DCCF participating in 'The Panhandle Gives'

As part of a national day known as GivingTuesday, the local Donley County Community Fund (DCCF) is participating in The Panhandle Gives campaign.

For nine days from November 20 through November 28, all funds raised locally will be increased through a match from the Amarillo Area Foundation.

"Participating in this campaign is an opportunity for our local fund balance to grow," DCCF chair Jacob Fangman said.

The DCCF is a local board whose purpose is to raise money for a perpetuating fund while contributing a portion of the money to local organizations.

Over the past seven years, the DCCF has been able to give $9,000 to local charities while increasing its own fund balance, thanks to support from county-wide residents.

So that the local DCCF can benefit from the match, anyone wishing to participate will need to give their donation by Monday, November 27, so that the final deposit can be made on GivingTuesday.

GivingTuesday is a movement held annually in all 50 states on the Tuesday after Thanksgiving to kick off the holiday giving season to demonstrate that every act of generosity counts towards giving back to local communities and the causes they support.

Contributions can be mailed to Donley County Community Fund, c/o Jacob Fangman, Box 906, Clarendon, TX 79226. Checks should be made out to The Panhandle Gives, with DonleyCCF written on the memo line.

Ken King Seeks re-election as State Representative

State Rep. Ken King (R-Canadian) announced last week he intends to run for the seat he currently holds representing 19 counties in the Texas Panhandle, South Plains, and the Permian Basin.

King was first elected to the Texas House in 2012 and has had a highly successful run representing House District 88.

He currently serves as the Chairman for the Texas House Licensing and Administrative Procedures committee and serves on the Public Education Committee.

"Every child deserves the best education, no matter their zip code. I have and will remain committed to working for the best outcomes for all children in Texas," said King. "The State of Texas is at a crossroad with numerous challenges ahead. We need leaders that will stand up for West Texas and make sure that revenue generated from our oil and gas industry and agricultural industries benefit our rural communities."

CHS team members advance

Clarendon High School students competed in the Congress regional competition on November 7 and advanced to state.

This was the first year that Clarendon had competed in this UIL event. In Congress competition, students caucus in committees, deliver formal discourse on the merits and disadvantages of each piece of legislation, and vote to pass or defeat the measures they have examined.

Parliamentary procedure forms the structure for the discourse, and students extemporaneously respond to others' arguments throughout a session.

Wes Shaw earned first place to advance to state, and Cutter Seay earned third place to advance to state. Zane Cruse earned first alternate to state, and Ronan Howard was chosen as the student Presiding Officer.

Others competing from Clarendon were Zak Roberts and Rowdy Bebout.

The state contest will be January 10 and 11 at the University of Texas and the Texas State Capital.

City turns down new county contract

The Clarendon City Council rejected an amended contract with the Donley County Sheriff's Office during its regular meeting last Thursday, November 9.

The city had previously agreed to pay the county $140,000 for law enforcement, reducing the annual payment by more than $26,000 and changing the contract term from three years to one year.

During last week's meeting, however, aldermen objected to new language in the contract which they said requires the city to put a ballot proposal before city voters, which would have the city give up five-eighths of one percent of its sales tax to help fund a new county assistance district.

A sales tax funded district has been discussed by county and city officials as a possible way to fund law enforcement in the future, but the city has not committed to that idea. Mayor Jacob Fangman said during last week's meeting that he felt the city needed to fully investigate the idea and how it would impact the city going forward. Some council members also objected to the idea of giving up sales tax revenue. The five-eighths of one percent figure would have generated $140,000 in the last fiscal year, but sales tax revenue historically increases over time.

City officials also said that even though the city had given the county the first quarterly payment for the new year, the county had not filed any tickets in municipal court because the contract has not been signed.

The council voted to reject the amended contract and send the old contract back to the county, changing only the amount and the term.

Donley County Commissioners are planning to meet November 16 at 10 a.m. to learn more about how a county assistance district could be set up and operate.

Clarendon hits sales tax record

The City of Clarendon hit a new high for sales tax revenue last week when Texas Comptroller Glenn Hegar delivered November allocations to local governments.

