The Bloodmobile will be there, and appointments can be scheduled by calling 877-340-8777 or by visiting obi.org.

Fund established to help Cooper family

A fund has been established at the Donley County State Bank to receive donations to help the family of Coy Cooper as he battles cancer.

Plans are also in place for a Bake Sale to be held March 17 from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. at the Burton Memorial Library with the proceeds going to help the Cooper family.

Motor vehicle office adopts new hours

The Donley County Tax Assessor-Collector's motor vehicle office has new temporary office hours. The office is open Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday from 8 a.m. to noon and 1:00 to 4:45 and Thursday and Friday from 8 a.m. to noon.

The new hours help accommodate an employee's recovery from surgery, and regular office hours will be resumed in the near future.

Tree sales underway

The Donley County Soil & Water Conservation District is taking orders for its spring tree sales now through March 25.

A variety of shrubs, trees, and ornamental grasses are being offered. Order forms are available at the USDA offices at Fourth and Sully. Those interested may stop by or call Mona at 806-874-3561 or 817-648-8351.

Federal disaster aid now available here

Agriculture producers in Donley County may be eligible for federal disaster emergency loans following a designation announced last week.

Emergency loans can be used to meet various recovery needs including the replacement of essential items such as equipment or livestock, reorganization of a farming operation or the refinancing of certain debts.

Ninety-two counties are eligible due to excessive heat that occurred from May 1 through September 30, 2022, including Armstrong, Briscoe, Carson, Gray, and Childress. Donley and Hall counties are eligible as designated contiguous counties.

The application deadline is September 13, 2023. To file a Notice of Loss or to ask questions about available programs, contact the local USDA Service Center.

Vandals hit Prospect Park

Sections of rock wall terraces in Clarendon's Prospect Park were in ruins last week after vandals left their park on the landmark. City Administrator David Dockery said the city is still looking for information about who might have done the damage to the structures, which were built of native stone in the 1930s as a Civilian Conservation Corps project. City seeks lifeguards, administrator

The City of Clarendon is looking for a few good people to fill several positions.

The Clarendon Aquatic Center is just a few weeks away from opening for the 2023 season, but City Administrator David Dockery says more employees are needed before the Memorial Day weekend opening.

Applications are being accepted at City Hall for the position of pool manager and for several lifeguard jobs.

"We need at least four or five more lifeguards," Dockery said Tuesday.

Anyone ages 16 and older can apply for a lifeguard position, and they must take training to become certified.

City Hall also was informed Monday that its final candidate for the city administrator's position had withdrawn his name from consideration.

Fred Ventresco, Town Administrator at Pine Tops, North Carolina, had told the city council he was applying in other locations during a virtual interview held on February 2. After the council released the other two final candidates from the search two weeks ago, Ventresco was scheduled to travel to Clarendon this week to tour the town and meet with officials in person.

Dockery said the city assumes Ventresco accepted a position elsewhere.

The council will meet this Thursday evening for its regular meeting and discuss the next steps in finding a successor for Dockery, who announced a year ago his intention to retire this April. Dockery will now stay on the job for a while longer.

CEDC members attend Retail Academy

Three members of the Clarendon Economic Development Corporation board attended two days of workshops in San Antonio last week to learn more about recruiting new retail businesses to the community.

The Texas Rural Retail Academy was held at the downtown campus of the University of Texas at San Antonio (UTSA) on March 1 and 2. Hosted by the UTSA Institute for Economic Development and Retail Strategies, leaders from six Texas communities were selected to attend the program.

Participating communities include Breckenridge, Clarendon, Eastland, Haskell, Poteet, and Vernon. Representing the CEDC were Roger Estlack, Chuck Robertson, and Taylor Shelton.

"Texas communities need additional support and resources now more than ever coming out of the pandemic," said Matthew Jackson, Director of the Texas Rural Retail Academy program at the UTSA Institute for Economic Development. "Retail Academy will be instrumental in providing the critical tools to our communities to help boost retail and bolster small businesses."

Last week's program was UTSA's second Texas Rural Retail Academy and participating communities received invaluable data on consumers in their community and education on retail and real estate. Each community came away with a strategic retail economic development plan and the skills needed to execute that plan, Jackson said.

