate.

Well owners may pick up sample containers with instructions at any of the following locations: Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District Office, 203 W Third St. in White Deer; Potter County Extension Office, 2201 SE 10th Ave, Building 1 in Amarillo; Armstrong County Extension Office, 100 Trice Street in Claude; Carson County Extension Office, 501 Main St. in Panhandle or Donley County Extension Office, 4430 Highway 70 North in Clarendon. Well owners may bring their water samples the day prior to the event (Monday, November 14) to be screened for nitrate-nitrogen, total dissolved solids (TDS), arsenic and E. coli bacteria, to any location mentioned above and between the times of 8:30 a.m. and 10:00 a.m. The cost per sample is $15.

"The District is thankful to participate in such an important event," Said General Manager, Britney Britten. "We hope this is a great opportunity for our constituents to have their domestic water wells screened."

Master Marketer Program returns to Vernon Jan. 24

The Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service Master Marketer Program returns to Vernon for the sixth time in 2023, offering both in-person and virtual attendance options Jan. 24-March 9.

Sessions will be Jan. 24-26, Feb. 8-9, Feb. 22-23 and March 8-9. The in-person program will be at the Wilbarger County Auditorium, 2100 Yamparika St.

Registration is now open, and space is limited to the first 50 people to register, said Mark Welch, Ph.D., AgriLife Extension economist in the Texas A&M Department of Agricultural Economics, Bryan-College Station. Welch is both a program presenter and coordinator.

The cost is $350 for both in-person and virtual participation. For in-person participants, the cost includes noon meals and educational materials.

For more detailed program information and to register, go to <https://tx.ag/mastermarketer2023>.

Most of the major presentations will be offered to those attending virtually, but not all, Welch said. Instructions for online attendance will be emailed in advance on how to access the virtual program.

Master Marketer is a comprehensive risk management program for decision makers of farms, ranches and affiliated agribusinesses. The risk topics covered are production, price and marketing, financial, legal, and human — employment issues and mental health.

"We've held 33 Master Marketer programs since 1996, and our participant evaluations continuously tell us this training helps them improve their bottom line, averaging 4.5% and $35,000 per producer per year," Welch said.

"That increase is basically due to a greater understanding and use of marketing concepts, including budget analysis, developing a marketing plan, general risk management, and crop and livestock marketing strategies," he said.

Welch said one participant wrote: "Master Marketer is the best program I've ever been to. Would highly recommend it to any farmer/rancher. I plan to attend again in the future." And another evaluation stated: "Great timing of the class for the beginning of the farm year. Thank you for applying market year current information into the program."

Funding has been provided by AgriLife Extension, the U.S. Department of Agriculture Southern Risk Management Education Center, Cotton Inc. Texas State Support Committee, Texas Farm Bureau, Texas Grain Sorghum Producers and the Texas Wheat Producers Board.

For more information, contact Welch at 979-845-8011 or jmwelch@tamu.edu, or Pancho Abello, AgriLife Extension economist in Vernon, at fjabello@tamu.edu or 940-647-3908.

Broncos claim District runner-up spot

By Sandy Anderberg

The Broncos' final regular season game did not go as planned, but they were able to finish the season with only one district loss to Wellington 8-44 in the final game.

Claiming the runner-up spot, the Broncos will go into post-season play against the Gruver Greyhounds on Thursday, November 10, at Dick Biven's Stadium in Amarillo. Kick-off is at 7 p.m., and tickets will be sold at the gate.

Despite the loss, the Broncos had a great regular season going 8-3 overall and 5-1 in district and look to go deep in the playoffs. Regrouping and refocusing will be the goals of the Bronco practices until game day. They will continue to do what they have done in their wins and play solid football.

Senior standout Jmaury Davis scored the Broncos' lone touchdown and posted 22 yards on 12 carries. The Skyrockets were able to contain Davis and keep him from his usual yardage and several other players had to step in. Lyric Smith filled in for injured quarterback Harrison Howard and carried the ball 16 times for 86 yards.

Wilson Ward went 32 yards on seven carries, and Mason Sims ran the ball twice for 11 yards.

Defensively, the Broncos never gave up, but struggled to stop Wellington's offensive attack. Davis finished with 10 tackles, Josiah Hearn had seven, Sims posted six, and Jared Musick ended the game with five.

Mason Sims carries the ball for the Broncos last Friday night at home against Wellington.

Lady Broncos' season opens with loss

By Sandy Anderberg

The Lady Broncos traveled to Valley last weekend as they opened their 2022-23 basketball season with a 47-57 loss to the Lady Patriots.

A slow start for the Lady Broncos versus a stronger start for Valley put Clarendon in a tough spot to make up ground, fighting a 19-point deficit after the first quarter. They gave a great second-half surge but ran out of clock time to get the win.

"We had too many turnovers and very few defensive rebounds in the first half," coach Korey Conkin said. "But we played an amazing second half cutting it to an eight-point game with one minute left."

Down by 21 at the break, the Lady Broncos had to get down to business. Courtlyn Conkin stepped up and hit three three-pointers to take the momentum away from Valley and gain ground. Makenna Shadle also hit four of four free throws, and Baylee Gabel turned up the heat with one three and a couple of two-point field goals.