The city received $61,362.03 for the month, an increase of 18.85 percent over the $51,628.89 from November 2022.

The allocation not only reversed several months of declining sales tax revenues but also set a new record for the city for the highest monthly revenue. The previous monthly high was set in May 2019 with an allocation of $56,593.

November allocations to local governments are based on sales made in September by businesses that report tax monthly and on sales made in July, August and September by quarterly filers.

Clarendon is now slightly ahead for the calendar year-to-date sales tax revenues at $466,997.49, an increase of 0.22 percent compared to the same point one year ago.

Hedley's sales tax allocation for November was down 9.57 percent to $1,697.73, but the city is still ahead for the calendar year-to-date, up 4.5 percent at $12,123.32.

Howardwick also was down for the month, falling 19.07 percent to $1,933.96. The lakeside city is almost even for the year-to-date, up 0.17 percent at $20,543.41.

Statewide, Hegar delivered $1.2 billion in sales tax allocations, 1.9 percent more than a year ago.

House speaker turmoil nothing new for America

If you have followed my column over the years you may have noticed a theme. My belief is that there is really nothing new, that in some way or another we have seen everything before.

Most of my writing is comparing modern events to the past. Yet, recently the fates have mocked my belief as not only has a former president been indicted for the first time in our country's history, but the Speaker of the House was removed—the latter a feat tried on a few occasions but never successful.

historically speaking
by dr. james fink

Earlier this year was the fourth time in our nation's history that the Speaker of the House was not chosen on the first day of the Congress. Much of this craziness is coming from a group of 20 of so Republicans who feel the status quo is no longer working and it is their task is to shake things up, starting with new leadership.

Historically speaking, this is not completely new. While it took four days and 15 ballots to elect McCarthy back in January, the 31st Congress took 19 days to elect a speaker and the 68th Congress took three. Now, however, I guess the House has nothing better to do, so they decided to do it all over again. With the ousting of McCarthy, Republicans tried to find a representative who could satisfy all sides of the party. This time it took three weeks and several candidates to finally get their man.

While I could choose any of these earlier speaker contests to in which to compare, the one from the 1850s that took two months seems most applicable as the 1850s look politically similar to today.

The makeup of the 34th Congress was 83 Democrats, 51 Know-Nothings, and 100 Oppositions. On the opening day of Congress, Dec. 3, 1855, 21 different candidates were nominated for speaker. The most important of these were William Richardson, Democrat from Illinois, who received 74 votes; Lewis Campbell, Opposition from Ohio, who received 53 votes; Humphrey Marshall, Know-Nothing from Kentucky, who received 30 votes; and finally, Nathaniel Banks, Know-Nothing from Massachusetts, who received 21 votes. After that, the votes dropped off greatly among the other candidates. That meant 74 votes for the Democrats, 53 for Opposition, and 51 between the two Know-Nothings, but 113 votes were needed to win a majority. The House voted three more times that day with very little movement in the votes.

The first significant change occurred on Dec. 5 during the 12th vote where Campbell (O) took the lead among 14 candidates with 75 votes followed by Richardson (D) with 73 votes and Banks (K) dropping to fifth with 12 votes. Then on Dec. 7, after the 24th vote, Campbell addressed the House. He recognized the anxiety of the nation to get a speaker and believed that even though he was in the lead, he would never win. He said, "it is obvious to me that it is impossible for my friends to succeed, unless I can perform one of the three conditions: to repudiate my well-known principles in reference to slavery; my views on Americanism; or, in some way directly, or indirectly, to make pledges with regard to the forming of committees which will amount to a sacrifice of my self-respect, and make me, in my opinion, a fit object for public contempt." With that, Campbell pulled his name from the race for the good of the nation.

With Campbell out, the numbers fluctuated over the next two months and 95 ballots, but always with Banks in first.