Developed by Retail Strategies, Retail Academy educates communities nationwide on best practices to attract new retail and restaurants while providing resources to support and grow existing local businesses. The UTSA Texas Rural Retail Academy program is funded in part through a Rural Business Development grant awarded to UTSA from the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA).

"We are proud to bring the Retail Academy program to Texas communities again, with help from the UTSA Institute for Economic Development and the USDA," said Madeline Farr, Director of Retail Academy.

"The business-friendly climate in Texas is extremely helpful for the communities that attend our program. The growth in the state is reaching these rural markets and with retailers evolving expansion plans, a lot of those brands look at secondary and tertiary markets. We are giving community leaders the tools they need to capitalize on that growth, Farr said.

CC planning second annual day of service

Clarendon College will host its second annual community service day on Wednesday March 22, 2023, following last year's event.

CC students, faculty, and staff in Clarendon, Childress, Pampa, and Amarillo will participate in the annual community service day. This effort began in 2022 with the desire for the college to show its appreciation for the communities it serves. Multiple volunteer endeavors will be underway in all four cities.

CC President Tex Buckhaults noted that it is important for students to learn the responsibility of being part of a community by giving back to the communities that support them, and also for them to see the support modeled by faculty and staff.

The college is grateful for the support of community members in Clarendon, Pampa, Childress, and Amarillo, and CC officials say hosting an annual community service day is but one small way to give back and show that appreciation.

For more information about Clarendon College or the day of service, call (806) 874-3571 or toll free at (800) 687-9737.

Two more running for Hedley city positions

Additional candidates for the Hedley City Council were announced last week after the Enterprise went to press.

Mayor Carrie Butler said two candidates had left their applications in a city drop box and the paperwork was not discovered until after the filing deadline. With the addition of those two new candidates, there are now six people running for three full terms on the council.

Aldermen Trisha Chambless, Alicia Hanes, and Jennifer Floyd are seeking re-election. Christine Coyle was previously announced as a challenger, and now Calvin Holland and Tanya White Gibson will also appear on the ballot.

Butler also said a special election will be held alongside May's regular election to fill two unexpired terms – those are seats belonging to Sandy Wilkinson, who resigned several months ago, and Danny Russell, whose resignation is scheduled to be voted on at the next regular Hedley city council meeting March 9.

Butler said the council last month appointed Clayton Beagle to Wilkinson's seat and that he will be a candidate in the special election.

CC chosen to participate in state grant

Clarendon College has been selected to participate in a new statewide economic mobility grant due to CC's outstanding accomplishments and dedication to student success.

The Talent Strong Texas Pathways is a $16 million five-year statewide economic mobility grant administered by the Texas Success Center is designed to increase the number of credentialed Texans prepared for high-demand careers that offer a living wage.

CC President Tex Buckhaults said Clarendon College is excited and honored to be a part of the Texas Pathways Grant.

The state's higher education strategic plan, "Building a Talent Strong Texas," targets expanding the attainment of valuable postsecondary credentials. The intent is to increase employment opportunities and income for individuals while creating a deeper talent pool for employers.

"Texas higher education has unique responsibilities and roles to play in what comes next, to expand opportunities for all Texans and ensure our economic competitiveness on a global scale," said Harrison Keller, Commissioner of the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board. "Now is the time to seize the vast, Texas-sized opportunities before us to achieve impact at scale and to dedicate ourselves to building a talent strong Texas."

The Texas Success Center, working with the state's community colleges, is supporting the scaling of inclusive talent pathways directing students through collaboratively designed programs beginning with short-term credentials and early workplace learning.

"Texas is very fortunate to have a set of funding partners willing to invest in the important work of the community colleges," said Dr. Cynthia Ferrell, Vice President of the Texas Success Center. "We are very impressed by the college's commitment to design and implement talent pathways. We are excited to work with Clarendon College as they continue to partner with local business and education leaders to provide valuable workforce and education opportunities."

The Record of the best area paper

Thursday, March 2, 2023 – the day the light went out in Canadian.

There wasn't a power failure or an eclipse or anything of the sort. No, it was a different kind of darkness that fell over the city. The light of truth and fairness and justice went out.

After 132 years, THE CANADIAN RECORD published its last issue. Well, "suspended publication" is the phrase that was used – holding out hope that the paper might yet have a rebirth. Still, the fact remains, Canadian is without a newspaper.

