...that are at risk or may go extinct.

Kids: color stuff in!

Do you know what the word 'extinct' means? When we say an animal is extinct, we mean that there are none left!

Animals and plants have disappeared through natural causes such as storms, volcanic eruptions or diseases. Some animals have been wiped out because people were hungry and killed them for food before they had a chance to replace their populations.

Animals may be threatened by loss of their homes or by sprays used to kill pesky insects.
Some are hunted for their furs or horns.

When numbers of these animals drop so low that they may become extinct, we call them
'endangered' and may work to protect them.

Fill in the puzzle with some animals that are at risk:

- Arctic; melting ice threatens their habitat
- hunted for furs and food; found only in Vietnam;
looks like an antelope, in same family as the cow
- Florida; swampy homes drained; hunted for skins, food
- few small groups left in mountainous bamboo forests of China
- large gentle animals in African jungles; not enough room for gathering food, raising families; killed for body parts
- followed by fishermen seeking tuna; drown in nets; now companies support ways to fish that do not kill needlessly
- Africa, Asia; poachers kill them for their horns
- beautiful cat of India, Russia; killed for skin or fur
- ocean animal; largest animal in world; hunted
- giant lizard; very few left

Animals at Risk

Thanks to a global effort to save giant pandas, they have been moved one step up to a "threatened" species.

The quagga was an animal that lived in the grasslands of South Africa. With stripes on its front half and plain brown on its back half it looked like it was half zebra and half horse. It is now extinct.

Plastic Pollution

Plastic pollution is a growing problem that threatens our oceans.
Plastic items can be harmful to ocean wildlife and may threaten the whole ecosystem.