Banks is an interesting candidate. He was a machinist from Massachusetts but loved politics and participated in a local debate club. His speeches were so powerful that he was asked by the Democrats to run for local office. From there, he moved up the Democratic Party even winning a seat in the 33rd Congress as a Democrat. Yet, like some other Northern Democrats he was troubled as his party was becoming the party of slavery. So, in 1854, he ran for a second term as a Know-Nothing. After all the chaos of running for speaker, he ran a third time, but as a Republican. He was a congressman for three consecutive terms in three different parties.

Another major shift occurred on the 123rd vote when Democrats replaced Richardson with James Orr, Democratic congressman from South Carolina. The shakeup did not work as Banks led with 96 votes and Orr came in second with 68. This duo at the top lasted nine more days and seven more votes until on Feb. 2, during the 130th vote, when Orr was replaced by William Aiken, another Democratic congressman from South Carolina. Aiken received 68 votes.

Congress had reached exasperation. There were serious concerns in the nation especially in dealing with Bleeding Kansas, not unlike today's Congress concerning the Israeli situation. The House could not move forward with rules or committees or even debate until they settled the speakership.

Finally, Samuel Smith from Tennessee recommended that the speaker election by determined by a vote of plurality. His motion called for three more attempts for a candidate to reach a majority, but if none could be reached, the majority rule would be dropped and a fourth vote would be taken. The candidate with the most votes would be named speaker. The resolution was passed.

With that, three more votes were taken. Each time Banks received 102 and Aikens 93. Finally, the fourth and final vote was taken. Banks received 103 to Aiken's 100. The two-month drama was over; Banks had been elected Speaker of the House.

There are many similarities and differences to our time and 1856. Like then, there are divisions within both parties making it difficult to get things done. In the 1850s the struggle to elect a speaker was a precursor to horrific events and civil war. Let's hope our problems in Congress will not lead to the same.

Sometimes being late pays off big

In August 1854, a horde of grasshoppers swarmed the fields in and around Lehi, Utah, devouring everything green. Fortunately, most of the crops had already been harvested, and no appreciable damage was done. But the eggs laid by the grasshoppers hatched the following year before the harvests were in, and the farmers had to contend with a more serious invasion. Because they had been successful in prior years, the farmers planted on a more extensive scale in 1855, and when warm weather came, the infant grasshoppers also came.

The farmers tried everything they could think of to stop the invasion. They dug ditches, filled them with water, and drove the grasshoppers into the ditches. They laid rows of straw and when the grasshoppers covered the straw, they set it afire. They dug holes in the ground, brushed the grasshoppers into the holes, and covered them with earth. Nothing worked; the grasshoppers still came and devoured almost everything. Relief finally came in the middle of June when the grasshoppers developed wings and inexplicably flew away.

The farmers then planted corn and potatoes in their devastated fields, and because the frost and snow arrived late that year, they found success with those crops. But very little grain was produced that year.

Of the small number of successful grain crops that year, one belonged to Sister Canute Peterson. Brother Peterson was away on a church mission, and the responsibility and labor of producing a crop in 1855 fell on Sister Peterson's shoulders. Making furrows with a hoe, she planted an acre of wheat by herself, and being inexperienced in such an endeavor, she was late and she planted the grain deeper than necessary. As a result, it took longer than usual for the wheat shoots to emerge through the soil, and by the time they finally came up, the grasshoppers were gone. Sister Peterson's field was covered with "luxuriant growth."

In the end she harvested sixty bushels of wheat along with sixty bushels of corn and some potatoes as a result of being late and planting too deeply. George U. Hubbard is an author and former resident of Clarendon.

The changing tastes of Texans

Much of what is making the news cycles these days is borderline Un-American, and in some cases, absolutely unTexan.

That's the opinion of my Uncle Mort, an ancient relative who has lived more than a century down in The Thicket of East Texas.

He is shocked that iced coffee has become an obsession in the US, even reviving cafes that are welcoming any menu items that will keep customers coming back for more. Mort didn't even know that iced coffee drinkers have a foothold in the market. Truth to tell, he figured a toehold might be all that consumers of the chilled variety could muster....

Mort thinks most Texans will continue to favor hot coffee, and in his crowd, most of 'em like java that is so hot that it needs to be "sauced and blowed" before consumption.