THE CANADIAN RECORD – for 75 years under the guidance of the Ezzell family – was the best weekly newspaper in the Panhandle. Period. Some might even say it was the best in Texas, and I wouldn't argue with them. It was the gold standard of community journalism doing all the things that a weekly newspaper does best – be a cheerleader for its town, holding elected officials accountable, and zealously reporting the local news from City Hall to the elementary school.

Laurie Ezzell Brown, who has published and edited the paper since her father passed away some 30 years ago, was and is a close friend of mine. We are two sides of the same coin. She is an unapologetic liberal Democrat and I'm a libertarian Reagan Republican. But we have always been united on the things that mattered – open government, transparency, and the public's right to know. I know a lot of small-town journalists, but Laurie Brown is the best. When I've had tough stories to cover, it was her who I would turn to for advice and counsel. And I could count on her to tell me what I needed to know, whether I was going to like it or not.

It was Laurie and her advertising manager Mary Smithee who I always looked forward to seeing at press conventions. Over the years, they became like extended family members. The newspaper family is like none other, bonding over getting the big scoop or swapping tales of crazy public meetings.

Just a couple of weeks ago, the Cub Reporter was in Canadian for a tennis match and the team went for a coffee. Brown Bag Roasters is run by Laurie's son and is right next door to the newspaper in Canadian. The RECORD staff saw Ben walk by, snatched him from the coffee shop, and pulled him into the newspaper to say hello and catch up with him. I think he was both startled and happy to see them.

Through good times and bad, Laurie Brown, like her father before her, bravely recorded the happenings in Canadian fairly and accurately. It was right there in black and white; and you didn't have to like it, but it was the truth. Some people can't handle the truth, and that can bring unwanted repercussions. Any good newspaper has had to deal with that, and the RECORD is certainly no different.

When Laurie wanted to share her personal thoughts, you could find those clearly labeled on page two of the RECORD in her "Field Notes" column. She wasn't afraid to let you know what she thought on the opinion page; but when you turned past page two, it was unbiased reporting, and the readers were given as much information as possible to make up their own minds.

Laurie has been trying to sell her paper for several years, but she did not want to sell to just anyone or to some group that would strip the RECORD of its soul for profit. The job of a community editor can wear on you, and it's worn on her to the point she can no longer do it. With no buyer, she reluctantly closed the doors.

The RECORD lives on for now as a social media and web presence, but it's not the same. It's not the same as having the paper – in either a physical or digital format – to record kids' latest school project, to celebrate the state championships, to uncover what's happening at City Hall, to hold commissioners' feet to the fire, or to rally the community around a worthwhile project.

Businesses in Canadian that have depended on the RECORD to help get their message to their customers will feel the newspaper's absence, and taxpayers, too, will be losers without a paper help them keep tabs on local governments.

What will become of the public notices that once were published in the RECORD? I suppose the city and the county and the school there will put those up on their websites when it's time to raise taxes or call for a bond election. The people of Canadian will just have to trust that their officials are telling them the truth, because there won't be a third party to verify anything. It will be the fox guarding the henhouse. What could go wrong?

At the ENTERPRISE, our hearts are broken both for the people of Canadian, for the RECORD staff, and for Laurie personally. We can only imagine what it must feel like to sign "30" to the newspaper itself and lay down the pen after decades of service. We will miss their influence and the constant push they gave us all to do better and be better. We are eternally grateful for the friendship, the example, and the high standards they shared with us. Thank you, our friends, for everything.

Love not bound by language barriers

Nicholas Basila Haley, a son of Lebanese parents, was a student at the University of Texas in Austin. He did not know a word of Arabic. Kawssar Marie Chammaa, a dark-haired Damascus girl, did not know a word of English.

But in 1971 when Kawssar made a visit to San Antonio, Nicholas was there, and they not only became acquainted, they fell instantly in love with each other.

"We did not speak, but we communicated," Nicholas later explained.

After visiting with Nicholas on several occasions, Kawssar returned home to Damascus, and the couple corresponded by mail. Writing in English, Nicholas had friends translate his letters into Arabic.

"Of course,"

Nicholas acknowledged, "I didn't have any idea of what they said after my friends translated them."

Kawssar had a similar problem.

Her letters, written in Arabic, had to be translated into English. But Syrian girls could not speak openly of love. She could not share her feelings even with her best friend who did the translating.