The ladies played stronger defense and were able to limit Valley's shots. Conkin and Gabel, along with relief from Kennadie Cummins and Kenidee Hayes, were able to shut down their scorers who had dominated the first half according to Conkin.

"We played a triangle and two the entire second half and wore them down while knocking down multiple 3's for a great second half comeback. We just needed more time," Conkin said

Overall, the Lady Broncos nailed six three-pointers and went 90 percent from the bonus line with Shadle making six out of six. The Lady Patriots only shot 71 percent from the free throw line but added 15 points to the score with the made shots.

Gabel led the way with 15, and Conkin and Shadle finished in double figures as well with 12 and 10 points. Finley Cunningham, K. Cummins, and Hayes added two each. Other members of the team are Tandie Cummins, Hayden Elam, Graci Smith, and Berkley Moore.

The ladies will travel to Childress November 12 and take on Dumas on Tuesday, November 15, in their home opener beginning at 6:00.

Dominating start gives Lady Bronco JV win number one

The Lady Bronco junior varsity made a great start in their 2022-23 season as they defeated Lady Patriots in Valley 47-15.

They will travel to Childress on Friday, November 12, and play at noon before playing at home on November 15 against Dumas.

The ladies blew out the Lady Patriots in the opening period to lead 20-0 with 20 points being the difference at the break. Gracie Clark went rogue in the first quarter to put in eight of her 10 points for the game. Presley Smith followed suit and added six points to pad the lead. Valley was helpless to stop the ladies as they completely controlled the momentum not only in the first half, but in the entire game.

"It was a good way to start the year," coach Kasey Bell said. "We will keep working on being more fundamentally sound."

Smith kept scoring throughout and was joined in the third quarter by solid shooting from Kashlyn Conkin, who hit two of her three three-pointers in the third period of play. Overall, three Lady Broncos finished in double figures.

Smith finished with 17 points, and Conkin and Clark had 10 points apiece. Kimbrasia Ballard added eight, and Madi Benson had two. Trystan Brown is also on the team.

Colts wrap up football for the year

The Clarendon Colts had an up and down year but made great progress from the start to finish.

They ended year season with a 0-52 loss to Wellington.

It was not the way they wanted the season to end, but they should be encouraged by the improvement that was made. Coach Boston Hudson felt the guys had a good year.

"We took a tough loss to a really good Wellington 8th grade team," he said. "I'm proud of the way our kids competed this year, and (I am) looking forward to see what this group can do in the future."

Girl Scouts & Guides In Action!

Have you ever thought about joining a Girl Scout group? Millions of girls and women across the world gather to have meetings, plan their schedules and then spring into action! Girl Scouts can work in groups to help their communities and take part in fun activities. They also can choose areas of interest of their own and work by themselves to build skills and earn badges. Some of the scouts I know are interested in the fields of science, technology and engineering. They are designing or programming robots. I like to learn about and cook up dishes from around the world. There's something for everyone.

Read the clues to learn about the Girl Scouts and to fill in the puzzle:

1. in Savannah, Georgia in 1912, Juliette "Daisy" Gordon Low held the first meeting (18 girls) of what would become the Girl _____ of the USA
2. in the U.S. there are over one _____ members (including adults); worldwide there are 10 million girls and adults in 152 countries
3. _____ are grouped by grade: Daisies (K-1), Brownies (2-3), Juniors (4-5), Cadettes (6-8) Seniors (9-10), Ambassadors (11-12)
4. they meet in groups at schools, churches and homes and are led by adult scout leaders who help them _____ what they want to do
5. Girl Scouts keep learning and doing; they earn _____ of their choice
6. they learn about _____ and wildlife while having fun - hiking, camping
7. they gain _____ skills by selling cookies and earning money
8. they take field trips to visit places and mingle with _____ everywhere
9. Girl Scouts try to be honest, friendly, caring, _____ and respectful...
10. they learn _____ tips, how to live well, and even learn some first aid
11. _____ service projects, like food drives, are high on their lists
12. Girl Scouts work to "...make the _____ a better place"

The Clarendon Lions Club held its regular Tuesday noon meeting November 8, 2022, with Boss Lion Landon Lambert in charge.

We had 15 members and Sweetheart Laney Gates present this week. Sweetheart Laney reported on the FFA fall contest held at Clarendon High School this week and said the Broncos will take on Gruver this week in Amarillo.

Lion Scarlet Estlack said the college is on week 13 and basketball is getting started. She also reported that six Boy Scouts will be having their Boards of Review this Sunday as they finish up their Eagle requirements.

Lion Jacob Fangman reported on the city, which will have a routine meeting this Thursday at 6:30 p.m. He also said St. Mary's is serving enchiladas this Sunday.

The Boss Lion encouraged everyone to do some research and go vote. Plans were made to set flags out this Friday for Veterans Day, and Lions and Scouts will also be picking up flags at the cemetery next Tuesday at 5 p.m.

Lion Anndria Newhouse reported on the Pancake Supper. A shout-out was given to Lion Angela Blais for her hard work on that project. Donation boxes were prepared for the Toys for Joy project and are available at Lowe's, the Visitor Center, the Enterprise, and the CISD Administration Building.

DG Roger Estlack reported on the second Council of Governors meeting last weekend in New Braunfels.

With no further business, we were adjourned to spread Lionism throughout our fair county.