Further, in our frontier state where chaps are still worn and the "jingle/jangle" of spurs heard on the prairie, most men like their coffee strong.

Many prefer it to be made in a coffee can over an open fire, always remembering that "it don't take much water to make good coffee," Mort opines. He can't imagine cowboys crawling from their bedrolls on cold winter mornings, eager to start their morning after first swigging iced coffee....

Statistics don't lie, however, and it is possible that researchers on coffee consumption are right on. The consultancy firm Allegra World Coffee Portal says that nearly a quarter of coffee-shop customers are drinking cold offerings every single day, up 17 percent in just one year.

The younger you are, the more likely you take your caffeine cold. A survey of 5,000 consumers found that almost eight in every ten buyers under the age of 35 purchase the drink at least once weekly.

Icy beverages have become such a craze that the segment is helping U.S. coffeeshops bounce back from the COVID hit, and the industry is now topping pre-pandemic levels....

Maybe we old-timers might consider joining the younger bunch, but we simply don't want to order from menus that list numerous multi-syllabic flavors. Many of us are timid about learning new words like "latte" and "mocha." We are admittedly worried about holding up the line, even if we wish only to order a cup of black coffee, nothing more, nothing less.

Who woulda thought, several decades ago, that a cup of coffee tab was a mere 10 cents, with many restaurants offering free refills? Back then, thoughts of iced coffee seemed light years away.

Early in my speaking career, I told the story of a hobo who asked a passerby for a quarter "to buy a cup of coffee."

the idle american
by don newbury

When the prospective donor pointed out that coffee cost only a dime, the hobo countered, "But won't you join me?..."

During a brief visit to Alto, New Mexico, this summer, I was taken aback at a convenience store, where ice in seven-pound bags was priced at $3.49.

With inflation hitting the ice industry so hard, I may need to consider investing, or, better yet, get a parttime job, selling ice priced by the cube.

Whatever, maybe ice is to be partially blamed for inflated costs of cold coffee. After all, half of industry leaders consider cold coffee to be the most important current market trend. So, maybe the old bromide is near the mark, the one expressing regret that youth is wasted on the young....

Meanwhile, researchers have found a new way to recycle clothing. Currently, 99 percent of all used clothing winds up in dumps, greatly impacting environmental efforts.

With almost all clothing a blend of cotton and synthetics, the new process will produce similar materials once more, thus turning old garments into new.

No longer will the claim that "he'd give you the shirt off his back" be universally true. Instead, the donor may be giving us the shirt off many backs. So, we press on, hopeful that too much information can be avoided....

Dr. Newbury, longtime university president, continues to write weekly and speak regularly throughout Texas.

McGuire

Bradford Rhea McGuire was born February 18, 1965, in Haskell, Texas. The son of Douglas Allen McGuire and Ann Levell Cargill Davis, Brad and his family lived in Rochester, Texas, Mannheim, Germany, Kermit, Rankin, Ballinger and Clarendon, Texas. A graduate from Clarendon High School, Brad received his Bachelor's degree in English and Communications from Sul Ross State University.

McGuire

Brad and Karen met at the KVLV Radio station in Alpine, where he taught her to be a DJ. They developed a children's radio program that featured Brad as the voice of a desert rat, Philo, and Karen as Philo's wife, Prissy Sue. The program consisted of a theme song, "Smile and the World Smiles with You", a character-building children's story and conversations with Philo and Prissy Sue.

In addition to a stint at the Alpine Vet Clinic and the Alpine Pizza Hut [where, believe it or not, their kids actually began to get tired of pizza!], Brad was a volunteer coach at the Alpine Jr. High and one of the favorite monitors of the students in the In School Suspension class! He also served as the Photography teacher at Alpine High School, was an aide to the Special Ed Classes, and wrote the AHS Sports Column for the Alpine Avalanche. Commenting on his time in the dark room at AHS Brad said, "The previous photography teacher gave me the textbooks and the key and said 'Good luck'. I spent the summer teaching myself how to use the chemicals and develop pictures. It actually was a lot of fun! I put photographs of school sports events on my classroom door and the students could buy any of the prints they wanted all year long. That helped pay for the purchase of more chemicals in the dark room!"