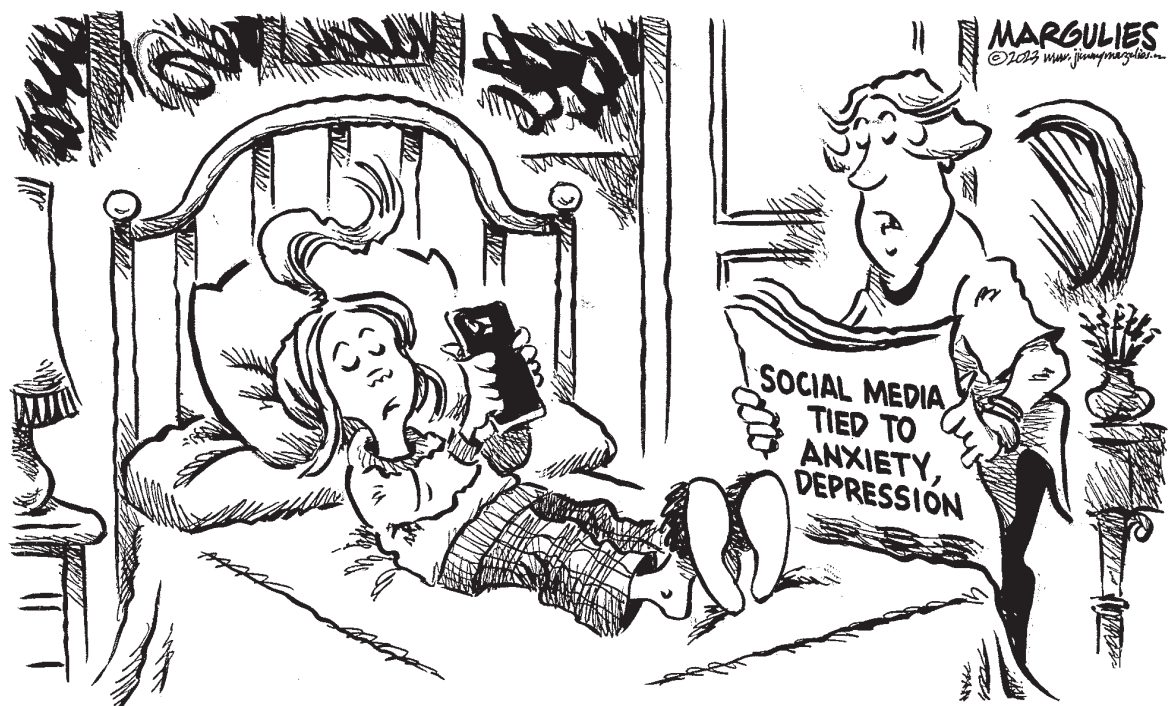

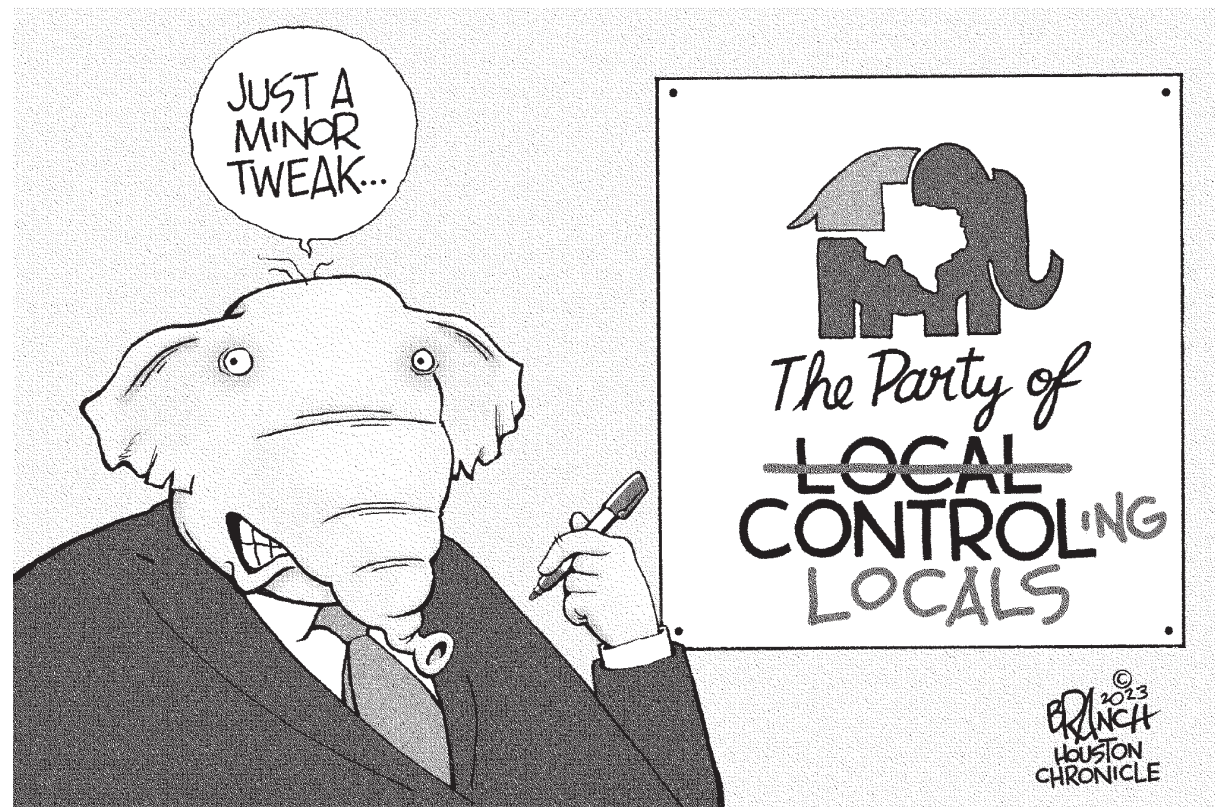

vignettes
tales of the old west
by george u. hubbard

So Kawssar's letters spoke only of day-to-day things.

The two lovers must have said the right things, however, for Kawssar returned to San Antonio the following year, and the two were married in the St. George Maronite Catholic Church. About 400 guests attended the ceremony which was performed both in English and in Arabic. The songs were sung in Aramaic. During the reception, the newly-weds simply looked at each other and smiled.

"In Damascus, we say love knows no language," Kawssar explained.

George U. Hubbard is an author and a former resident of Clarendon.

"What's the point of a mental health day from school, if you spend it on Facebook and Instagram?..."

Dean of track coaches runs life's race

To describe the workouts he directed as "grueling" might be an extreme understatement if the athletes who ran for late track coach J. H. (Cap) Shelton are consulted.

Known as the "dean of Texas track coaches," he served at Howard Payne University – his alma mater – for 49 years. He worked long hours daily in numerous faculty and administrative posts, but was always best known for coaching.

Pushing himself in a "can-'til-can't" approach to life perhaps explains his preference for distance runners. Not all track stars run fast, but he quickly identified the ones determined to run the longer races. His teams won 14 championships in the old Texas Conference, three in Lone Star and one national cross country championship....

One who "soaked up" his mentoring was Glenn Petty, former Athletic Director at Abilene Public Schools who died February 2 at the age of 82.

Like "Cap," he taught life first and sports second.

He, too, was a lifelong educator, as have been dozens of others who were track and field athletes at HPU....

Petty, a track star at Odessa High School, spent 42 years in education, including 26 in Abilene ISD, where he was Athletic Director for the last five years of his career.

Deeply admired at his points of service along the way – El Paso, Odessa, Big Spring, Odessa and Abilene ISDs – he was head track coach at Abilene Cooper, then HPU, before returning to Abilene as principal of Mann Middle School. He was twice named Texas

Regional Middle School Principal of the Year and was a member of the HPU Sports Hall of Fame.

Cheering him on were Sandie, his wife of 60 years, and children Glenda, Glenn Jr. and Christi, as well as four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren....

Probably the determination for which Glenn is remembered was noted during his freshman year.

Running on the HPU cross country team at the national championship race in Omaha, he and more than 130 other runners faced sub-freezing temperature and falling snow.

"We were about a mile into the four-mile race, and a runner next to Glenn somehow grazed Glenn's shoe, and it went flying," said Willie Myers, a senior teammate running slightly ahead....

He asked, "What do I do now?" Myers remembers. "I told him to stop, find the shoe and put it back on, but he would have none of it."

Sure enough, Glenn kept running, miraculously completing the hilly course, despite pain inflicted by acorns and other objects in the snow on his shoeless foot.