Brad worked as grounds keeper and maintenance man for Paisano Baptist Encampment for about 8 1/2 years. He and Karen established the Saturday night Chapel service at Paisano for all comers, which continued for several years after the McGuires moved to town. Brad was interim pastor at First Baptist Church in Fort Davis for 14 months and then began preaching at Hillside in 2008. Some of his best memories were working with the men of the church in ministries at Hillside, attending a Green Bap Packer game at Lambeau Field.

'Holiday High' released by former Claude News publisher

James Arthur, an emerging author dedicated to educating and entertaining young adults in grades 6-12, has announced the release of his novel, Holiday High.

Drawing from his extensive background as a youth pastor and ELA/Drama Teacher, James Arthur weaves a compelling and engaging narrative that captivates young minds and transports them into a world where holidays are more than just dates on the calendar – they're destinies, with lives of their own.

Arthur's family previously owned and published The Claude News, and Holiday High was written while the family lived in Claude.

Holiday High invites readers to step into a world where tradition and tenacity are put to the test. The story revolves around Arbor Day, a less-prominent holiday, who embarks on the challenging journey of starting anew at Holiday High – a school exclusively for the offspring of America's most celebrated days, from the dazzling Fourth of July fireworks to the warmth of Thanksgiving gatherings.

In this middle-grade/young adult fantasy novel, Arbor faces the daunting task of proving her holiday's worth and safeguarding her family's cherished legacy, which is in danger of falling into obscurity and being totally forgotten. In opposition is the stern Holiday Council, who set the rhythm of the school, making Arbor's mission a race against time.

Complicating matters is Arbor's rivalry with the passionate Valentine, whose singular mission is to make Arbor's time at school a living nightmare. Vice Principal Frost, with his enigmatic and cold demeanor, adds to the intrigue with an agenda of his own.

Holiday High takes readers on a journey through a school where traditions are more than just events and dates – they are the essence of existence. Arbor must navigate a web of friendships, rivalries, and the weight of legacy. At every turn, she is reminded of what's at stake.

James Arthur's storytelling prowess shines in Holiday High. The novel combines coming-of-age elements with the personification of historical holidays, creating a unique and thought-provoking experience for readers of all ages.

Holiday High is available for purchase online from Amazon and Barnes & Noble.

TxDOT to find a sober ride during the holidays

The holiday season gets its official start next week as many Texans gather around the table for Thanksgiving dinner. But for the families of the 1,246 people killed last year in Texas by drunk drivers, holiday seasons will never be the same.

Starting Dec. 1, 2022, there were 108 people killed and 229 people seriously injured in just 32 days in DUI-alcohol related crashes across the state. All of these families suffered painful memories that will last a lifetime.

Drunk driving crashes are completely preventable, yet they can cause physical, emotional and financial consequences that last for years. If you drink any amount of alcohol this holiday season, never get behind the wheel. Instead, designate a sober driver, use a rideshare service or taxi, stay put, call a friend or family member, or use public transportation to ensure you get home safely.

The Drive Sober. No Regrets. campaign is a key component of #EndTheStreakTX, a broader social media and word-of-mouth effort that encourages drivers to make safer choices while behind the wheel, such as wearing a seat belt, driving the speed limit, never texting and driving, and never driving under the influence of alcohol or other drugs. Nov. 7, 2000, was the last deathless day on Texas roadways. #EndTheStreakTX asks all Texans to commit to driving safely to help end the streak of daily deaths on Texas roadways.

The Clarendon Lions Club held its regular Tuesday noon meeting November 14, 2023, with Boss Lion David Dockery wielding the gavel.

We had 11 members in person, three attending virtually, Sweetheart Emma Roys, and six guests this week. Our guests were Ben and Ella Estlack, guests of Lion Roger Estlack; Monroe and Matthew Newhouse, guests of Lion Anndria Newhouse; and Robin Sell and Lindy Craft, guests of Lion Richard Green.

The Boss Lion announced that the club will be helping the Donley County Senior Citizens pack food boxes on Wednesday of this week at 5 p.m.