"I never saw a limb more swollen the next day, doubled in size," Myers recalls. The backstory headline captured the essence: "Snow Flies, Shoe Flies, He flies."....

He ran when races were measured by yards rather than meters, a U.S. change in the 1970s to conform with the rest of the world.

In 1960, Glenn ran the 880-yard event in 1:54.5, winning at the LSC track meet and becoming the first HPU athlete to win a conference running event as a freshman.

David Noble, himself an HPU alumnus and former track coach at HPU and Angelo State University, still considers the "change to meters" as a mistake which has set the sport back here....

Glenn loved students. He also had interests all over the board. He enjoyed golf, woodworking, reading and spending time with family and friends.

A conversationalist who knew about much, he'd look up (okay, Google) what he didn't know, then continue conversations. (One friend said he talked at 300 words a minute, with gusts to 350!)

He looked forward to overnight outings with college track buddies and spouses. They met annually – lately in Fredericksburg – for about the past 30 years....

His heart weakening, he remained an encourager to the end. I received his email a few days before his death. It urged me to "keep on keeping on."

Glenn contributed much and finished well.

This friend will be greatly missed....

The Clarendon Lions Club held its regular Tuesday noon meeting March 7, 2023, with Boss Lion Landon "El Jefe" Lambert in command.

We had 11 members present and five Lions attending virtually this week.

Lion Scarlet Estlack reported on the college where spring break is next week, the basketball teams have advanced to the regional tournament, and community service day is set for March 22.

Lion Jacob Fangman reported on the city and said the last candidate for city administrator has pulled out and that Lion David Dockery will stay in that position for a while longer. A fundraising bake sale will be held at the library on March 17 for Coy Cooper, whose wife works at City Hall. Lion Machiel Covey also reported that all city incumbents were signed up to run unopposed for reelection.

The Boss Lion reported the county is well, and DG Roger Estlack reported on the district queen contest. The club recognized Sweetheart Lancy Gates for doing so well in the Horse Judging at Houston.

The club discussed removing dead and dying trees in front of the Lions Hall, and plans were discussed for the college day of service on March 22; the community egg hunt, 5K, and fire department fundraiser on the April 1; and the district convention on April 22.

With no further business, we were adjourned to spread Lionism and good cheer throughout our fair county.

The Clarendon High School Bronco Band

Bronco Band wins plaque at contest

This last Tuesday, I went to contest for Concert and Sightreading with the band.

For the last couple of months, we have been working on perfecting our concert music and strengthening our sightreading abilities.

I really enjoy sightreading and for those of you who don't know, sightreading is when they give you a piece of music and you have to learn the entire piece in seven minutes, then play it for judges.

The judges score you on a scale of five to one with five being the worst and one being the best, that is also how they judge our concert music.

the cub reporter
by benjamin estlack

This is our first concert competition with our new band director, and we were very hopeful that we would do good.

We started out with concert band and scored a 1, 1, and a 2 which average out to a one. Then we went and did sightreading which we scored a 2, 2, and a 1 which averaged out to a 2.

We didn't make sweepstakes this year, but we did get a plaque for our 1 in sight reading, and hopefully we can dominate next year in both marching and concert band.

Wildcat Bluff hosting new programs

Wildcat Bluff Nature Center (WBNC)'s monthly program Toddler Tracks is March 10, from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. This month's theme is Light and Shadow.

Commodity safety net deadline is next week

Agricultural producers who have not yet enrolled in the Agriculture Risk Coverage (ARC) or Price Loss Coverage (PLC) programs for the 2023 crop year have until March 15, 2023, to elect and enroll a contract.

The US Department of Agriculture (USDA) offers these two safety net programs to provide vital income support to farmers experiencing substantial declines in crop prices or revenues.

"The Agriculture Risk Coverage and Price Loss Coverage programs provide critical financial protections to many American farmers. As producers across the country deal with unexpected market volatility and natural disasters, these programs offer much-needed support and stability," said Kelly Adkins, State Executive Director for FSA in Texas. "I am encouraging producers to reach out to their county offices to learn about program eligibility and election options today, so that they can begin the enrollment process as soon as possible."

Producers can elect coverage and enroll in ARC-County or PLC, which are both commodity-by-commodity, or ARC-Individual, which covers the entire farm. Although election changes for 2023 are optional, producers must enroll through a signed contract each year. Additionally, if a producer has a multi-year contract on their farm and makes an election change for 2023, they will need to sign a new contract.