Lion Jacob Fangman reported on the city and downtown revitalization and other projects. Lion John Howard reported on the county and said commissioners will meet Thursday to discuss the nuts and bolts of creating a county assistance district.

Lion Scarlet Estlack reported on the college, and Lions Richard and Mary Green reported on Howardwick, where a raffle is underway for the volunteer fire department and Christmas for Kids will be held December 16. A craft bazaar will be held at the country club December 18.

Lion Chuck Robertson reported on the Broncos, and Lion Roger Estlack reported a pep rally is planned for tonight downtown.

Lion Newhouse updated the club on the Toys for Joy drive and said December 13 will be the day for distribution at Clarendon Elementary. The date for Hedley is still pending. Toys or cash may be delivered to the Visitor Center or Lowe's.

Lion Larry Capranica said the Ministerial Alliance will hold their Thanksgiving service this Sunday at the Cowboy Church at Fourth and Parks.

We were happy to welcome Lindy Craft and Robin Sell as new members!

There being no further business, we were dismissed to spread Lionism and good cheer throughout our fair county.

Retired teachers to meet Nov. 27

The bi-monthly meeting of the Donley County Retired School Personnel Association will be held on Monday, November 27 at 6:00 p.m. in the Family Life Center.

Bring your favorite snack, a friend and join us for a time of information and fellowship.

Resourceful!

Clarendon Junior High Seventh Grade Class was tasked with building a bow and arrow like those made in the early beginnings of America. Karli Jones made her bow string out of deer intestines from a deer her family harvested this season.

Broncos' claim Bi-District Crown with win over the Rough Riders

By Sandy Anderberg

The Clarendon Broncos claimed a big Bi-District win over the Boys Ranch Rough Riders at Dick Bivens Stadium last Friday night. The 46-6 win put the Broncos in the Area round with Seagraves in Floydada this Thursday, November 16, at 7 p.m.

The Bronco offense was on target last week and the team collected 397 total yards in the game. Senior quarterback Lyric Smith threw for 215 yards and finished with two passing touchdowns in the game.

Smith was 12 for 25 and threw strikes to Mason Sims and Quay Brown for scores and also hit Easton Frausto twice for yardage. Sims had five catches for 89 yards with 40 yards being his longest, and Smith targeted Brown five times for 108 yards. Despite throwing two interceptions, Smith had a good night in the air.

The Broncos' running game has been good all season with help up front from the solid play of the line. Sims had 13 carries for 35 yards and Frausto carried twice for 18 yards. Smith carried the ball 19 times and finished with 129 yards and found the endzone three times.

Defensively, the Broncos did a great job of containing Boys Ranch and holding them scoreless until the end of the game. Dalton Coles led the way with 12 tackles, and Jared Musick had eight. Frausto played well on defense with seven grabs, and Sims had six. Haynes, Shane Hagood, Kyler Bell, Tyler Cavanaugh, Heston Seay Waite Dushay, and Ranger Drenth posted at least one tackle on the night. Smith and Brown each had one interception, and Smith and Grant Haynes had a recovered fumble.

Lineman Anthony Ceniceros had three tackles and forced a fumble and recovered a fumble.

At least two Bronco scores came from the defense, and they were able to tackle Boys Ranch in the endzone for a safety in the first quarter.

The Broncos will continue to do what they know to do in practice this week and be ready to take on the Seagraves Eagles in Floydada on Thursday, November 16, at 7:00 p.m.

Lady Broncos begin perfect season

By Sandy Anderberg

The Lady Broncos are off to a flying start with two big wins over Happy and Childress last week. Happy put up a decent battle against the Lady Broncos, but the maroon and white earned the 56-44 win.

The ladies converted five three pointers with four of them coming from sophomore Kashlyn Conkin who finished with 18 points to lead the team in scoring.

The Lady Broncos got off to a slower start than head coach Korey Conkin was comfortable with but worked themselves back to only trail by two points at the break. The ladies went to work in the second half and outscored the Happy Cowgirls by 14 points to get the win. Clarendon put in seven of the twelve free shots for 58 percent from the line.

Presley Smith finished with nine points and Kennadie Cummins, Hayden Elam, and newcomer Kate Shaw put in six points each. Berkley Moore added five, Graci Smith three, Courtlyn Conkin two, and Tandie Cummins one.

Later in the week the Lady Broncos hosted Childress and completely shut down the Lady Cats' offense.

The Lady Broncos took the win at 50-29. Once again, the Lady Broncos took control of the game with their consistent scoring and ramped up free throw shooting at 85 percent.

K. Conkin, Elam, Moore, and Smith were perfect at the line hitting all of their free-throws.

Conkin hit two more three pointers for 10 points in the game and Moore added seven points that included one three pointer and both free-throws. P. Smith and G. Smith helped with six points apiece and Kenidee Hayes came off the injured list and put in five points with Shaw who added five also. C. Conkin and Elam added two and T. Cummins had one.

The Lady Broncos will play in the FUB Shootout in Canyon on November 17 at 4:30 and travel to Texline at Holy Cross on November 21 at 5:00 p.m.

Lady Bronco JV tears up Happy and Childress

The Lady Bronco JV turned in two good games last week with huge wins over Happy and Childress holding them to single digits at home. They were able to defeat Happy 61-7 and ran over Childress 62-9.

Kimbrasia Ballard had two strong offensive games scoring 39 and 33 points respectively. Sixteen of her 39 points against Happy came in the third quarter scoring 16 and she was three of five from the bonus line.

The ladies jumped all over the Happy Cowgirls early. They were unstoppable on the offensive end of the court and played strong defense throughout. Madi Benson put in eight points while Gracie Ellis added six. Kinslee Hatley helped with five and Megan Weathered put in three.

Things went just as well against the Childress Lady Cats and the Lady Broncos breezed through their defense to put points on the board. They were able to shoot 63 percent from the bonus line and knocked down one three pointer. Along with Ballard's 33 points, Cambree Smith put in 12 and Benson had 11. Julie Woodard added six points to the scoreboard to round out the scorers.

The Lady Broncos will play in the Amarillo JV Tournament November 16-18 and travel to Happy on November 21 at 5:00 p.m.

Friendsgiving at DHDC boosts learning

Campers will learn on their level with a science-based curriculum and qualified teachers. DHDC encourages caregivers to sign their young explorers up to let them have fun during Thanksgiving Break and learn something new to talk about at the dinner table.

Spots are limited and registration is now open at DHDC.org.

We are marching in the Thanksgiving... ...parade and then having our feast!

Happy Thanksgiving, Everyone!

Psssst... this year, think tofu or beef!

Our Thanksgiving holiday is based upon a December 1619 feast that the Pilgrims and Native Americans shared at Plymouth Plantation, where the Pilgrims lived in Massachusetts.

We travel 'Over the River and through the Woods' to places where 'We Gather Together' to give thanks for our family, friends and all that we have!

Read these clues to fill in this puzzle about Thanksgiving:

- about half of these people moved to Holland, then to North America so they could build a better life and worship as they pleased
- Native _____ taught the Pilgrims skills they would need to survive
- Native American who lived with the Pilgrims
- number of Native Americans who came to the Pilgrims' feast
- stone that marks the Pilgrims' landing place (2 words)
- an agreement signed by the men to set up a new government (2 words)
- Pilgrims' ship, sailed 66 days and nights to America
- "wildfowl" was eaten at the Thanksgiving feast - today the centerpiece is often this large bird
- the first Native American to welcome the Pilgrims
- to say or show that we are pleased, grateful
- big games played today
- on an early check of the land (Cape Cod) Pilgrims found baskets of this buried in the sand in Native American fields

Ooooo...cranberry bread pudding, cheesecake, and walnut cookies. Connect the dots to see my favorite "ending to the feast."

The Pilgrims ate turkey, fish and venison.

They had cabbages, carrots, corn, onions, wild plums, berries, and honey too.

The End of the Feast!

Members of the Adamson-Lane Post of the American Legion in Hedley honored veterans with a service at the Hedley Lions Den Monday.