If producers do not submit an election by the March 15, 2023, deadline, the election remains the same as the 2022 election for commodities on the farm. Farm owners cannot enroll in either program unless they have a share interest in the commodity.

In Texas, producers have completed 44,543 contracts to date, representing 50% of the more than 88,000 expected contracts.

Producers who do not complete enrollment by the deadline will not be enrolled in ARC or PLC for the 2023 year and will not receive a payment if triggered.

Producers are eligible to enroll farms with base acres for the following commodities: barley, canola, large and small chickpeas, corn, crambie, flaxseed, grain sorghum, lentils, mustard seed, oats, peanuts, dry peas, rapeseed, long grain rice, medium and short grain rice, safflower seed, seed cotton, sesame, soybeans, sunflower seed and wheat.

In partnership with USDA, two web-based decision tools are available to assist producers in making informed, educated decisions using crop data specific to their respective farming operations: Gardner-farmdoc Payment Calculator, a tool available through the University of Illinois allows producers to estimate payments for farms and counties for ARC-CO and PLC. ARC and PLC Decision Tool, a tool available through Texas A&M University that allows producers to estimate payments and yield updates and expected payments for 2023.

ARC and PLC are part of a broader safety net provided by USDA, which also includes crop insurance and marketing assistance loans.

Producers are reminded that ARC and PLC elections and enrollments can impact eligibility for some crop insurance products.

Producers on farms with a PLC election have the option of purchasing Supplemental Coverage Option (SCO) through their Approved Insurance Provider. However, producers on farms where ARC is the election are ineligible for SCO on their planted acres for that crop on that farm.

Unlike SCO, the Enhanced Coverage Option (ECO) is unaffected by an ARC election. Producers may add ECO regardless of the farm program election.

Upland cotton farmers who choose to enroll seed cotton base acres in ARC or PLC are ineligible for the stacked income protection plan (STAX) on their planted cotton acres for that farm.

Producers should contact their crop insurance agent to make certain that the election and enrollment made at FSA follows their intention to participate in STAX or SCO coverage. Producers have until March 15, 2023, to make the appropriate changes or cancel their ARC or PLC contract.

For more information on ARC and PLC, producers can visit the ARC and PLC webpage or contact their local USDA Service Center.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Broncos' Frausto throws no-hitter

By Sandy Anderberg
The Broncos played a great game against the Fritch Eagles in the Childress Tournament last week behind the pitching of Easton Frausto, who was strong on the mound allowing Fritch no hits and posted nine strike-outs in the Broncos' 11-1 win.

The Broncos struck early adding three runs in the opening inning and after a quiet second inning, they were able to turn up the heat scoring three in the third and five in the fourth to get the win without their last at bat.

Overall, the Broncos had eight hits that included triples from Jared Musick, Britton Cottrell, Levi Gates, and Harrison Howard who had four hits. Musick, Tyler Harper (3), Cottrell, Gates, and Howard also logged seven stolen bases for the team.

On Saturday of the tournament, the Broncos shut out Childress 9-0 with Howard on the mound for five innings. Wilson Ward took over for one inning. During his time on the mound, Howard allowed no runs, one hit, no errors, two walks, and five strike outs.

The Broncos had their bats going and collectively slammed 19 triples in the game from Frausto, Lyric Smith, and Wilson with three each. Big hits also came from Howard (5), Gates (2), Musick, Mason Sims, and B. Cottrell.

The Broncos will compete in the Hollis Tournament March 9-10 and take on Sayre, Shattuck, and Granite.

Happy St. Patrick's Day!

A pony called the Connemara pony is the only one that came from Ireland originally. We live in Ireland too, but were brought here from an area of Scotland. We are S e l i n a d h t ponies!

Ireland is a large island in the Atlantic Ocean. It is west of England, separated from it by the Irish Sea. Ireland is often called the Emerald Isle because people find it so fair and green. The Irish are proud of their homeland and heritage. People of Irish descent in our country show their pride through pageants, parades, prayer and ceremonies. They invite everyone to be "Irish" during their celebration on St. Patrick's Day.

Hmm...four-leaf clovers seem to be falling from the sky today...I'm one lucky leprechaun!
